The effect is to make funds available at the start of the fiscal year for hands-on health care delivered to veterans. To do this results in $53 million more in that spending during the year, according to the CBO. That is the amount of outlays that currently are available and unused, left on the table, as it were, in this bill.

For those concerned about the size of the VA's medical equipment backlog, Mr. Chairman, let me say that my amendment still provides $775 million for such requirements. That is $205 million above the 1998 level, $140 million above the Administration's 1999 request, and $88 million above the Senate's recommendation.

Because it results in more hands-on veterans medical care, earlier this year veterans groups supported my amendment. Here I have a letter from the Paralyzed Veterans Association, another from the Blinded Veterans Association, and another from the Disabled American Veterans, all indicating support for this amendment, and other letters will be forthcoming.

To summarize, this is a simple amendment. It does not hurt any program. It takes the outlays that are left on the table. There is no offset required to accelerate spending for veterans' health. Reduced equipment obligations by $69 million actually increases hands-on medical care by the same amount. That is what the veterans want. That is what the veterans organization groups feel they need. That is what this House ought to do.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. We have had a chance to review the the gentleman's amendment. We appreciate the the gentleman's assistance to the committee, and we accept the amendment, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, we accept the amendment.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman and ranking member.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

The amendment was agreed to.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to engage in a colloquy with the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), chairman of the Subcommittee for the VA, HUD and Independent Agencies of the Committee on Appropriations.

I want to thank the chairman for providing an increase in funding for NASA's academic programs. Inspiring our youth, our youth's teachers, and the general public is absolutely essential to sustaining our Nation's edge in research and development in space exploration.

I applaud the subcommittee's funding equipment. However, I am concerned about the House mark that does not provide an increase in funding for an academic program that literally has touched millions of people's lives. As Members know, one of the most effective academic programs launched by NASA is the National Space Grant College and Fellowship program, with over 586 member universities and institutions in every State.

I would ask that the Chair adopt the Senate budget mark of $23.5 million for the National Space Grant College and Fellowship Program when the VA, HUD and Independent Agencies appropriations goes to conference.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. STABENOW. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman from Michigan for bringing this issue to our attention. As a distinguished member of the Committee on Science, I appreciate the gentlewoman's commitment to research and development, as well as to education.

I agree with the gentlewoman that the National Space Grant College and Fellowship Program is a worthwhile program that deserves additional funding, and I want to assure the gentlewoman that I will take the advice of the gentlewoman and give serious consideration to it during the conference negotiations.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. Chairman, I would like to thank the gentleman from California for all of his hard work on this appropriations bill. I am encouraged by his words to look closely at the Senate mark of $23.5 million for the National Space Grant College and Fellowship Program.

Let me also say that I appreciate the gentleman's willingness to work with me and all of the other Members of Congress who feel strongly about this program, and I look forward to a positive outcome.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, let me thank the gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. STABENOW) for her kinds words. I look forward to resolving the issue as we go forward to the conference.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MS. DELAURO

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. A point of order has been reserved.

The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Ms. DELAURO:

At the end of the bill add the following new section:

None of the funds made available under this Act may be used to develop and enforce the standard for the flammability of children's sleepware sizes 0 through 6X (contained in regulations published at 16 CFR part 1615) and sizes 7 through 14 (contained in regulations published at 16 CFR part 1616) as the standard was amended effective January 1, 1997.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, this is an amendment which will protect America's children from burn injuries and from death. I feel confident that every Member of this body will support it.

This amendment would prohibit the Consumer Product Safety Commission from using any of its resources to promulgate or implement weakened fire and safety standards for children's sleepwear.

For more than two decades children's sleepwear was held to a more stringent standard of fire safety than any other type of clothing. Kids' pajamas needed to self-extinguish after exposure to a small open flame. Manufacturers were required to test every part of the garment's fabrics, seams, and the trim, to ensure that it met this high standard of safety. Why this strict standard of safety? Because Americans understood the importance of protecting their children from the horrific burns that can come from a fire accident.

I saw a demonstration of in my home State of Connecticut of just how fast a pair of pajamas that are not treated to reduce flammability can go up in flames. It was horrifying and it was frightening. The strict standard of fire safety worked. Fire burns and deaths relating to children's sleepwear went down to nearly zero. In fact, the National Fire Protection Agency estimates that without this safety standard, there would have been ten times as many deaths associated with children's sleepwear. The standard also brought about a substantial decrease in the number of burn injuries.

That is why I was shocked to learn that the Consumer Product Safety Commission, an agency for which I have the utmost respect, had voted to turn its back on that successful record and to weaken the fire safety standards for children's sleepwear.

The current standards allow all sleepwear for infants nine months or younger and tightfitting sleepwear in children's sizes up to 14 to be exempt from flammability standards so that they can be made from untreated cotton and cotton blends. These types of clothes can easily ignite from a stove or other types of flames.

Tight-fitting clothes made with flame resistent material are the safest choice for children. Nonflame-resistent materials like untreated cotton and cotton blends ignite at a lower temperature than fabrics such as polyester. The flames spread rapidly, and they tend to spread up towards the child's face.

The reasoning behind the new rules is that if a garment is tight, it is more difficult for flames to spread. Parents do not buy clothes that are tight. We have all bought clothes for new babies. We buy them for our kids and we buy them for our friend's kids, and they look beautiful. They are very, very pretty. We think how cute it is, and we buy clothes that are big so a child grows into them.

But the combination of nonflame resistance and large sizes is lethal to our kids. It is important to note that the chair of the Consumer Product Safety Commission voted against changing the standards, and she said, "Available injury and death data demonstrates to me that the sleepwear standards are working. I am unable to agree to an exemption that could leave these infants more vulnerable to injury or to death."

I have been working with the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ROB ANDREWS) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. CURT WELDON), two of this body's most eminent experts on fire safety, to reinstate the original fair safety standards to protect our children from burns and from death. We are backed by a large coalition of fire safety organizations, medical organizations, public health groups, who are dedicated to protecting our children and reinstating this standard.

Let me just quote from one member of that coalition, Andrew McGuire, executive director of the Trauma Foundation at San Francisco General Hospital, who was burned when his pajamas caught fire in 1952, on his 7th birthday. He was instrumental in lobbying for the passage of the original standard.

This is what he says, that the children's sleepwear fire safety standard has been "a truly successful 'vaccine' that has protected thousands of children from serious burns over the past 25 years. No one in America would consider reducing the use of the vaccine for polio. Why would the CPSC relax such a life-saving vaccine for burns?"

Andrew McGuire is right, we do not want to wait for the number of fire burns and deaths to rise before we take action to protect our children. One death is too many. One child living with a disfigurement left from a burn is too many. This is a life or death issue for our children.

This is a bipartisan effort. We have the responsibility to protect our children's health and safety. It does not belong to one party or another. We all hold that responsibility. I urge my colleagues to stand behind our Nation's children and support this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) continue to reserve the point of order?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, Yes, I do.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I just came down to talk on another amendment, which I believe will follow this amendment.

I just want to say to my colleagues that I rise in strong support of the amendment of the gentlewoman from Connecticut. As a mother, as as a grandmother, it is shocking to me that these laws that were put in place to protect our youth, our infants, would be weakened.

I just appeal to the House to support my colleague from Connecticut, because when we have a chance to save lives, it seems to me we should do everything we can to do so. So I strongly support the gentlewoman from Connecticut's amendment. I thank her for introducing it.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment. The amendment proposed by my friend, the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO), and the coauthor of legislation, along with the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) and myself, would have restored the sleepwear safety standard that worked so very well for 24 years.

I want to take a moment and talk about why this is important, and how we got to this point. It is important, Mr. Chairman, for a very simple reason. When people go into the store and they look to buy sleepwear for their children, there are basically two kinds of sleepwear. There is sleepwear that will catch on fire and burn in an instant, that is not treated for flammability, and then there is sleepwear that will not catch on fire and it will burn much more slowly, because it is treated for flammability.

For 24 years, the law of this country recognized that distinction. If we went in and bought sleepwear for our children that was treated for flammability, we knew it, because there was a label there. If it were not treated for flammability, we knew that, because there was no label. Parents and others buying for their children could be intelligent consumers and safeguard their children.

If we listened to the testimony of emergency room nurses, emergency room doctors, firefighters, burn center personnel, lots of nonpolitical people who deal with burned children, they would have told us that this law made sense. If it is not broke, do not fix it.

In 1996, for reasons that are inexplicable, the Consumer Product Safety Commission decided to change this law and take the warning labels off flammable sleepwear. The gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) and I introduced a bill to say let us go back to a standard that worked for 24 years, and let us get it done through this legislation.

Through the cooperation and farsightedness of the chairman of the subcommittee of this bill today, we were given that opportunity. We appreciate it very much, and thank him for his cooperation.

When this bill was brought to the floor, the rule was written in such a way that any one Member, one Member, could stand up and have this provision stripped from the bill without a vote. That just happened a few minutes ago.

The gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO) has now done the next best thing. She has said, if we cannot get the old standard back, let us enjoin the use of the new one, which emergency room doctors, emergency room nurses, and other personnel in the fire service around this country say do not work.

What we really should be doing here, Mr. Chairman, is having a fair debate and an up-or-down vote on the real, underlying bill, which says let us put the standard that worked for 24 years back in. We were not getting that. But this is the next best thing.

On behalf of children across this country, consumers across this country, emergency room nurses, burn center personnel, and on behalf of Republicans and Democrats in this institution, I would implore and urge my colleagues to vote yes on the DeLauro amendment.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, while we are not the authorizing committee, I no longer reserve a point of order on the amendment.

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I want to make it clear that, to those of who have raised questions about such an effort through this amendment, and I have a 9-year-old boy and a 13-year-old girl, and I know my colleague, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY), has young children as well, this is not a question of being concerned about children. It is about doing the right thing and using the right vehicle to accomplish it.

There is not a person in here who is going to stand up and ever object to us doing everything we possibly can to protect our children from any kind of injury or any kind of accident. But the initial effort to try to write law in this bill was deemed inappropriate earlier through a parliamentary ruling because we really had not had a chance to talk about this and figure out what the facts are.

I have a letter in my possession dated July 8 of this year from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission that clearly States an opposition by commissioner Ann Brown who clearly states that the current rules, as they have been changed, should remain and we should not do anything to go back to the way they were before.

There have been no burn injuries associated with any snug-fitting garments that we are aware of. Certainly, accidents occur out there and we are not sure of what the causes are in each particular case. But I think that in light of the fact that we have not had hearings on this. I might support this if we had the appropriate hearings and used the appropriate vehicle.

But it is like trying to use one of those new Volkswagen beetles to haul a giant cabinet down the highway. It is just the wrong vehicle to use to accomplish a goal.

So I would strongly urge my colleagues to let us go through the process and not rush an amendment that Members have not even had a chance to look at. It was presented within the last 15 to 20 minutes and we have just barely gotten around to figuring out what it says exactly. It is the wrong way to write Federal law.

We always know that when the Federal Government tries to legislate quickly without really thinking things through, we wind up messing the problem up worse than it was when we started out. That is my concern.

Mr. Chairman, I emphasize that none of us in this body with young children, as I have and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY) has, would do anything to risk the safety of a child in this country. Our only concern is that we want to do the right thing for the kids and for everyone involved in this issue.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BONILLA. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I want to support what my colleague is saying with two additional concerns. Number one is the effect of this provision overrides the judgment of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, not something necessarily that we should do lightly. And I do not think anyone should accuse them of wanting to lower safety standards for children.

Secondly, it is a far more complicated question than a simple speech on the floor can indicate. For example, those of us with small children know that when it comes to bedtime, normally what a lot of children sleep in are big, bulky cotton T-shirts. They like the feel of cotton, but that big bulk presents some dangers to them.

That was one of the concerns that has motivated the Consumer Product Safety Commission to take another look at these standards. If people are going to want to put cotton on their children to have a tighter fitting garment, which is part of where this arises.

So I want to share the concern of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BONILLA). This is not as simple as some would have us believe. And I hope as this thing moves forward through the legislative process, we can take a more careful look at it to truly make children safer because that has got to be the goal for all of us.

Mr. BONILLA. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I appreciate the comments of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY). I would also concur; my kids sleep in those baggy T-shirts as well.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I want to rise in favor of this amendment.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentlewoman from Connecticut.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is interesting to note that we just passed a major health reform bill in this body, managed care reform. The single biggest issue on the minds of the American people in this country and we did it without a hearing. Without one single hearing. The majority party would not allow any hearings on a major health care reform bill in this body.

This is an issue that has nothing to do with the issue of whether or not we have hearings. I will tell my colleagues what it has to do with, and I will quote, not my comments, but I will quote from Molly Ivins on June 27. This is a quote about the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BONILLA):

"Bonilla will move to strike DeLauro's amendment today. He told The Washington Post last week, 'I don't have a huge cotton constituency in my district, but my State does,' and added that the Texas drought has already taken a toll on cotton farmers. 'They came to me and explained this would place severe restrictions on what they could produce.'

"Excuse me—did I just hear someone say that we could bail out the cotton farmers by letting more little kids get burned to death every year?"

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I want to set the record straight on the position of Ann Brown, who was the chairperson of the Consumer Product Safety Commission at the time the rule change was done.

I have in my possession, and I will submit it at the appropriate time for the RECORD a letter from Ann Brown to my the gentlewoman from Connecticut, April 10, 1998, in which she says the following. It is addressed to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO):

"As you know, I share your views." The letter goes on to say, "in these circumstances, it appears the only remedy is legislative action to restore the previous rule." The previous rule, referring to the one that was in effect for 24 years. So, Ms. Brown's position is in support of our effort.

The second thing I would like to say is it is extraordinary, this commitment to regular order and procedure. This is the same bill that is rewriting the entire public housing policy of the United States of America through legislating on an appropriations bill. I would invite my colleagues who are so enraged by this departure from regular order to join those of us who are concerned about that.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentlewoman from Connecticut.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, let me make another point about the issue of hearings. The fact of the matter is when we hold hearings, we bring in new information, new ideas, in a process that goes before the committee to listen to.

This is a set of regulations that has been on the books for the last 25 years. It has worked. These standards have worked. Not according to Democrats or Republicans or the political people, but in fact according to the medical community, to fire marshals, to fire chiefs, people who work in burn units all over this country have banned together to say it is wrong to eliminate these standards. Why are we not listening?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I would speak to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO) by way of the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY). If we could, to kind of help work with the time of the day which is running, and as I think the points have been made very effectively, I think the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES) and I would be willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, on this side, we would accept the amendment.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentlemen.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 33 OFFERED BY MR. COBURN

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 33 offered by Mr. COBURN: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section preceding the short title) the following new sections:

SEC. . The amounts otherwise provided by this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available under the heading "DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT—FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION—FHA—MUTUAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE PROGRAM ACCOUNT" for non-overhead administrative expenses necessary to carry out the Mutual Mortgage Insurance guarantee and direct loan program, and increasing the amount made available for "DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS—VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION—MEDICAL CARE", by $199,999,999.

SEC. . The amounts otherwise provided by this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available under the heading "DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT—FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION—FHA—GENERAL AND SPECIAL RISK PROGRAM ACCOUNT" for non-overhead administrative expenses necessary to carry out the guaranteed and direct loan programs, and increasing the amount made available for "DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS—VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION—MEDICAL CARE", by $103,999,999.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, this is an amendment about fulfilling our obligations. This is an amendment about the government being truthful with our veterans. This is an amendment about supplying health care to veterans that is equal to what one can get in the private sector.

We are going to hear a whole lot of things as we discuss this amendment about where we are getting the money, how it is going to be affected. This past Saturday night, I had the pleasure and also the terrible, gut-wrenching remorse to see a very new movie called "Saving Private Ryan," and I want to tell my colleagues that for the first time in my life, I truly now am understanding what some of the veterans have been telling me for the last 4 years.

When we see the price paid by our veterans, the price that they have paid with loss of limb, with loss of health, with loss of life, we can do nothing less than to fulfill our obligation to those men and women of the commitment that we made for them.

This is a very simple amendment. It is not complicated. It takes money that was used for a mandatory program last year, and the last 7 years, and moves that money, which has now been moved from a mandatory spending account, to veterans health care. It still will not get us to the point that the Committee on Veterans' Affairs authorizes and states we should be spending on veterans health care.

When our veterans are not given what they have been promised in terms of health care, we will never in the future be able to recruit the men and women that we need to defend our country because we will not have a track record of fulfilling our commitments.

There is going to be 9.3 million veterans in the year 2000. That veteran population is aging severely. We will see a large number of the World War II veterans require hospitalization, both now and in increasing amounts over the next few years. There is going to be almost 3.5 million World War II veterans at that time. The Veterans Advisory Committee recommends that we increase spending minimally $250 million just to catch up to the point where we can meet minimum needs.

I want to tell my colleagues, the people that are on Federal Health Care Employment Benefit policies in this body do not have near the worry that our veterans have. We have written for ourselves, and all the rest of the Federal employees, a health care plan that is comparable to none. It is better than. But we have not given that same thing to our veterans.

To not supply the minimal needs as required and recognized by the authorizing committee is inappropriate and it is also unpatriotic and it fails to recognize the tremendous sacrifices that have been paid.

Under law, veterans centers are mandated, prosthetic spinal cord clinics, chronic care clinics, blind rehabilitation, which we are not funding adequately that which has been mandated. We are cutting services at every hospital. We are decreasing the quality of care by increasing the quantity of patients seen, and giving tertiary providers and secondary providers their care. Not that it is substandard in the regular community, but it is less than what they were promised.

Just to keep up with fiscal year 1998 level services, spending needs to be increased by $681 million over last year just to account for health care cost inflation and increases.

What this bill does is move $304 million. It moves it from the administration, a nonoverhead administrative account, into veterans health care.

As Members are asked to vote for this amendment, the real question that they are going to have to ask themselves is do they think we ought to be absorbing the administrative overhead of HUD programs in the mandatory accounts or can we and dare we continue to do and manage HUD the way we have in the past, and in fact do what we are obligated to do for our veterans?

Mr. Chairman, with that, I yield back, noting that I would like to hear from the gentleman from California (Chairman LEWIS) on this amendment.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise very reluctantly in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is very, very important for the House to know and to revisit the reality that veterans programs, especially veterans' medical care programs, have very broadly-based, bipartisan, almost nonpartisan support within the House. Of all the accounts in this very complex bill where we have consistently appropriated dollars above and beyond the President's request, it is the veterans' accounts. Of all the accounts, we have not reduced veterans programs. This account has received that support.

We worked, and I would appreciate the gentleman listening to this, we worked very closely with the veterans service organizations regarding the medical care accounts. But let me say to my colleague, I personally have a very strong disagreement with many of those organizations.

While I usually join hands with them in supporting additional funding for veterans programs, all too often I cannot get them to join me to go out to the hospitals where veterans are treated and make certain those monies are being spent in a fashion that assures that our veterans are treated as human beings, not as people with a number on their forehead.

So the VA has a lot of work to do there. I hope that my colleague would assist me with communicating that to our VSOs and make sure the dollars we are spending are being used in a maximum way for the positive benefit of all veterans being served.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LEWIS of California. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, I could not agree with the gentleman. As a matter of fact, in my district we have gone through a transition in a veterans hospital, Muskogee Veterans Hospital, in which we have seen a redirection in the change. But that does not negate the fact that there is not enough dollars to meet the obligations. Yes, we have increased it, but we have not increased it to what we need to meet the obligations for our veterans. I would love to give the gentleman some examples.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, let me go back to my point. The gentleman, I know, has many points that he will make. But indeed, within this bill there is a great variety and mix of accounts that we have tried to balance.

I think most of our colleagues understand that one of the issues that has floated around here all year long and has raised a lot of controversy involves FHA loan limitations. It happens that the gentleman has decided to take funding that HUD uses to administer those programs.

Literally the progress we made earlier in the year on that FHA issue would be undermined, dramatically undermined by the gentleman's amendment. Whether we like it or not, those funds have to be administered in the fashion that is outlined in this bill or the programs will not be administered. Indeed, it has been suggested that this funding is not included on the Senate side and thereby is not needed. The reality that funds are not on the Senate side is exactly why they are needed at this point within this bill.

So while I understand and appreciate the gentleman's circumstance, there is many an account in this bill that I would love to zero to put more money in veterans programs. In the past, I have had some difficulty zeroing programs where I have proposed that we do exactly what the gentleman is talking about.

This is a fairly balanced bill. So reluctantly, as I have suggested, I would resist the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Coburn amendment. It would cut administrative funds available to the FHA by more than one-third, thereby crippling its operations.

I am in favor of providing additional funds for veterans health care, if a way can be found to do this. However, I cannot support increasing funds for the Department of Veterans Affairs at the price of virtually shutting down the Federal Housing Administration. The FHA and its programs are well known to most of the Members. The largest FHA program is single family mortgage insurance, what most of us simply know as FHA mortgages.

This program has made homeownership affordable for literally millions of American families, especially first-time home buyers, families with modest incomes, minorities, women and residents of inner cities. Other major FHA programs provide major insurance or other forms of credit for multifamily apartment construction, home repair, hospitals, nursing homes and many other purposes.

While there might be disagreements about the details of some of the FHA's programs, few of us, if any, advocate shutting down or crippling the FHA. Yet that is exactly what the Coburn amendment threatens to do.

In our bill we provide four line item appropriations for the administrative costs of the FHA. The Coburn amendment essentially eliminates the appropriations for two of these line items, leaving just one dollar in each of the accounts. That is a cut of $306 million, a reduction of 36 percent in the FHA administrative funds provided by the bill.

The two particular line items that the Coburn amendment virtually eliminates provide funds for contracting. This includes the contracts to operate and maintain all of the FHA's basic computer and data processing systems, including systems for accounting, processing claims, collecting premiums, managing assets and the like. Other contracts funded through these appropriations cover things like auditing, property appraisals, loan management. These are not just incidentals of some kind of bureaucratic overhead. Rather, they are all core functions for a credit program like the FHA.

Even if funds could be shifted from the FHA's two other line items to cover these costs, then things covered by other appropriations would be left unfunded.

However we slice it, I do not see how the FHA can function with a 36 percent cut in its budget for operations and administration.

I would hope that we would defeat the Coburn amendment.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Let me say, first of all, I want to state that I do appreciate what the chairman of this committee has done over the years. I want to also thank the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. STUMP) for what he has done for the Committee on Veterans' Affairs and for all the men and women on the Committee on Veterans' Affairs and also on the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies, because we can trace over the past 3 or 4 years the budgets that have come out of this House and also the budgets that have come out of the administration and see that their efforts have been truly heroic.

Regrettably, in my opinion, this administration has continued to slash veterans funding too much. All we have to look at for evidence of that is the balanced budget deal that was passed back in 1997. The only two areas where real spending cuts took place, I am talking real cuts, not freezes, not increases that people in Washington called spending cuts, the only two areas where there were real cuts were in defense dollars that affected military retirees' medical accounts and also in the veterans area where there was a $3 billion cut. Talk about shameful, that is shameful. And certainly I do not stand here in the well of this House and say that has any reflection on either the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) or the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. STUMP) or the members on those respective committees. In fact, I want to thank them on behalf of all of the veterans in my district for the great fight that they have put forward.

However, I do support this amendment, the Coburn amendment. I do that because I have more military retirees, which this does not affect, and veterans in my area, and I have seen from the past 3 or 4 years the declining medical state of those people in my district. I have no other choice but to be here.

I have a brief question to ask the gentleman from Oklahoma regarding a statement that was said over here. We heard from the ranking member that somehow the FHA would be crippled if the gentleman's amendment passed. That is something I do not want to do. I would like some clarification. It is my understanding that this bill actually increases FHA funding by 50 percent. Could the gentleman enlighten me on that matter?

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, this bill, under current FHA operation, increases FHA administration by 50 percent over what it was last year in terms of the dollars.

Number two, this is into an account called nonoverhead administrative expenses. It is a new provision. It was not in there last year. Neither the committee report nor the actual text of the bill provides any explanation as to what this money will be used for or why FHA needs more than a 50 percent increase in funds for administrative and overhead expenses. While the President requested this money, there is no explanation other than to say that the result of FHA correcting the allocation of administrative expenses among its budgetary accounts.

Finally the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, which has jurisdiction over FHA, made no mention of these nonadministrative overhead expenses in their review and their view on the fiscal year 1999 budget request. HUD claims they need this money to keep the Federal Credit Reform Act. For the past 7 years, FHA has used mandatory spending to meet these costs. Now OMB tells them they need discretionary funds to meet these costs or they need statutory language so that they can continue to use mandatory money.

This amendment will allow the conference to add the language, as the Senate seems to intend on doing, by not appropriating money for this account.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman and will be supporting his amendment. Again, I want to say I understand the extremely difficult balancing act the chairman of this committee undertakes and I certainly, despite supporting this amendment, I want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), and I also want to thank the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. Stump) for all the work they have done on behalf of the veterans in my district.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I would like to ask the gentleman from California a number of questions, if he would not mind responding.

I wonder if the gentleman would be willing to answer a number of questions about how the FHA fund works. It has just been alleged that the FHA funding level for administrative purposes is 50 percent above last year's level. Is it not true that in the past, FHA funded these operations simply by taking their own funds and using them without a congressional appropriation? And is it not true that OMB said that they could no longer do that, that they could only perform those functions if they actually got an appropriation from Congress? And is it not, therefore, a fact that there is no real increase whatsoever in the dollar level that is available to FHA for these purposes?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is correct. Indeed, this is the first year that we will have had this kind of account within our bill to my knowledge.

Mr. OBEY. So there is no increase in the amount of money available to the FHA for these administrative purposes?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I was going to ask the question, where these numbers came from. Frankly, I did not want to embarrass anybody.

Mr. OBEY. Let me also then ask the gentleman, is it not true that the effect of this amendment goes to the services which are contracted for by FHA?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, that is correct.

Mr. OBEY. And is it not true that those services are, for instance, appraisals that FHA is required to obtain and computer services, without which FHA could not function and could not cut checks that they are supposed to cut?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is correct. As I said in my opening remarks regarding this amendment, it concerns me that this cut could undermine all the work we have been doing all year long on FHA accounts.

Mr. OBEY. So that is why the gentleman from California said, in essence, that if this amendment is passed, it would shut down the ability of the FHA to function without these services to American homeowners.

Mr. LEWIS of California. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. RYUN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, first of all I want to thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for offering this amendment. I want to stand and speak in strong support of it.

I think it is very important at this point that we restore confidence in this country's commitment to our veterans. Currently our military is in its 14th year of declining budgets. That means benefits are being cut for our current active duty men and women who serve this country. This discourages our young men and women who are involved in the service.

I think it is very important that we send a very positive message to them, to our current active military as well as our veterans, that we will make good on our commitment to them. And this is an opportunity to ensure that those benefits will be there and that we will continue to work to fulfill those commitments.

I recognize that this is difficult and the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. STUMP) have worked very hard, but I want to thank the gentleman from Oklahoma for offering this amendment.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RYUN. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, I would just like to make a couple of points.

Number one, I do appreciate the chairman's work for veterans. This amendment is not intended to imply in any way that his concern and care for veterans and that his responsibility for increasing veteran spending in the last 4 years is anything less than stellar.

I think the assumption made by the gentleman from Wisconsin that if this money is not in there that everything is going to shut down is not an accurate assumption.

□ 1445

As a matter of fact, that assumption would mean to say that the Senate intends to shut down HUD and FHA loans because they have put no money in for this amendment.

The other thing that I would want to make sure that the Members are aware of, that the American Legion, the Order of Purple Heart and the Veterans of Foreign Wars adamantly and fully support this amendment. It will in fact move us in a direction of meeting the obligations that we are obligated and morally bound to fulfill.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RYUN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I know the gentleman did not mean to even suggest that the Senate would know more about the process than we might, but this is the first time this year that we have had this kind of responsibility in our bill. I must say that the other body seemed to be unaware of this need. Indeed, it would have a significant impact upon this administration. It is a new ball game, so I can understand misunderstanding, even on the part of the Senate. And possibly there is some misunderstanding here within the House as well.

Mr. SHADEGG. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I too would like to join the others in this Chamber complimenting both the majority and the minority in drafting this bill, but I rise in very strong support of the gentleman's amendment.

Let me try to clarify the issue with regard to HUD funding. It is true that these HUD funds have in the past come from a different account. Indeed, for the past 7 years, FHA has used mandatory spending to meet these costs. But the OMB put out a report saying that in the future, one of two things would have to happen: Either, the OMB said, you must find discretionary funds to meet these costs, or you need a statutory change in language to continue to use the mandatory funding. The point being that while the gentleman argues there is no funding increase, in point of fact there has been no funding cut anywhere else; and if we appropriate this 50 percent increase in discretionary funding, we will in fact be spending more money. It does not have to happen. We can in fact fix the statutory language, avoid a 50 percent increase in HUD funding simply by changing the statute, and fund a cause that is extremely important.

So having talked about the fact that we do not need to increase spending by 50 percent, we do not need to spend an additional $304 million on non-overhead expenditures, administrative expenditures at FHA, we can continue the practice in the past with a mere statutory change in the language, I want to talk about why using this fund for VA health care is important.

I recently visited the VA hospital in Phoenix, Arizona. I was embarrassed to walk through that facility. In the southwestern United States, we face a difficult problem. Many of our Nation's veterans are retiring to the Sunbelt, to the South and the Southwest where it is warmer and they want to spend their final years. That has put an incredible burden on our veterans hospitals. As my colleague has pointed out, we are underfunding our commitment to our veterans. This bill is a painless way to add $304 million critically needed to those VA health services. It is important that we step up to the plate.

All my life I have been kind of a fan and an aficionado of D-Day and the sacrifices that were made there. We all know that in this Capitol just a few days ago, a sacrifice was made to protect the people in this building. Our veterans have all made a sacrifice in their lives. With all due respect to the chairman of the committee and the ranking member, the gentleman's amendment will enable us to honor our commitment to provide health care to our veterans without increasing the spending at FHA simply by fixing the problem at FHA that OMB identified in a very simple administrative way. It does appear to be the same method that the Senate plans to use. If I can, I urge my colleagues, in the strongest possible terms, to join me and to join the gentleman in supporting this amendment and in honoring our commitment to America's veterans and to the health care needs that they have.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I would just like to follow up on that. Our VA hospitals are important. In spite of a few of them maybe being bad, I believe that they are doing better, doing a better job and being more responsible. I can cite the Dallas VA as an example of that. So I do not think that we need to wait to increase funding for our veterans. Our veterans are probably our most important product here in this country, and it is time we supported them fully.

I think it is important that not only all the veterans organizations support this amendment but our Conservative Action Team also on this side supports it. I think $304 million that we have been discussing back and forth here is kind of one of those nebulous things that nobody has really put their finger on to say it is really needed. If it was not there last year, why do we need it this year, and they can waive the rules so that it can operate under mandatory funding. Apparently that is what our Senate did.

I would encourage us to help our veterans. It is an aging population, as has been stated before. Our age is going to peak in the year 2000. We need to have more money in that system. The Committee on Veterans' Affairs recommended about $452 million above the House level. This $300 million will start to make our veterans well. I encourage all Members to vote for the Coburn amendment.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES).

Mr. STOKES. I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

I would ask the maker of the amendment, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN), the gentleman sent out a Dear Colleague letter. In his letter, he makes reference to the fact that they need statutory language so that they can continue to use mandatory money.

Does the gentleman agree with me that under his language, that is, if we use mandatory language, that that in effect is also spending for which the committee would be charged and that if we are charged with it, we will go over the 302(b) allocation?

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. That is right. What we are saying is if we write that statutory language, we will continue to take administrative expenses from the mandatory side rather than from the discretionary side. That is how you have been doing it the last 7 years.

Mr. STOKES. If I can bring this to the attention of the gentleman, "Substantive changes to or restrictions on entitlement law or other mandatory spending law in appropriations laws will be scored against the Appropriations Committee's section 302(b) allocations in the House and the Senate."

Is the gentleman aware of that provision of the law?

Mr. COBURN. Yes, I am, and I still would tell him that I will vote for a priority for our veterans over the administrative overhead of HUD every day.

Mr. STOKES. Then the gentleman does agree that we would exceed our 302(b) allocation by using the mandatory language.

Mr. COBURN. Mandatory spending does not count on 302(b) allocations.

Mr. STOKES. I just read the gentleman the law.

Mr. COBURN. I understand. But mandatory spending is not appointed against 302(b) allocations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. I would like to simply point out that there is no statutory authority for the agency to continue to do this through mandatory spending. If there were, then they would simply be spending the same amount of dollars in mandatory spending as they are spending through appropriated accounts.

Mr. COBURN. Absolutely.

Mr. OBEY. And so you would not be saving one dime. You would simply be adding in the real world as opposed to the green eyeshade accounting world, you would simply be adding more money to the budget. What you are suggesting is that there is a way that we can sneak around the budget limits without getting caught, and I thought that the CATs were opposed to stuff like that.

Mr. COBURN. First of all, I am not stating that a legislative waiver is necessarily the best answer. I know that may be the temptation of us as a body, and in fact we may need to do that. What I am saying is that there is a lack of available discretionary funds made between the two bodies. What the explanation for that is, I do not know. But the question that I would have is why does the CBO score a legislative waiver as a cost? CBO scores it as a cost because it is an actual change in the law. It is not, however, a change in practice.

Mr. OBEY. The fact is I cannot get into the head of OMB or anybody else around here. All I know is that we have a choice. The choice is whether or not we are going to tell Members that things are so that are not so. The fact is, Members are being told by your side that this will not shut down FHA. The fact is absent new statutory authority, it most certainly will. And your amendment will in fact cripple the ability of FHA to deliver housing to people in this country. Now, that is a fact, whether you admit it or not.

Mr. COBURN. If the gentleman will yield further, I would not have that interpretation of the facts, especially not in that absolute manner. I would also say, and I would reemphasize again, if this causes heartburn: "So be it". Our veterans are underfunded.

Mr. OBEY. I would suggest what you are saying is if this causes heartburn to all of the people who we supposedly helped in the Neumann amendment last week on FHA housing, you are saying: "So be it." I do not think you ought to treat homeowners that way, either; certainly not struggling working people who need FHA to get access to the housing market.

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS).

Mr. LEWIS of California. I appreciate the gentlewoman yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is important for the body to know that while there may be some confusion about the impact of this amendment, and it is understandable because it is a new responsibility in terms of language that we have in this bill, it nonetheless would have a huge impact upon the administration of FHA programs and would thereby undermine that work that we are all involved in. I think there are some 250 Members who coauthored that effort we made a couple of weeks ago, and this would undermine much of what we did there. So it is important that we not, because we have a wish list, to take money from so-called easy housing programs and move it somewhere else. This is a very delicately balanced bill. I would urge the Members not to undo that FHA program they worked so hard for with this amendment but find some other way to do this.

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. NEUMANN).

Mr. NEUMANN. I would just like to clarify the funding and what exactly happens with this funding, to the best of my understanding. This is currently an appropriated amount of money, which means it is under the 302(b) allocation. If we were to move it back into mandatory and we were to authorize the spending under the mandatory portion of the budget, we would have a pay-go problem. Because pay-go says if you are going to start a new mandatory spending program, you either have to raise taxes or decrease a mandatory spending program elsewhere.

My only intent here is to make sure that we understand what the funding implications are. Certainly if they had been spending this money in the mandatory portion of this program, the program should have been authorized and they had no business spending it before.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. CHENOWETH. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. First of all, they are already spending this money, so it is offset. It is already being spent.

Mr. NEUMANN. In the 302(b).

Mr. COBURN. Yes. Under mandatory spending. It is already being spent. The money is being spent. Otherwise, we would not have had the administration in the last year.

I would just ask to make one additional point. Given all that technically, we have not met our commitments to our veterans. There is no need for a 50 percent increase in the funding on this bill, and we need to move it to the veterans. If there is a problem with that, then we need to prioritize somewhere else so that we meet what we need to do for our veterans.

Mrs. CHENOWETH. Reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for his explanation.

My concern is, is just keeping promises. The fact is, we have over $4 billion in new spending on HUD and EPA and CEQ, but we are not expending one new, thin dime in veterans' health care. The fact is that there will be about 3,413,000 new veteran claimants this year. The fact is that World War II veterans are now old, they are aged, they are infirm, they are frightened, they feel alone, and now we are not keeping our promise because we have only set aside about $5,000 per year for each one of those veterans. That is not enough. They were willing to give their last full measure on the battlefield for us, and they won for us. We made a deal with them, and I think we better keep it.

Theodore Roosevelt, our President, said that a man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country is good enough to expect a square deal will be given to him when he gets home.

Mr. Chairman, I feel very strongly about that, and I believe that every veteran in this great Nation recognizes the need that he must fulfill in fighting for his country, and we need to recognize the need of our veterans.

My parents, I lost both of them recently, and even with old age people do feel alone and frightened, and can we do that to our veterans now, those men who fought with able, fit, young bodies and went overseas and fought the good fight for us so that we would be able to stand here and be able to speak freely?

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to commend the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) for his efforts to encourage others to vote with him. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) are probably right when they say the way he goes about it is flawed. Guess what? We do lots of flawed things around here. We start off every day by waiving the rules that govern this body, every single day, Mr. Chairman, and say we got these rules, but they do not count; let us throw them out. The question is if we are going to do that for everything else, how about just once doing it for the folks who deserve it the most?

There is really only one group of Americans who were promised health care, and that is our veterans. Medicare and Medicaid did not come along until the glory years of America in the 1960s when we had more money than sense. We now spend about $260 billion a year on Medicare and Medicaid. We spend about 40 on veterans. Those folks got it just because they exist. Now, veterans earned it.

So even if what the gentleman is doing is flawed, that is why we have a conference committee to make it fit within the rules.

As my colleagues know, we are talking, some people here in this body, not me, are talking about giving back a hundred billion dollars in tax breaks. But doggone, if we can find the money to give their wealthy contributors a tax break, how about us finding the money to help those people who are now too old to help themselves, who go to the veterans hospital because they are short on cash, who go there because it gives them the chance to relive the greatest days of their lives, the most horrible and the greatest days of their lives all at once?

And if my colleagues ever want a reason to do this, I would encourage them to read a one-page article in Newsweek 2 weeks ago, written by Stephen Ambrose, called "The Kids Who Saved the World." They did not question; they did it for 50 bucks a month. It was not for the benefits, it was not for free health care. They did it because it was the right thing to do.

We have a chance to do the right thing. We can find a million technical reasons why we should not help our veterans. But, my colleagues, know what? People in this country were not promised cheap home loans. People in this country were not promised free medical care if they served their country. Let us keep the promise that we made and then worry about those other things that are nice if we can afford them.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I was not going to speak on this until I heard the debate, and I have the greatest respect for the ranking minority member, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES), and my colleague from California (Mr. LEWIS). But I tell my colleagues this is about priorities and it is about promises.

The priority: If I was going to vote for health care for veterans or housing, I have no question where my priority lies. It is health care for our veterans.

Our Capitol Police, in the news right now; if I was going to support either their health care or the housing, I would choose their health care for themselves and their families.

I was the original offeror of subvention, not myself, but the veterans in San Diego, California, and it is a Band-Aid. TriCare is a Band-Aid for the promises that we made. The original bill of the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS) and myself gave full funding to FEHBP. One can take a trash collector at a military base for the Pentagon, or a secretary, and they get the benefits of FEHBP. But someone who has gone over and fought our wars or their families, they do not get it. And that is the real answer that we need to do and take a look for our veterans, and take a look at it, and this is a very divisive issue, and it should not be.

But I read the article by Mr. Ambrose, "Kids Who Saved the World." I would recommend it. It is one of the best articles that one could read. And I would say to my friends that our active duty forces today, we are only retaining 24 percent of them because our operation tempo is 300 percent above what it was during the Cold War or Vietnam.

We are killing our military. It is in the worst shape I have ever seen it. These people are going to become veterans, and we are going to deny them health care? I do not think so.

I rise in strong support of the gentleman's amendment, and I ask for its passage.

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment. With all due respect to my colleagues, this is not necessarily about the choice between housing for the American people and veterans, and if we were going to use that as a yardstick, we could go back to when we passed the highway bill, and I did not hear a lot of my colleagues or did not see a lot of my colleagues voting against the highway bill.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BENTSEN. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, the author of this amendment was in vocal opposition to the highway bill.

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate that, but nonetheless we have heard a number of colleagues say we have to deal with priorities here. Well, we seem to lose those priorities when it came down to concrete and cement and all that we were going to do.

Now there are issues related to the highway bill, budget and things like that. But here is the problem as I see it with this particular amendment: I appreciate what the gentleman from Oklahoma is trying to achieve with respect to veterans health care. However I am afraid that his amendment unintentionally, I believe, would tamper with what is otherwise a very successful Federal housing program and put the government at greater risk and, thus, the taxpayers at greater risk of default.

Now it is my understanding that the reason why the discretionary appropriation is in here is part of FHA's responsibility to meet the Fair Credit Reform Act of, I think, 1990 which requires all government credit-type agencies, including FHA where we guarantee mortgage loans that are outstanding, that we have adequate reserves and adequate servicing and management of those portfolios. To not allow the FHA by taking away their funds to adequately manage the single family mortgage portfolio that they have would ultimately put at risk the triple-A-triple-A credit standard of that portfolio. So in the long run, it would affect the borrowing cost of the American people who are eligible for the FHA loans, and I am not sure that any Member wants to be involved with raising the borrowing cost in that regard.

Second of all, it very well could affect the portfolio quality if we do not give the FHA the ability to move, foreclose, and liquidate real estate owned. We do not want to have the government owning a lot of property that is not bringing an income and putting at risk the credit portfolio, and that also would affect the credit quality but ultimately could affect the taxpayers where we might have to put out more money to address shortfalls in the portfolio.

So while I applaud the gentleman for trying to reach out to the veterans and give them more funding, this amendment is the wrong way to go because we are going to potentially mess up what is otherwise a well-run program that meets its obligations and thus has achieved the credit rating that lowers the interest cost to the people who can benefit in it.

So I would urge my colleagues, as one who came to this House from working in the mortgage industry, and I have looked at a lot of FHA credits over time, I do not think we want to tamper with a good thing, and this amendment tampers with a good thing, and I would urge my colleagues to oppose the amendment.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I will not take the 5 minutes. I have had discussions with my colleagues, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES) and others on the other side, and with a voice vote it is our intention to accept that amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BERMAN

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BERMAN:

At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. 425. None of the funds made available in this Act (including amounts made available for salaries and expenses) may be used by the Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency to take any action—

(1) to permit Kaiser Permanente to transfer any of the funds made available to the Kaiser Permanente hospital in Panorama City, California, under the Seismic Hazard Mitigation Program for Hospitals (including funds made available before October 1, 1998) to any other facility; or

(2) to permit Kaiser Permanente to use any of the funds described in paragraph (1) to relocate the hospital to a site that is located more than 3 miles from the current site of the hospital.

If, before October 1, 1998, the Director takes an action described in paragraph (1) or (2), the Director shall rescind the action.

Mr. BERMAN (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, my amendment, which I am showing both to the chair and ranking members of this subcommittee, would simply ensure that certain FEMA disaster funds related to the 1994 Northridge earthquake are used in a fair and appropriate manner. After the quake and at the behest of a great deal of effort by the gentleman from California, the chairman of the subcommittee, FEMA created the Seismic Hazard Mitigation Program for hospitals, a program which was intended to rebuild and improve seismic performance of damaged hospitals. FEMA allocated 68 million under this program to the Kaiser Permanente Hospital in Panorama City which provides emergency room services and inpatient care for thousands of families.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BERMAN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. My colleagues and I discussed this in some depth, and I think the House, when they read it, will understand it.

I am ready to accept the amendment if my colleague from Cleveland is so inclined.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BERMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. STOKES. We also are agreeable to accepting the amendment.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlemen, and, reclaiming my time, I am ready to accept their acceptance and to stop my talking.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. BERMAN).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. NEUMANN

Mr. NEUMANN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. NEUMANN:

At the end of Title IV, insert the following:

SEC. . None of the funds made in this Act may be used for researching methods to reduce methane emissions from cows, sheep or any other ruminant livestock.

Mr. NEUMANN. Mr. Chairman, about a month, month-and-a-half ago, I brought some information to this body regarding an audit of the Federal Government, and we started going through some of the things that were in that audit, and it got to the point where people were laughing about the things, and they would have been funny had they not been true; when we found things like the Navy could not find 21 out of 79 ships they went looking for.

The amendment I bring here today falls into that category.

I would like to see some of our colleagues explain to their constituents back home exactly why it is that we are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars of the taxpayers' money every year to study cow belching and cow gas and those other words for this that would make it even more humorous.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NEUMANN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I am having a bit of difficulty swallowing all of this, and, as a result of that, I read the amendment carefully and I believe my colleague and I are ready to accept the gentleman's amendment.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NEUMANN. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, I am having difficulty swallowing it, too, but I also agree to accept it.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. NEUMANN).

The amendment was agreed to.

☐ 1515

AMENDMENT NO. 22 OFFERED BY MR. HINCHEY

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 22 offered by Mr. HINCHEY: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. 425. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Department of Veterans Affairs to implement or administer the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation system.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, the Veterans' Equitable Resource Allocation system, known as VERA, may have started out with good intentions. The purpose was to shift funds in accord with shifts in veterans' populations, and more specifically, with veterans' needs.

If there are more veterans needing health care services in Florida today than there were 20 years ago, and we know that that is true, then Florida should be getting a larger share of the VA health budget than it received previously. That is common sense, and I have no argument with that principle.

But I do have an argument with the actual plan for reallocation, the VERA plan, and with its consequences. Many of us were very disturbed in January of 1997 when the VA first gave us figures about how much would be cut from its health care spending in our regions to fit the VERA plan.

We had been hearing from our veterans that the quality of care was not what it ought to be in many places, and we were concerned that these new cuts would hurt our veterans even more.

The VA assured us that quality of care would not decline. Most of the reductions had already taken place, we were told. Any further reduction would be covered by improvements and efficiency.

Every time we raised a question about the VERA model, for example, did it take into account higher costs in our region, did it take into account the fact that our facilities are old and in need of repair or replacement, each time we were assured that it did and the model was perfect. It was not.

The decline in patient care at one of the hospitals that serves veterans in my area was swift and dramatic. Myself and my colleagues in the area asked for a review by the Inspector General at the Veterans Administration, and the report was horrifying. It documented sharp increases in deficient care, understaffing, and important professional categories, poor maintenance of facilities.

It found, in fact, that there was a 50 percent increase in the rate of patients who died, who had received poor or marginal care in the 6 months after VERA formally took effect, a 50 percent increase in mortality rates. Some veterans told me they wept when they read the report.

It was undeniable that these problems were attributable to the VERA cuts. To mention just one example, professional staff were offered buyouts to get the budget into line with the VERA requirements. But no one had planned how to replace them or to reassign those who stayed.

In February, we were given more bad news. What we were told about the VERA cuts had not been accurate. We were going to have to absorb another $120 million in cuts over the next 2 years. How are we going to do that, we asked, when we have just documented the problems in our region? We have not received an answer to how that is going to be done.

I have just learned that the Veterans Administration is planning another round of cuts under VERA that will affect 11 regions. The regions facing cuts are these, Boston headquarters serving Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts. They will receive $38.8 million in cuts. The Albany area, serving upstate New York cut $12 million. The New York City metropolitan area, serving lower New York and Newark, New Jersey cut $48 million. Pittsburgh, serving Pennsylvania, Delaware, part of West Virginia cut $3 million. Durham, serving North Carolina, part of West Virginia and Virginia cut $1 million. Nashville, serving Tennessee, part of West Virginia and Kentucky cut $12 million. Chicago, serving part of Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin cut $28 million. Kansas City, serving Kansas, Missouri, part of Illinois cut $20 million. Dallas, serving Texas, except for Houston, cut $10.5 million. Denver, serving Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, and Montana cut $13 million. And Long Beach, serving California and Nevada cut $23 million.

The message of my amendment is simple. VERA is not equitable. It has failed. It may not have failed veterans all over the country yet, but it has clearly failed veterans in many regions and will be failing more instantly.

My amendment would cut off funding for implementation of VERA. It would force the VA to go back to the drawing boards and develop a system that really would treat all veterans equitably.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. HINCHEY was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, right now our veterans are being damaged by a faulty computer model. We would like to free them from the computer model and see a system based on the realities.

There will be some people who may come to the floor opposing this amendment. They may say that the system is working. They may say that it is helping veterans in some parts of the country. That may be true, but, increasingly, it is hurting more and more veterans, not just in metropolitan areas but all across the country. From coast to coast, veterans are being affected negatively by these cuts.

I ask my colleagues to join me in adopting this amendment so that we can get a sensible approach to the need to finance the health care needs for veterans all across the country.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak in opposition of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, as I said, I do rise in strong opposition to the amendment which would prohibit the use of VA funds to further implement the Veterans' Equitable, and I emphasize that word equitable, Resource Allocation system.

VERA, as it is called, corrects historic geographic imbalances in funding for VA health care services and ensures equitable access to care for all veterans. Long ago, our Nation made a commitment to care for the brave men and women who fought the battles to keep America free. These are our Nation's veterans. Please take note when I say "our Nation's veterans." They are not Florida's veterans or Arizona's veterans or New York's veterans. They are our veterans, and we, as a Nation, have a collective responsibility to honor the commitment that we made to them.

When they volunteered to fight for America's freedom, no one asked these veterans what part of the country they came from. It simply did not matter. Unfortunately, when they came home, veterans found out that where they live matters a great deal. Until the passage of VERA, a veteran's ability to access the VA health care system literally depended upon where he or she happened to live.

Since coming to Congress, I have heard from many, many veterans who were denied care at Florida VA medical facilities. In many instances, these veterans have been receiving care at their local VA medical center. However, once they moved to Florida, the VA was forced to turn them away because the facilities in our State simply did not have the resources to meet the high demand for care.

This lack of adequate resources, Mr. Chairman, is further compounded in the winter months when Florida veterans are literally crowded out of the system by individuals who travel south to enjoy our warm water.

It is hard for my veterans to understand how they can lose their VA health care simply by moving to another part of the country or because a veteran from a different state is using our VA facilities.

Congress enacted VERA for a very simple reason: equity. No matter where they live or what circumstances they face, all veterans deserve to have equal access to quality health care.

Since VERA's implementation, the Florida Veterans' Integrated Services

Network, VISN, which includes Puerto Rico, I might add, has treated approximately 35,000 more Category A veterans. These are service-connected and low-income veterans who would not have had access to VA medical care without VERA.

The Florida and Puerto Rico network estimates it will treat a total of 280,000 veterans by the end fiscal year of 1998. The Florida network has also opened nine new community based outpatient clinics in the past 2 years. It plans to open three more clinics by the end of the fiscal year. None of this could have happened without VERA.

The failure to move forward with an improved and fair funding allocation system would mean that the VA would miss a unique opportunity to revitalize its way of doing business. The negative impact would be felt most by veterans who would not be treated in areas that are currently underfunded.

Failing to implement VERA will waste taxpayers' dollars because a return to the funding practices of the past will mean that some VA facilities will receive more money per veteran than others to provide essentially the same care.

The author of this amendment argues that veterans of New York are not being treated equitably. The VERA system already takes regional differences into account by making adjustments for labor costs, differences in patient mix, and differing levels of support for research and education.

Under VERA, the VA facilities in the metropolitan New York area are receiving an average of $5,659 per veteran patient. This means that these facilities receive an average payment for each patient that is 27 percent higher than the national average.

I ask, how is this inequitable? If the Hinchey amendment passes, continued funding imbalances will result in unequal access to VA health care for veterans in different parts of the country.

VERA ensures that veterans across the country have equal access to VA health care and that tax dollars are wisely spent. I urge my colleagues to vote against the Hinchey amendment.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Hinchey amendment to prohibit funding for the Department of Veterans Affairs misguided VERA plan.

The VERA plan will take scarce resources away from the veterans in my district and other areas of the northeast based on flawed data about veteran populations around the country. The veterans who use the VA health care system in New York deserve better than the VERA plan gives them.

Each year, about 150,000 veterans use the eight VA facilities in the New York metropolitan region. These veterans have come to rely on the excellent services provided by these facilities but the cuts in these services called for in the VERA plan will be disastrous.

Since the implementation of VERA began, I have received reports from many veterans in my district of diminished quality of care at the VA medical centers. In fact, the VA's Office of the Medical Inspector investigated the Hudson Valley VA hospitals and found more than 150 violations of health and safety rules at those hospitals alone. It is not a coincidence that these violations came at a time when these hospitals were trying to cut costs to comply with VERA, and the situation is about to get worse.

When I joined some of my colleagues in a meeting with VA officials about VERA implementation several months ago, the reports from the VA were alarming. Under Secretary for Health Kenneth Kizer told us that under the current budget the VA will hit a brick wall in its ability to provide services to the veterans community in my region, and James Farsetta, the director of Network 3, which serves my constituents, said his network would, quote, be in trouble soon under the current VERA plan.

Mr. Chairman, I understand the need to provide services to growing veterans populations in other regions of the country but that must not be done on the backs of New York's veterans.

A recent assessment of the VERA plan by Price Waterhouse highlighted a major flaw in the fundamental assumptions of the plan. The report stated that, quote, basing resource allocation on patient volume is only an interim solution because patient volume indicates which veterans the VHA, Veterans Health Administration, is serving; not which veterans have the highest health care needs. This is especially relevant to the New York region, which has the highest proportion of specialty care veterans in the country.

Mr. Chairman, we cannot turn our backs on New York's proud veterans, but that is exactly what will happen if we allow the VERA plan to go forward. I urge my colleagues to protect our veterans by supporting the Hinchey amendment.

Mr. NETHERCUTT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite of number words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise very strongly in opposition to this amendment, and I think that my colleagues need to understand really what it does and what this amendment seeks to do as it relates to veterans health care.

The VERA system was mandated by legislation passed into law in the 104th Congress. It is strongly supported by the Veterans Administration. In the second half of fiscal year 1997, the VA began implementing the VERA system, the Veteran Equitable Resource Allocation system.

This allocates health care resources according to the numbers of veterans served in each veteran's integrated service network, VISN, in the country. Historically, funding for the VA flowed into hospitals in the east where veterans were originally concentrated. Each year, this funding was increased, even as veterans began to migrate away from these regions. Over time, a serious mismatch developed between numbers of veterans needing care and the number that the system was capable of serving.

VERA corrects this divergence of linking funding within each visit to the actual population served.

What is happening now, Mr. Chairman, is that veterans are moving south and they are moving west, but yet those who support this amendment want to keep the money that supports those veterans in the areas from which veterans are leaving and not give the resources to the areas to which the veteran population is going.

The gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY), in support of his argument, has argued that the current allocation is not equitable for the Northeast; but, simply stated, this VERA formula is straightforward. It does not allow the inequities that existed in the old system. It is an equitable system. The system matches workloads with annual allocations. It takes into account numbers of basic and special care veterans, national price and wage differences in education and equipment differences.

Now, it may well be that VISN number 3 is having difficulty adopting to the VERA system, but that is because the most inefficient network is VISN 3, it is most inefficient in the country. So the VERA system does not reward inefficiency, it forces networks to develop a resource plan that makes the most of limited funds.

If we look at the historic resource consumption per patient, a standard industry measure of efficiency, it reveals that while my VISN in Portland, Oregon, which serves the West, was more than 20 percent more efficient than the system as a whole, Chicago and the Bronx were 20 percent more inefficient than the system as a whole.

The VA has, I would tell my friend, $50 million in reserve that it sets aside to address the quality of care issues associated with VERA implementation. If, in fact, the Secretary feels that the quality is being impacted, he can use this $50 million reserve to assist VISN 3 without eliminating the entire VERA system.

The VA does not know what would happen to veterans' funding if the Hinchey amendment was adopted. There is no fall-back option if the VERA system is eliminated, and that should be very much of concern to all of us who have veterans in our district, and especially those districts that are increasing in their veteran population.

The most likely option we would have would be to revert to the formula that created this massive funding shortfall in VISNs across most of the country and return then more money to the Northeast. That is not equitable to veterans. It is not equitable to veterans of the West and the South, where all the veterans seem to be moving.

If we reverted to fiscal year 1996 allocations, my VISN in Portland, Oregon, would lose $80 million. Dallas, Texas, would lose the same amount. Jackson, Georgia, would lose $120 million. Bay Pines, Florida, would lose $110 million. San Francisco, California, would lose about $50 million. And Long Beach, California, would lose some $40 million.

How about those veterans? They have needs and priorities as well, and they would be then underserved.

On the local level, what would these massive cuts mean for rural VA hospitals in the West and the South? It would mean that the uniform benefits that the VA is striving to provide would be unavailable. My local hospital in Spokane, Washington, has told me that they would have to eliminate all of the subspecialty care that they have recently subcontracted for with the new VERA dollars. So they would lose specialists in the fields of cardiology, enterology, neurology and ophthalmology.

The bottom line is VERA is equitable. Until last year, small VA hospitals across most of the country did not have the funds available to provide this care on site. The Hinchey amendment would end this specialty care. I urge that we vote against the Hinchey amendment.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the gentleman of New York's amendment to suspend the Department of Veterans Affairs Equitable Resources Allocation program, or VERA. As the gentleman may know, the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY) and I tried to do the same thing last year. Unfortunately, our efforts were thwarted by the Senate. We settled instead for a General Accounting Office study on the effects of VERA implementation on VISN 3, which covers parts of New York and New Jersey. This report is still not completed.

Simply put, it is my feeling that VERA is bad public policy. The program shifts money away from areas with existing elderly veteran populations and into areas with developing veteran populations. In the end, this program has done nothing more than pit veterans in one region of the country against veterans in other regions.

Let me tell my colleagues what VERA has meant for the veterans in my district in New Jersey. VERA has meant that security stations in the psychiatric ward at Lyons VA Medical Center are often empty or unmanned. VERA has meant less doctors and less nurses working more overtime to care for patients at Lyons and East Orange Medical Centers. Furthermore, I understand that the FBI and the VA's Inspector General are currently investigating alleged rapes and other alleged mistreatments or abuses of patients.

And the worst example of VERA's impact on my district happened last month. A Korean War veteran at Lyons VA Medical Center left his room, unobserved by staff because they are understaffed, and his body was found not until 2 days later, just yards away from the very building where he lived. Why did it take so long? From what I have been told, there was no money to pay the Medical Center's police overtime to search for him. Local authorities evidently were not contacted.

Unfortunately, my district is not alone. The gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. KELLY), who also represents VA medical centers, and others in this room as well have had similar experiences. At Castle Point Medical Center, a pressure ulcer patient in the long-term care unit had maggots living in his wound. A VA Inspector General's report found a large number of flies in his care unit.

The VERA program was implemented by the VA with minimal guidance by Congress. The proposal of the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) to suspend the implementation is on target, because it will give Congress time to evaluate the program's consequences on the quality of health care for all within the system. It is our duty and our responsibility to fully explore the impact of VERA on veterans medical care.

Congress needs to exercise more oversight over the VA and VERA to prevent other egregious actions. For example, the leadership in VISN 3 in our area which covers my district returned $20 million to Washington, to the VA last year. Yet patient needs continue to be unmet and patient care suffers.

VERA is not the answer to the VA's funding problems. All VERA has done since it was implemented was to create regional battles for diminishing funds. When our Nation was at war, our veterans answered the call and placed their lives on the line to defend ours. They deserve better than a managed care system which often elevates cost savings over quality care.

Mr. Chairman, I support the Hinchey amendment and urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I stand to strongly oppose the Hinchey amendment. First of all, it would bar the VA from funding a system which they already have to distribute medical care equitably. The word equity is important in VERA. It is not so much where one lives demographically but this equitable distribution.

So then I want to ask the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) and some of the people from the other areas, this has happened for the past two sessions that I have been here. The gentleman is saying that there is no equity in VERA, but what he does not tell us is that VA facilities in the metropolitan New York area, that is VISN 3, they receive an average payment for each VA patient which is 27 percent higher, 27 percent higher, than the national average. Other New York facilities and VISN 2 receive an average payment for each VA patient which is 7 percent higher than the national average.

Mr. Chairman, 90 percent of Mr. HINCHEY's district is in VISN 2, so we can see that there is some discrepancy there in terms of the equitable treatment of veterans in these areas.

The VERA system, Mr. Chairman, does make regional differences. It takes them into account by making adjustments for labor calls, differences in patient mix, and different levels of support for research and education. And VISN 3 that is in the Bronx, VA medical facilities receives an average of $5,659 per veteran patient. The national average is just $4,465 per patient. VISN 8 that is in Florida, VA facilities receive $4,076.

Now, let us face it, Congress. The veterans want to move south, the veterans want to move out west, and they bring their illnesses and their disabilities to these areas. Does that mean that we go out and recruit them like we recruit football players? No, we do not do that. They come to these areas.

And we keep saying that the medical inspector of the VA conducted a 6-month study. Well, he did, or they did, but it refuted much of the information we hear here today. Much of the Hinchey amendment's rationale is flawed when we look at the statistics that are here.

If members of the VA believe that VA medical funding in their hospitals is inadequate, the solution is to increase the funding into the medical account, not to throw out the system for the distribution of these funds. No matter what we say, there is always going to be some disagreement when there is a formula. There is always going to be one side saying that the formula is skewed one way and the other one says the other. But this has been studied, and we have some empirical data which shows that the veterans, the money, I repeat, the money should follow the veterans, not the veterans follow the money.

Now, the people in the Northeast area used to get all of the money; and in the South, we were left out. But now we see that this mix has changed. So now they want us to come back and change the system, and we just changed it I think in 1997. So why go back again?

Since VERA was implemented, VISN 8 has treated 35,000 more category A veterans. Do we know what the category A veterans are? Service-connected, low-income veterans. The Florida network has opened nine new community-based outpatient clinics in the past 2 years. Do my colleagues know why? The people are moving from the North into Florida, and we must deal with it.

VERA has supported increased expenses through the VISN, $3.5 million for prosthetic expenses. Total veterans treated in VISN 8 should reach 28,000 by the end of fiscal year 1998. Florida's veterans population is approximately 1.7 million.

Mr. Chairman, we all realize the VERA issue is a very difficult one. Our veterans population is on the move. They are moving to the southern and western States and away from the States in the Northeast and the Midwest.

This is not something that is new. These demographic changes have been going on for over a decade.

In Florida it has meant overcrowded VA facilities, lots of inadequate equipment, and long waits, because we did not have the personnel we needed to serve the large number of veterans moving to our States. In other parts of the country, it has meant empty beds, unused beds, unneeded beds. So they have had too much bedding in some of these other areas.

To hear proponents of the Hinchey amendment speak, one would think VERA is stealing health care dollars from veterans in other States. That is not right, Congress. The fact of the matter, vets are moving away, as I said. The large budgets in the VA health care facilities are no longer justified. Vote against the Hinchey amendment for fairness.

The VERA issue is a difficult one. Our veterans population is on the move; they are moving to the Southern and Western states and away from the States in the Northeast and the Midwest.

This is not something that is new; these demographic changes have been going on for over a decade. In Florida, it has meant overcrowded VA facilities; lack of adequate equipment; and long waits because we didn't have the personnel we needed to serve the large number of veterans moving to our state. In other parts of the country, it has means empty beds, unused and unneeded capacity in VA facilities, and more personnel than warranted by the number of vets or their specific treatment needs.

To hear proponents of this amendment speak, you'd think VERA is stealing health care dollars from vets in their states; the fact of the matter is, vets are moving away from their states; the large budgets of their VA health care facilities are no longer justified; and they are complaining because cutbacks are always painful.

While I sympathize with their concerns, we must make sure that VA health care dollars follow the veterans—not the bureaucrats. The fact of the matter is that VERA provides an equitable distribution of VA health care funds, and we should all support it because it is fair—not painless, especially for those who are closing facilities, but fair.

Veterans health care is particularly important to the millions of vets in Florida—not just because we have so many veterans, but because we have so many veterans who are elderly and/or disabled.

From 1980 to 1990 Census Data, 47% of all vets to relocated to another state during the decade moved to Florida

The net gain of vets to Florida in the last decade alone (349,000) was greater than the overall veteran populations of 22 states

Florida also is home to the nation's second largest population of veterans—second only to my Chairman's state, California

Florida is home to the second largest population of veterans with a service-connected disability

Florida has the largest population of veterans with 100% service-connected disabilities, as well as veterans who have 60–90% service-connected disabilities.

I know that the VA has implemented the VERA system (veterans equitable resource allocation) to insure that VA health care resources are directed to where there are the most veterans who need these services.

I urge the members to support VERA by rejecting this most unwise amendment.

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support for the Hinchey amendment. Under the Veterans' Equitable Resource Allocation plan, I have witnessed the effects of a $226 million cut to the lower New York area veterans network.

After a careful study of VERA, I have come to the conclusion that it is flawed. These flaws permeate VERA's methodology, its implementation, and especially the VA's oversight of this new spending plan. It is unfortunate that the VERA plan imposed upon our VA facilities, it is not one to provide proper funding to the VA facilities but one to steal from Peter to pay Paul or to take from some VA facilities to give to others.

A little over 6 months ago the VA released a report of its own Office of the Medical Inspector investigating reports into the reduced quality of care at Castle Point and Montrose Veterans Hospitals in my district in the New York Hudson Valley. The findings of the Office of Medical Inspector are startling and uncover a problem that we were only partly aware of.

The Medical Inspector found 158 violations of health and safety and VA codes. The most startling finding was that there was a 25 percent increase in poor to marginal care that was given at the VA hospitals in 1997 in my district.

Let me point out that the report made continuing references to findings such as, and I quote, "pieces of antiquated medical equipment, including those used by or on patients who were identified in the ICU."

The report also stated that its "Team members had observed dust, fecal stains, and urine stains on patient care unit floors. Team members noted floors, walls, and ceilings with cobwebs, windowsills covered with dirt and dust, peeling paint, broken floor tiles, crumbling cement," et cetera.

This prompted one of the most important conclusions of the report, again, which I quote: "There is a great need for overall upgrading of both facilities."

The VA inspectors also stated that they, and I again quote, "believe that (the network) and Castle Point and Montrose leadership and management may have accelerated the pace of the integration to become more efficient in anticipation of VERA." In short, we were feeling the negative effects of VERA long before it was ever implemented.

When VERA is supposed to promote more efficient and effective delivery of care, I am seeing the exact opposite occur at veterans' hospitals in my area. The staff there is caring and wonderfully committed, but the VA is not supporting them.

I beseech my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support the Hinchey amendment and to make the necessary investment into veterans' hospitals for all necessary upgrading needed in order to keep their promise of care for our veterans. The veterans of this Nation gave their best for us, and now we must do our best for them.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. KELLY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I simply rise and suggest to the gentlewoman that I very much appreciate her position. Positions not entirely the same as hers are going to be expressed across the floor, I can tell, in proportionate numbers to the Members who serve in various areas of the country.

May I suggest recognizing the value of revising and extending.

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, as a Member of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, I know that VERA was developed as a way for the VA to be more efficient in providing health care for our veterans. VERA is not simply taking money from one region to another, it is a well-thought-out system, supported by our own General Accounting Office and the VA Under Secretary for Health. It recognizes that health care costs vary from region to region, and it also accounts for veterans who move to warmer climates and therefore are using Sunbelt facilities more.

In my State of Florida, the demand for veterans' health care continues to rise. Many constituents in the States of my colleagues who oppose this system have moved to Florida and very much want this system to stay in place. I support VERA, veterans' service organizations support VERA, the GAO supports VERA, the VA supports VERA. I urge my colleagues to support VERA. If there is a problem with one hospital, if there is a problem with the system, it is better to address them, than to eliminate a program that will affect veterans across the entire country.

I urge my colleagues to support our veterans and not vote for any amendment to strike VERA.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to rise in strong support of the amendment being offered by my colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY), to the VA, HUD appropriation act for fiscal year 1999. I join him in expressing strong concern for the future of VA health care, and I agree that VERA is not the proper model to use in determining future funding allocations.

While VERA was a noble effort, it has been unfairly biased against older veterans in major metropolitan areas. These older veterans are those most in need of inpatient comprehensive health care, and they have been the ones most adversely affected and impacted by VERA.

In fact, Mr. Chairman, widespread evidence of deteriorating quality of care in New York veterans' hospitals last year is proof enough that VERA has hurt too many of our veterans. The primary reasons for this is that VERA advocates a zero sum game. For veterans in the South and West who gain health care funds, veterans in another region have to lose some funding. This is being done in an environment where veterans' funding is theoretically frozen for the next 5 years.

Even with the modest increases suggested by the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, those VISNs in the Northeast will still lose a great deal of money to both VERA and annual medical inflation costs. Thus, health care for our veterans in the Northeast are going to take a double hit every year.

In VISN Network 3, the reported plans for the new VERA cuts in fiscal year 2000 will result in a $48 million cut in lower New York State. The problems with VERA are twofold.

First, since the VA means test is a national figure, there will be more category A veterans in the South and West, which have lower costs of living, than in the Northeast. This results in an inaccurate measure of demand for services between VISNs.

Secondly, VERA fails to differentiate between the types of care delivered at VA facilities. VA hospitals in the Northeast have more specialized care patients, including spinal cord injuries, mental health, AIDS, and geriatric care cases. These cases cost more than their outpatient counterparts, which are more plentiful in the South and West.

Furthermore, despite the well-publicized concerns of my colleagues, there exists no crisis for VA health care in the Sunbelt. In response to an inquiry we made on this subject last year, the GAO informed us that there was no empirical evidence that any veteran in the South or West has been denied care due to inadequate funding.

While it is true that many veterans have in the past migrated to the Sunbelt, let us note that these are predominantly well-off individuals who use private facilities or Medicare over VA facilities.

The GAO will also soon be releasing a final report on the impact of VERA on the quality of care being delivered in those VISNs of the Northeast. From the preliminary evidence I and my Northeast colleagues were made privy to during the course of my investigations, the results will not be encouraging for VERA.

Accordingly, Mr. Chairman, I urge all of our colleagues to vote for this amendment to show their commitment to our veterans, regardless of their geographic residence. The solution for VA health care is to make the pie larger, not to alter the size of the pieces after they have been cut.

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Hinchey amendment, but I must say that in many ways, this is an embarrassing and unfortunate debate. We should all be a little bit ashamed of ourselves. Veterans are not Vermonters, they are not Floridians, they are not New Yorkers, they are not Californians, they are Americans.

The fact of the matter is that over recent years, this Congress has cut and cut veterans' programs. I do not have to remind the Members here that only a few months ago we took $10 billion from veterans' programs in order to increase funding for the highway program. I think the highway program is important, and a good idea. I supported it. But they did not need another $10 billion on top of $200 billion. Yet, we lost by 5 votes the effort to retrieve that $10 billion.

Last year in the so-called balanced budget agreement we gave huge tax breaks to some of the wealthiest people in this country, and then we cut back, not only on Medicare, but on veterans' programs again. So I happen to agree with those people who say that when men and women put their lives on the line and sign the contract with the United States government, we have a moral obligation to fulfill that contract, and we have not done that. That is the most important issue.

The Northeast should not be fighting with the South. Every veteran in this country deserves quality health care, but that is what has happened, because we have cut back when we should not have cut back. This is a wealthy Nation. This is a Nation that has given huge tax breaks to those people who do not need it, and then we say, gee, we do not have enough money for veterans' programs.

In respect to the Hinchey amendment, I strongly support it, having said that. I think that the formulation in VERA is not fair to various regions of this country, and that we should support the Hinchey amendment and make what exists a little bit better. But the bottom line is we should support all of our veterans. We should increase funding for veterans' programs, and we have the resources to do that, if we get our priorities straight.

Mr. EVERETT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, as a supporter of fairness for our Nation's veterans, I rise in strong opposition to the Hinchey amendment. It is ironic that this legislation, which the sponsors say will help veterans, will end up destroying many veterans. If the Hinchey amendment is adopted, veterans across the Nation will lose newly-won equitable assets to vital medical care funds afforded to them by law.

In April of 1997, the VA implemented VERA to address medical care funding inequities in VA facilities nationwide. Since its implementation, the findings are, contrary to what we have heard on this floor, for which they say they have documentation, and I would like to see it, as chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, because nobody has given it to me, but contrary to that report, the well-known accounting firm of Price Waterhouse reviewed VERA and has given it positive marks in its March report. It says that VERA was a well-designed, conceptually sound system marked by simplicity, equity, and fairness.

This positive review was conducted on the heels of another favorable assessment by the General Accounting Office in 1997 which noted that VERA is making resource allocations more equitable than previous funding systems.

Despite the evidence that VERA is working just as it was intended, the sponsor of this amendment, the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) claims that his veterans in New York are being shortchanged. Nothing could be further from the truth. VERA is designed to factor in regional costs, such as labor, differences in patient mix, and varying levels of support for research and education.

For example, in New York, the gentleman's district, the average veteran patient receives $5,659. In my district in Alabama, which is part of VISN 7, the average patient just gets $4,300. In reality, New York's VA facilities receive an average payment per patient which is 27 percent higher than the national average.

What disturbs me even more are the charges by some in the New York delegation that somehow VERA's funding allocations have resulted in a deterioration of health care and untimely deaths in several New York VA medical facilities. These are serious charges. I would frankly like to see their proof.

It is my understanding that my colleagues from New York base their facts on a report by the VA's Inspector General as to the deaths at Montrose and Castle Point New York VA hospitals. This very report vindicated VERA in those cases. The VA's IG report even went on to specifically state there was no impact of VERA at Castle Point and Montrose concerning mortality rates. VERA was in fact not tied to any health care quality concerns at these facilities reported by the VA IG.

Further, I understand that the VA's IG report did list over 150 areas of improvement to address the problems of two New York hospitals, but none included VERA, despite what you have heard on the floor today.

As chairman of the VA Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, I rely on facts. I must tell the Members, there are no facts to back up the claims that VERA has adversely affected any veteran, any of my veterans or any in New York. Rushing to judgment armed with half facts serves no one's interests, especially our veterans. America's veterans deserve the very best medical care, and VERA is helping deliver it. We need to work that out.

Let me also say, I would suggest that my fellow Members of Congress visit their VA hospitals and pay particular attention to the way their money is spent. I have seen $200,000 spent for gold-plated faucets by a director, of health care money, by a director renovating his house; $26,000 for a fish tank; $100,000 for another fish tank, and by the way, in the area that they say is going to be affected, $20,000 just to keep this fish tank up every year.

Mr. Chairman, I would suggest we all take a close look at how VA spends its money. I am very satisfied with the current help I am getting from the VA on cracking down on this kind of stuff.

□ 1600

Another hospital, 63 percent occupancy. The overtime runs over a million dollars a year consistently. It is absolutely unacceptable. I urge a "no" vote on this amendment.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Hinchey amendment.

Let me start out by voicing my agreement with the comments of the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS). To a large extent, this debate is taking place in a context that it should not be taking place in, the context of large cuts in veterans services.

This is the richest country in the history of the planet, but we are wasting too much of those resources, too much of government's resources which could be spent on helping veterans and on other worthy purposes, on tax breaks for the richest people in our society.

But within the amount of money we make available for veterans, the intent of VERA was to distribute the VA's resources equitably to take into account population shifts and needs in growing States. We know that and do not object to that. But the actual plan has not worked out that way.

What do we see? We see professional staff shortages due to staff buyouts, buyouts apparently pushed in order to meet VERA quotas. We see a 20 percent cut in the per patient budget. We see an increase from 17 to 25 percent in the number of deceased patients, deceased patients judged to have received marginal or poor care. Inspectors noted that this represented a sharp rise, unquote, in poor care in the period after VERA took effect.

We see decline in maintenance. We see no janitorial services on nights and weekends and other indices of poor services.

The VA has consistently maintained that allocation should be based on its computer model that says that some regions have too high a per patient cost, rather than determining why those costs are higher than average.

Mr. Chairman, if my colleagues believe in equitable treatment for veterans and quality care for all veterans, they will join us in questioning why some regions have suffered so severely since VERA took effect and in supporting the Hinchey amendment and also in increasing the overall budget.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NADLER. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to point out that some of the remarks that were made a moment ago by the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. EVERETT) are just incorrect. It sounded to me as though they could have been written by the Veterans Administration itself.

The VA and its apologists for VERA would have us believe that VERA is an equitable allocation of resources. The fact of the matter is it is not anything of the kind. And the impact of VERA is not confined to the Northeast. The impact of VERA is spreading all across the country. We have been the guinea pig for this program. The New York metropolitan area, and the Northeast generally, has been the laboratory from whence this Frankenstein monster has originated.

But, Mr. Chairman, it is now sweeping across the country and it is going to impinge upon every single veterans hospital, with the exception of a few in a few States. Florida might not be affected, that is correct. It may not be that Arizona will be affected. There will be two or three States, perhaps, that are not affected.

But as I indicated in the my opening remarks, whether veterans are served out of the Boston headquarters or the Pittsburgh headquarters or the Durham, North Carolina, headquarters or Nashville or Chicago or Kansas City or Dallas or Denver or Long Beach or others, they are being impacted and they will be impacted more severely as time goes on.

There is nothing equitable about this distribution. It is grossly inequitable. It is horribly unfair. Contrary to what was said a few moments ago from that podium right there, we have in New York seen a 50 percent increase in mortality rates as a result of VERA.

Do my colleagues want to visit that upon their veterans in their part of the country? Do they want to see the veterans that are served out of their VA headquarters suffer the same kind of iniquities and inequities that we have seen in the Northeast? I do not think so. I do not think so at all.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is essential. If we do not pass this amendment today, if it does not become part of this bill this year, I promise we will be back here again shortly and the number of people speaking in favor of reforming VERA and against what VERA has done will have increased by multitudes on the floor of this House.

Please, let us not have any deaths in my colleagues' regions before that happens. Let us not have veterans in their part of the country suffering the way my veterans have before that happens.

I ask my colleagues to take a precautionary move here. Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to do what is right for the veterans in their areas before this suffering is visited upon them. Support this amendment.

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I would just like to say a few things to my colleagues.

The gentleman from Arizona (Mr. STUMP), chairman of the Committee on Veterans' Affairs, is opposed to the Hinchey amendment, as well as myself, I am chairman of the Subcommittee on Health, and the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. EVERETT), who is chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations.

The basic reason is this would actually destroy the allocation system. The gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) knows that we beat this same amendment handily before. And to bring it up again and to try to pit the Northeast against the Southeast is not the way to solve the problem. Throwing more money at any problem is not going to solve it. I think the supporters of this amendment would be better suited and wiser to establish reforms and change and innovations instead of asking to throw more money at problems.

Every time they want to come back, they should also realize that the President's budget fell short of the recommendations made by both the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs and the Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs. The figures that the gentleman from New York is using here in this debate are based upon the President's fiscal year 1999 budget, and those numbers are preliminary. And so the numbers that the gentleman is using are really not the accurate numbers, and I submit that to the gentleman in all deference.

Unfortunately, not all the veterans live in the Northeast. I respect the gentleman's position and the fact that he wants more money. But I also submit that the States in the Southeast have long been without money and so now they are asking for their fair share, because the veterans are moving in. In fact, there is a crisis in the Sunbelt. I think one of my colleagues on that side said there is not a crisis. We need more money, too.

In the end, all of us are going to have to come up with innovative ways to serve veterans and we will have to continue to fund them adequately. I think this bill does, out of admiration and deference to the gentleman from California (Chairman LEWIS). The gentleman has made a hard effort here. I urge all Members to support the gentleman from California (Chairman LEWIS) and support the gentleman from Arizona (Chairman STUMP) and vote against the Hinchey amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the Hinchey amendment. He is absolutely correct that VERA was designed to ensure that the dollars follow the veterans.

Perhaps Rep. HINCHEY should consider that the President's budget falls far short of the recommendations made by both the House and Senate appropriators. The figures used by Mr. HINCHEY are based upon the President's FY 99 budget for VA and those numbers are preliminary. They are not our numbers—we intend to increase funding for VA and that, in turn, will ensure that the dollars will be disbursed as VERA intended—to our nation's veterans.

Last Congress, we passed the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation or VERA system to fix a gross funding inequity.

Prior to the passage of VERA, Veterans health funds were allocated based solely on the historical usage of VA facilities, and then were simply adjusted upward each year for inflation. As a result of this system, Veterans funding was concentrated in the densely populated Northeast.

Unfortunately, not all of our country's Veterans live in the Northeast. In fact, most now live in the previously grossly underfunded South and West.

VERA goes a long way toward fixing this inequity. Under the VERA system, workloads are matched directly with annual allocations. Furthermore, the number of special care veterans, national price and wage differences, and education and equipment differences are taken into account for funding considerations.

In other words, VERA eliminates the arcane political mechanism that forced funding into the urban Northeast, replacing it with a funding mechanism that takes reason and common sense into account to determine adequate funding amounts.

I urge my colleagues to look at the language of this amendment. It would prohibit the use of VA funding to implement VERA.

My point is, this amendment would change current law. And in doing so, would undue what VERA guarantees—that all American veterans have equal access to care regardless of the region of the country in which they live.

The bottom line is this: VERA became law during the last Congress, not by mistake, but because the funding mechanism was grossly unfair and terribly inadequate.

Put simply, attempts to dismantle the VERA funding system could potentially have an unfair impact on states such as my home state of Florida. As such, Mr. Chairman, in the quest for equality and for fairness for our nation's veterans, I urge my colleagues to oppose the Hinchey amendment.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I will try to be brief today, but this is an important amendment. I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) to prohibit the VA from using the VERA system for the distribution of funds in the fiscal year 1999.

Veterans in Maine receive their health care from one primary hospital and that is the Togas VA hospital in Augusta. I have heard statements on the floor that the VERA system is working. Maybe in some places it is working, but it is not working in Maine for the veterans of Maine.

In recent years, Togas has experienced an increasing patient load, not a declining load. And at the same time, it suffered from declining budgets and reduced staffing. The result has put a severe strain on the quality and the timeliness of care provided to veterans in Maine.

VISN 1 is the region that includes Togas. VISN 1 has seen its budget cut by over 5 percent, despite the level funding in VA. That must be distributed among the hospitals in that region, and the result is Togas in Maine has an increasing workload but a 3 percent cut in funding from over last year.

Increasing workloads with reduced budgets means longer wait times for health care, increased numbers of veterans sent out of the region to receive care, and a general reduction in staffing and health care quality.

Let me just say a word about what we hear. The gentleman from Maine (Mr. BALDACCI) and I and the two Senators from Maine spend more time on Togas than on any other single issue that we deal with. And it is not because the care is so great that no one is complaining.

Mr. Chairman, we have 100 percent disabled veterans who wait a year and a half for any attention to their dental work. We have veterans who are having a variety of different problems that take too long to provide attention. The staff is upset because they cannot provide the quality of care that they used to provide in the past.

This is having a significant serious adverse impact on veterans in Maine. We need to take a closer look at VERA. The GAO is already reviewing the VA's implementation of VERA and its impact on VA hospitals and veterans. And while we await the GAO report and examine the impact of VERA in more detail, we should delay its implementation.

One final word. Those on the other side who voted for the Republican budget resolution should think about that resolution. It includes flat funding for veterans' health care. If that is the policy of this Congress, we will be back here year after year after year arguing about this allocation among States. It is a mistake. Not only was that a mistake to cut Head Start and to cut Title I, it was a mistake to flat fund veteran's health care. We cannot keep going this way. We have a surplus. We ought to make things right for the veterans in this country.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I will keep my remarks brief, but I rise in strong support of the Hinchey amendment. The purpose of the VERA methodology, as I have understood it, is to transform VHA into a fully integrated system of health care delivery that ensures that funding follows veterans. I agree with that overarching goal.

Mr. Chairman, I believe that the VA must take into account population shifts and an increase in the veterans population in certain States. But from my perspective in VISN 4 in Pennsylvania, we cannot force these changes so quickly. We need to take into account the fact that the care that veterans receive at their VA hospital cannot be jeopardized in this process.

The shifting of funds has already caused many veterans hospitals to reevaluate every dollar spent, and this has resulted in staff buyouts and budgetary shortfalls.

With regard to the comments of the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. EVERETT), whom I regard highly, I visit my two veterans hospitals on a regular basis and I have put a human face on this issue. As we debate this issue, I think it is important to remember that these veterans rely on the veterans health care system and they deserve the best quality of care possible.

Mr. Chairman, I can tell my colleagues that in Pennsylvania the reform that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEARNS) advocates are being implemented in our hospitals. But we have a rural veterans population. We need to give the hospitals time to bring the veterans into the system so they can justify their dollars. We need to improve utilization, and we need time to allow the veterans hospitals to do that.

To give them that time, I urge my colleagues to vote in favor of this amendment to prohibit the use of VA funds to implement VERA at this time. The fact is, it is not working, and veterans' health care is at risk.

Mr. BALDACCI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the Hinchey amendment. This is an issue that is vital to the health and welfare of veterans in my district and throughout Maine and the Nation.

My concerns, of course, lie with the VERA program, as it is known, the Veterans' Equitable Resource Allocation System, and its effect on the availability, accessibility, and quality of health care offered to veterans.

These concerns should come as no surprise to any Member of this Chamber. Last year's report from the House Subcommittee on VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies appropriations expressed concern about the way the VERA system distributes resources. In particular, the committee recognized that VERA failed to adequately account for the disproportionate number of special needs veterans in the northeastern States.

For that reason, the House voted last year to request a General Accounting Office report on the effects of VERA and its implementation. The committee questioned especially the impact of quality of care for VISNs 1, 2, 3, 12, and 14. This study was expected to be completed in 4 months, but to date no report has been produced, and we are now told not to expect a report until September of this year.

Mr. Chairman, significant questions remain. One in particular was the first year the cut was 2.5 percent. This year's cut is proposed to be 5 percent, a much more significant cut, given the fact that it is all flat funded.

What the VA Togas Hospital in Maine is looking at with a $40 million budget is an $8 million cut. What that means, more importantly, to the veterans in the district I represent, which is the largest physical district northeast of the Mississippi where we are talking about 22 million acres of land, is having those people go from Augusta, Maine, to travel down to Boston, Massachusetts, in order to get an MRI examination, routine X-ray examination, having a van deliver them on a weekly basis so that they get the proper radiation treatment for their cancer.

We are told constantly by hospitals everywhere in major hubs that our rural people do not need to be there, that they have the protocols for cancer treatment, chemotherapy protocols in any hospital in America and you do not have to leave your family, your home or your community in order to get that, but we require the veterans of Maine on a weekly basis to go to Boston, drive to Boston in a van to get that treatment which should be routine and should be provided.

But because of the fact of the cuts and the flat funding, they are forced to make these routine examinations and treatments to go to Boston. We do not want to see any veterans anywhere in this country be sacrificed for services that they served their country and they are owed from their country anywhere.

It has been pointed out a veteran in Maine and a veteran in California and a veteran in Florida and Texas and anywhere else should be treated with respect and care that really that we as a country owe them for what they have done for all of us.

Nobody wants to see anyone hurt. I am sure my friends that oppose this amendment would not want to see veterans and their families have to go through some of the things that they have to go through. But there is a problem here. We are asking for not only an increase in maintenance of a program that has been reducing allocations but they propose to increase those cuts over last year.

It is just unacceptable to see what veterans and their families are going through now as the system is set up to ask them to go through further hardships and pressures. I think it is just totally unacceptable. I support this amendment. I ask my colleagues to endorse this amendment.

I ask my colleagues to work together to see if we cannot make the pie larger for all of our veterans.

Mr. COOKSEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, in this debate over VERA funding, we can disagree and discuss what are the most meaningful statistics and whether VA's funding formula has achieved true equity. I expect the gentleman to fight for funding for his area just as all of us fight for funding in our districts.

But we ought to stick to the facts and avoid the kind of reckless scare tactics which some proponents of the Hinchey amendment have used. Some of my colleagues from New York are actually claiming that cuts in VERA funding have resulted in the, quote, deterioration of veterans health and even the loss of life in many instances.

For example, in debate last week the proponents of this amendment claimed that, quote, many veterans lost their lives at two hospitals in New York as a result of VERA funding reductions.

That is a very serious charge. The gentleman went on to say that this assertion is substantiated by the report which was done by the Inspector General of the VA itself.

I have served on the ethics board of the Louisiana Medical Society. Allegations of patients dying are the most serious that can be made and should never be made lightly, particularly in light of what the VA report already says. In fact, the report which the gentleman from New York cited is a 6-volume, 6-month study by the VA Office of Medical Inspector. That report did document serious problems at Castle Point and Montrose, New York VA Medical Centers, including greater than expected mortality rates during the first half of fiscal year 1997.

My colleague from New York will do well to read the medical inspector's report. However, because it says clearly that VERA was not the problem, specifically the medical inspector's report states, there was no impact of VERA at Castle Point and Montrose concerning mortality rates. And the medical inspector found that VERA was not linked to any of the quality care problems at the facilities.

The medical inspector made 158 recommendations to fix the problems he found at Castle Point and Montrose VA Medical Centers. Not a single one of those recommendations called for funding adjustments for New York, let alone the dismantling of the VERA funding system.

None of us wants to minimize quality of care problems when they surface. But it is one thing to advocate for increased funding for medical care. It is quite another to make baseless inflammatory charges. And I am disappointed to see the debate move to this level.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COOKSEY. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I would draw the gentleman's attention to the fact that the Inspector General's report from the Veterans Administration, although it did not specifically in that report say that VERA was responsible for the decline in the quality of care, for the decline in the quality of maintenance at those Veterans Administration hospitals, for the decline in personnel, for the misallocation of personnel, for the incompetent personnel who were there at those facilities and for the increase in mortality at those facilities, it is quite clear that all those things occurred immediately upon the implementation of VERA and continued to get worse as VERA was continually implemented.

So while I did not expect the Veterans Administration to say specifically that VERA was responsible, it does not take an awful lot of reasoning to conclude from that report that these adverse circumstances occurred shortly after VERA was put into place, and as VERA was implemented they continued to get worse.

Mr. COOKSEY. Mr. Chairman, that said, I think that we really need to look at the management. There is reason to believe there may be some management problems there. I am a physician. I know about quality of care. Too often too many decisions made by some industry, some industries that we deal with, politicians, and unfortunately we are all politicians, are not always made on what is real quality of care. I think there is good reason to look at what is going on in the management of these hospitals.

Let me bring up something that has been brought to my attention by the gentlewoman from New York. There is one administrator for all these hospitals. This system that was set up actually pays bonuses to administrators in terms of added salary for giving money back. I agree, I have a problem with that. I do not feel that an administrator should receive a bonus for depriving a veteran of health benefits. I am a veteran. We all have veterans. Veterans across the country should get good care. We should look at quality of care and some equity in the system.

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, when I came to Congress in 1992, from the State Senate, and watched in Florida the population gain of veterans in our State, it was probably one of the most compelling issues that would bring any of us here in making sure there was equitable health care for all veterans, not only in the State of Florida but across the country.

We have watched in Florida the number of veterans rising and then, on top of that, you have to add in to that the amount of veterans that come to the State of Florida during the winter months, which also pushes up our health care needs.

But I would like to say a couple of things here. I am going to take a colleague, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. NETHERCUTT) who wrote a letter to his colleagues that said, when veterans migrated to the west and the south, funding continued to be concentrated in the northeast. The VERA system was directly to match work loads with annual allocations, taking into account numbers of basic and special care veterans, national price and wage differences and identification and equipment differences. We know that there are going to be some losers under that.

He also goes on to say, and I think this is true, that all VA network administrators agreed that this reform was crucial.

I also want to take an opportunity here to just talk a little bit about what our Florida Department of Veterans Affairs put out. It says, The really important outcome is that the VA system seems to be making a genuine effort to at least begin to concentrate on what is important, that similarly situated veterans receive similar treatment. VERA is the step in that direction. That is and should remain our focus.

I think that is what this Congress needs to do, is remain the focus on why these changes were made. We all know the migration in this country. I have to tell my colleagues, I could go through one allocation of resources in every budget in this Federal Government, whether it be Medicaid, education, whatever, that we do not get equitable treatment. For the first time in a long time this was the first chance and has been the only chance that we have actually seen these changes made.

Let me give you a fact. In Florida, we now are servicing 36,000 more veterans because of this allocation. These are not new veterans. These were not veterans that just all of a sudden showed up. These are veterans who have been standing in lines, have been waiting for the service, who have not had the opportunity to be served in the State that they live in. And these are folks that live in there.

Then on top of that in the wintertime asking them if they can get any services. It is simple service, it is not extra service. It is not the special need person. It is the simple, everyday veteran out there that wants the same opportunity as the one in New York or any place else.

I have to tell my colleagues, there is just a very fair issue here.

I would hope, and this is very difficult because to me all veterans are equal, they served this country. Many of them died for this country. They have asked for us to keep our promise. We are having to fight an issue here that none of us want to have to fight. But on the other side of it, we have to take into account the migration into the southern parts of this country, and we have to start looking at how we are allocating our dollars and making sure that those dollars go to those veterans because of where they are today.

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

As a veteran myself and a Floridian, I rise in very, very strong opposition to this gentleman's amendment. I want to share something with all of my colleagues, whether they are from east of the Mississippi or west of the Mississippi or north of the Mason-Dixon line or south of the Mason-Dixon line, that veterans that come into my district, let me say this, the veterans in my district, the vast majority of them are not born and raised in my district.

I will tell my colleagues where they are from. They are from Maine. They are from New York. They are from New Jersey. And they come to my district, and they want to know why they cannot get seen, why they cannot get the care that they used to get up north or up in the midwest in Florida.

Now, this amendment is a very, very simple amendment. It is a very, very common sense amendment. It says, now that we have had 30, 40 years of millions of veterans moving from the northeast and the midwest into the sunbelt, that we will finally, for the first time, put the money where the veterans are and not where the bricks and mortar is.

I would encourage all of my colleagues to remember not their provincial square on the map but the veterans themselves who fought, many of them sacrificed lost limbs in defense of liberty, in defense of freedom, in defense of our country, and put the money, put the dollars where the veterans are and not where the bricks and mortar are.

I encourage all of my colleagues to vote no on the Hinchey amendment.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I rise because this is a very painful discussion. It is painful because I believe that all of us who rise on the floor of the House and discuss our veterans truly believe that they are equal, as we would like all of us to be in this Nation. They have fought. They have bled. They have sacrificed. But it seems that the proponents of this particular amendment would like to say that our pain is greater than your pain.

And frankly, I was a supporter of the Coburn amendment. We do need more money in medical care for veterans. Just the other day I talked to a World War II veteran of mine who actually participated in the Japanese death march. He went to a hospital and was turned away, did not have the proper papers, the proper documentation, could not get necessary life-saving prescriptions.

So we have a crisis around this country as it relates to veterans. I believe we tried to do something credible about it. We instituted VERA, not because we wanted to take away from someone else's veterans. In fact, I think we should be discussing taking the surplus moneys that we seem to have found in this balanced budget and put it in veterans health and not talk about a tax cut. But VERA is the best we have got right now. If we need the facts, in 1997, the GAO reported that VERA is making resource allocation more equitable than previous systems. The VERA system takes regional differences into account by making adjustments for labor costs, differences in patient mix and differing levels of support for research and education.

What does that mean? It means that the overcrowded hospitals in our areas, people who move from the Rust Belt in the north, not that we are castigating the losses of population in our sister States, but they are coming south. What does that mean? Long, long, long lines. This has helped to bring about an equitable system, Mr. Chairman. Yes, there have been modest cuts in certain areas of the country. These cuts have been made in funding for hospitals whose patient populations have declined 20, 30 percent. This is not a reckless, random system where we do A-B-C and we pick you without any analysis. If your populations have fallen, then the moneys are distributed where there is a need.

I spoke to the administrator at my hospital in Houston, Texas, Mr. Whatley, new to the area. He says we cannot survive without VERA. Texas has got an increase in funds because of the increase in numbers of veterans. If I have got a 77-year-old World War II veteran being turned away from a hospital, we have got a real problem.

I would say to my friends who are supporting this amendment, let us work together to put more money in hospital care and medical care for veterans, period, but VERA is the best way we can to handle what we have got. Just over the last fiscal year, our hospital got 13 million more dollars to serve those in line at our front doors. In fact, VERA has helped us open community outreach centers in our rural areas. Again, this is not to claim that my pain is greater than your pain. But do not take away from us when we are suffering as well. Why do we not work together to get more dollars into veterans health care, more than even the Coburn amendment, deal with some of these surplus moneys and be fair to everyone. But right now, Mr. Chairman, it is unfair to distinguish it and eliminate it as something being wrong in the VERA reallocation process. I ask my colleagues in good faith to defeat this amendment and recognize the fairness of what we have tried to do.

Mr. STUMP. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment. The Hinchey amendment turns back the clock to the days when the VA distributed its health care resources on the basis of where we built the hospitals after World War II. The current needs of veterans should determine how the VA allocates medical resources.

The proponents of this amendment say they do not want to start a regional fight over this, but of course that is exactly what they are doing. Congress mandated in Public Law 104–204 that VA medical resources be equitably distributed throughout the country. This was to ensure that veterans have equal access to care regardless of the region where they live. In response, the VA has implemented the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation system, or VERA. Independent reviews by the General Accounting Office and by Price Waterhouse have validated this new system as meeting the intent of Congress. Both studies found that VERA is equitable to all veterans in the country and is a significant improvement over past allocation methods.

Mr. Chairman, I have letters from both the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars supporting this concept. I will include these for the RECORD. I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on the Hinchey amendment.

The letters referred to are as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS,
Washington, DC, July 17, 1998.

Hon. JERRY LEWIS,
Chairman, Subcommittee on VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies, Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN LEWIS: I am writing this letter to express the Department's strong opposition to the amendment to H.R. 4194 that would prevent fiscal year 1999 appropriations from being used by the Department of Veterans Affairs for implementing the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation (VERA) system.

The VERA system was developed in response to a Congressional mandate in Public Law 104–204. Independent reviews by the General Accounting Office and Price Waterhouse, LLP have validated the model as meeting the intent of Congress. Both studies have found that VERA is equitable and is a significant improvement over past allocation models. If VERA is stopped, then we will not be able to more equitably distribute our $17 billion appropriation for veterans' medical care. In FY 1999 alone, facilities in the central, southern, southwestern and western states will lose approximately $164 million in funding.

Enclosed is a fact sheet that in more detail describes why VERA was implemented, how VERA rectifies problems perpetuated by previous funding systems, the results of VERA to date, and external feedback about VERA which has reflected positively on its progress to date.

Thank you for your continued support of our Nation's veterans on this important issue.

Sincerely,
KENNETH W. KIZER, M.D., M.P.H.,
Under Secretary for Health.

Enclosure.

FACT SHEET ADDRESSING THE NEED TO CONTINUE USING THE VETERANS EQUITABLE RESOURCE ALLOCATION (VERA) TO DISTRIBUTE THE FY 1999 MEDICAL CARE APPROPRIATION

Issue: Amendment to H.R. 4194, which would mandate that none of the funds made available in the FY 1999 VA/HUD Appropriations Act may be used by the Department of Veterans Affairs to implement or administer the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocations system.

Discussion: The Veterans Health Administration (VHA) strongly opposes this Amendment. It would have an adverse effect on the VA's ability to equitably distribute its medical care resources and will perpetuate current residual inefficient use of taxpayers' dollars.

VERA was implemented beginning in April 1997 because: VA's FY 1997 Appropriation Act (Public law 104–204) required VHA to develop and submit to Congress a plan to allocate funds in an equitable manner. In February 1996, the General Accounting Office called for changes in VHA's allocation system. The effect of those previous systems was that dollars were spent inefficiently at some facilities, resulting in limited access and services at other facilities and an inefficient use of taxpayers' dollars.

VERA rectifies problems perpetuated by previous funding systems by:

Providing networks with two national workload prices for two types of patients—those with routine (Basic Care) and those with complex/chronic healthcare needs (Complex Care). In FY 1998, Networks receive $2,604 for each Basic Care patient and $36,960 for each Complex Care patient. This ensures that VA's special patients are funded appropriately. For example, the New York City Network (VISN 3) receives more Complex Care funds than any other VISN because they have the greatest number of special patients.

No longer basing funding on historical funding patterns but on validated patient workload and adjustments for variances in labor costs, research, education, equipment and NRM.

Adjusting network budgets to account for those veterans who receive care in more than one network.

Providing each network an allocation that recognizes its individual characteristics.

The results of VERA to-date are as follows:

For FY 1998 (the first full year of VERA), 13 networks received increases over funding levels for FY 1997. Nine networks received less funding. Network reductions were limited to 5%. Six networks saw increases of more than 10%, with the greatest at 12.3%.

Since July 1997 all collections from third party reimbursements, co-payments, per diems and certain torts are retained by the collecting network. A total of $688 million in receipts is projected to be collected in FY 1998. When estimated collections are added to VERA totals, the smallest percentage change from FY 1997 in funds available is +0.10% in network 3, while network 16 experiences the greatest percentage change in total funding with +10.38%.

With the 5% cap on losses in place, it is expected all funding inequities will be corrected by FY 2000, and VERA will have shifted $500 million across VHA's healthcare system over four years. (Most will be corrected by FY 1999.)

The graph[1] reflects that VERA is not simply moving all networks to an average cost per patient, rather it adjusts network allocations for variances in patient mix, labor costs, research and education support, equipment and NRM activities. Variances from the national average will exist because VERA allocates funds in a manner that adjusts for differences in patient mix, labor costs, and research and education support costs. Thus, even the networks that have less funding in FY 1998 compared to FY 1997 may still be provided a higher than average price than networks that receive more funding. For example, Network 3 which would receive 12.2 percent less funding under full VERA, has an average price of $5,659, which is 26.7 percent above the system average of $4,465. Conversely, Network 18 which would receive 11.4 percent more funding under full VERA, has an average price of $3,886 per patient, which is 13 percent below the system average.

External feedback about VERA has reflected positively on our progress to date:

In the Spring of 1997 Senator "Kit" Bond, Chairman of the VA-HUD Senate Appropriations Subcommittee said: ". . . VA has overhauled its allocation methodology, vastly improving fairness and appropriateness with which resources are allocated to facilities . . . the new system is a tremendous step forward.

In late 1997 the GAO reported that VERA is making resource allocation more equitable than previous allocation systems.

In March 1998 Price Waterhouse LLP issued a report on its evaluation of VERA. The report concluded that VERA was a well designed system, is ahead of other global budgeting systems, and met VHA's goals of simplicity, equity and fairness. It also found that the conceptual and methodological underpinnings of VERA were sound.

Conclusion: The Amendment to H.R. 4194 is inappropriate given the accomplishments of VERA to-date. Additionally, we are maintaining a $100 million national funding reserve in the VA headquarters to assist networks in the unlikely event that the current level of patient care is threatened. The reserves will be used, if needed, to maintain the quality and level of services.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS OF THE UNITED STATES,
Washington, DC, July 28, 1998.

Hon. BOB STUMP,
Chairman, Committee on Veterans' Affairs, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: This is written to express the strong opposition of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to an amendment offered by Congressman Maurice Hinchey to H.R. 4194, which would prevent VA from further implementing the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation system known as VERA.

VERA was developed in accordance with a congressional mandate and an overwhelmingly clear need to distribute resources in a more equitable manner within the VA medical system. While still in its relative infancy, VERA has been shown to be both equitable and a significant improvement over past allocation models. If VERA is halted at this juncture, there will be no better means of distributing scarce health care resources and veterans will suffer as a consequence.

The VFW has been and will continue to carefully scrutinize the operation of the VERA system, including the establishment on September 1, 1997, of a 1–800 hotline in operation 24 hours a day for the purpose of oversight. Thus far we have recorded no undue problems associated with VERA's operation. We are convinced that this will be the absolutely wrong time to halt its operation. We urge you to oppose Mr. Hinchey's Amendment to H.R. 4194 targeting VERA.

Sincerely,

DENNIS M. CULLINAN,
National Legislative Service.

THE AMERICAN LEGION,
Washington, DC, July 28, 1998.

Hon. BOB STUMP,
Chairman, House Veterans Affairs Committee, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN STUMP: The American Legion continues to support positive changes to the VA health-care system which are intended to improve its overall operating efficiency and, thereby, be more responsive to the needs of veterans. Today, more than three million veterans across the country rely on VA as their primary source of health care, based on the current eligibility criteria. We believe millions more would like to use VA, but limited resources still forces VA to limit services and access systemwide.

Funding levels in the FY 1999 budget for VA/HUD and independent agencies, now under consideration, will be constrained by the limits imposed on VA discretionary spending under the Balanced Budget Act of 1997. This is requiring the 22 Veterans Integrated Service Networks (VISNs), rather than 172 individual medical centers, to seek greater operating efficiencies, cost containment, and increased medical care cost recoveries, while trying to provide improved service to more veterans. Even though The American Legion has a number of concerns regarding problems with funding to the VISNs under the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation (VERA) system, we continue to support VA's efforts to modify and improve this methodology based on experience.

It is recognized that the implementation of VERA involves many difficult financial decisions for VISN officials. Some of these decisions have resulted in stress and hardship for veterans and their families, particularly in those VISNs that incurred real dollar funding reductions. Nonetheless, VERA is an important management tool which will over time help VA meet the needs of veterans in a more efficient, effective, and responsible manner. However, these changes do not address VA's need for long-term, guaranteed financial stability which can only be achieved by combining realistic federal appropriations, broadened third party reimbursement authority to include Medicare subvention, and the development of other new funding sources.

The American Legion believes Congress has a responsibility to safeguard the fiscal integrity of the VA health care program. It must also exercise continued oversight of the changes currently ongoing within the VA medical care program and the impact of reduced funding to ensure that veterans are not shortchanged or arbitrarily denied needed care and treatment.

The American Legion appreciates your continued support of our nation's veterans and their families.

Sincerely,

STEVE A. ROBERTSON,
Director, National Legislative Commission.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I really raced over here from a markup because I could not bear the thought that yet again we have to discuss a regional problem and be turning our backs on the elderly, sickest veterans in our country. I wanted to be here to strongly, for yet again the third time, I believe, during a series of debates, support our American veterans through the Hinchey amendment. We have heard about robbing Peter to pay Paul. Here this committee is proposing to rob GI Joe to pay who? I am not quite sure. In the transportation bill, we were paying for roads and taking it out of the veterans. But this VERA formula is the most egregious portion of this appropriations. Changing this formula is robbing GI Joe in States like New Jersey, and throughout the Northeast, where there are the oldest and the sickest, the people that are most dependent and most in need of this kind of care. Do not be deceived by any loose rhetoric that we have heard around here. There is no inference at all that they are overstaffed or that they have empty rooms and that we do not need it. That is a distortion of the real facts. For certain, a number of studies verify, including one by the Inspector General. There is no question but that these veterans in terms of the needs of their age group as well as the intensity of the quality of care that they need are the most needy and deserving of our veterans, those who were ready to give their lives for our freedom. Certainly gave their all, for their country in times of greatest need. I want to strongly endorse this Hinchey amendment. I cannot believe, that the committee is not open to rectifying this distortion and this abuse of our veterans and that we cannot in good faith find the money and correct this egregious abuse through the VERA formula.

To additionally make the point, Mr. Chairman, the current VERA formula is unacceptable. New Jersey and the Northeast stand to lose up to $130 million over the next three years. VERA favor veterans centers in the South and West over the Northeast. Although there are fewer veterans in the Northeast, their health problems are more expensive than the "healthy" veterans who retired and live in the South and West.

New Jersey has one of the oldest and neediest veteran population in the nation. Most of the veterans in the South and West do not have extensive health problems associated with age like in the Northeast. In addition, when many veterans that retired to the South and West become infirmed they find the health centers caring for veterans inadequate and return to their former homes in the northeast to receive proper medical attention. This places another burden on veteran health centers in the Northeast that was not anticipated by VERA and selfishly pits veterans against veterans in a regional fight for federal dollars. Veterans are veterans . . . no matter where they live.

The strain created by the reduction in funding is taking a tragic toll on the veterans of New Jersey and the northeast. To save money, the VA has cut back on numerous services for veterans and instituted various managed care procedures that have the impact of destroying the quality of care the veterans receive. For instance, the VA has reduced the amount of treatment offered to those who suffer from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) and reduced the number of medical personnel at various health centers. As a result of these cuts, there has been an erosion of confidence between veterans and the VA. This erosion threatens to destroy the solemn commitment that this nation made to its veterans when they were called to duty.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. ROUKEMA. I yield to the gentleman from New York, the author of the amendment.

Mr. HINCHEY. I very much thank the gentlewoman for yielding. I would like to take this opportunity to draw the attention of the Members of the House to the Inspector General report which was discussed here a few moments ago. At that time, I made the point that it was quite clear that although the report itself did not stipulate a causal relationship between VERA and the decline in quality and the increase in mortality, that it was clear to reason that one followed upon the other.

I want now to say this to my friends and colleagues here. Although the report did not stipulate that VERA was the causal effect, the author of the report, the Inspector General, said to me personally that he believed that VERA was the causal effect of the decline in quality in our veterans hospitals and that VERA was the causal effect of the increase in mortality in our veterans hospitals. That is undeniable. We have that from the mouth of the author of the report himself.

I would just like to say this, also. This amendment is about fairness. This amendment is not about taking money from one part of the country and giving it to another. This is not an amendment to hurt Florida. Yes, I listened carefully to what was said a few minutes ago by a number of our friends and colleagues from Florida who talked about the increase in the number of veterans in that State. Undeniably that is true. I addressed that, in fact, in my opening remarks. We are not denying that Florida veterans need more help and more funding because of the increase in population of veterans in that State and some other States in the South as well. What I am saying is that VERA is not doing it fairly. VERA is turning its back on the veterans in other parts of the country, not just the Northeast. I read the list to Members a couple of times. Veterans headquarters in every part of the country, from the East through the Midwest, including the South, Durham, North Carolina for example, out to Long Beach are being adversely affected. Veterans funds are being cut in every one of those regions. This amendment is about fairness. It simply says, yes, we have to recognize that we have to do more for veterans in Florida and more for veterans in Arizona and other places but let us not do it at the expense of veterans in other parts of the country.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Exactly.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. ROUKEMA) has expired.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentlewoman be given 2 additional minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I object.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, sometimes it is almost laughable. I am a veteran. I live here in the Northeast right now. I want fairness for veterans. There is no one that I take a back seat to on support for veterans issues or active duty military issues. But I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment.

Let us look at cause and effect. I am going to speak to my Republican colleagues, not even the opposition over here. Many of those that live in the Northeast are the first to support the great social programs. Look at the National Endowment for the Arts. Why do you not cut it? How about Davis-Bacon, that we can save 35 percent on all construction, but will you stop that? We could put every penny of that in veterans. And the great social programs that you support and the war on the West. So do not come to me crying that your veterans are not being taken care of.

Those that support defense, we want live veterans. Three hundred percent operation deployments above what it was during the Cold War. We are only maintaining 24 percent of our military. That means all of them are going to become veterans. Defense cuts.

And then my colleagues on the other side from the Northeast saying, well, there were tax breaks for the rich. Now, I want to tell the gentleman, veterans benefit from tax breaks, just like anybody else. Veterans benefit from a balanced budget that most of them voted against for low interest rates, whether it is for scholarships, for homes or buying a home or just getting a double-egg double-cheese double-fryburger down at the store. And yet they cry, "Oh, there is no money."

So look at the cause of why we are. We pay nearly $1 billion a day on the national debt, $360 billion we could use for veterans care. But a liberal Congress over 40 years spent with big government, high taxes. And where are we now under a balanced budget? We could survive under a balanced budget, but if the President refuses to pay for 300 percent Operation Tempo, where does that money come from out of defense? It goes against our veterans. We could use the $25 billion that it is costing us in Bosnia, and we could fund every veterans program there is.

So do not come to me crying, we need to fund our veterans, or that we are cutting veterans. I want more money for veterans, but I look at the cause of why we cannot give it.

I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of Representative HINCHEY's amendment to prohibit funding for the implementation of the Veteran's Equitable Resource Allocation program.

Making sure our veterans receive high quality care is one of my top priorities. This is an issue of basic fairness—when our country called on men and women to serve, they answered without hesitation. In return, we promised to take care of them when they got sick or old. Our country must honor their part of this agreement.

I often visit the Northport VA facility on Long Island and I am always impressed by the quality of health care that is available. More importantly, I am impressed by the praise the facility received from the patients themselves. As a nurse, I know that the best critic of a health care facility is its patients.

I am pleased to say that the veterans treated at the Northport facility are extremely satisfied with their quality of care. Unfortunately, I am also aware that this high quality health care is in jeopardy. In the Northeast, the implementation of VERA would result in decreased funding for our VA facilities. At this point, most of our VA hospitals in the Northeast have already cut back on spending and trimmed down. Further cutbacks in funding to our VA hospitals will come at the expense of patient care. Our VA hospitals will be forced to cut back on the bare necessities, like nursing and support staff, which we all know are the backbone of quality care. We must not allow this to happen.

That is why I rise in support of Representative HINCHEY's amendment to prohibit the implementation of the Veteran's Resource Allocation Program. This amendment will ensure that valuable resource dollars for veterans health care remain in the Northeast.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, this Member rises today in strong support of the Hinchey amendment and in opposition to the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation (VERA) system. As you know, VERA provides the Department of Veterans Affairs medical care funding to regions across the country, and uses an allocation formula that ties funding for each of the 22 geographic regions to the number of veterans that they actually serve, based on per capita veterans usage of facilities. While this sounds like fair allocation system in theory, it has detrimental effects on VA medical care in many areas of the country, especially sparsely populated areas like Nebraska.

From the time the Administration announced this new system, this Member has opposed VERA and have supported funding levels of the VA Health Administration above the amount the President recommended. This new formula has produced a 5 percent decrease in funding for this fiscal year for my state, which resulted in a $13.5 million decrease in funding distributed to my state of Nebraska. Already, we have been threatened by the closure of a major VA medical facility in my district. VERA has seriously impacted health care for veterans in the less populated states and generally ignored existing facilities such as the Lincoln VA Hospital. In fact, last February the Administration recommended that inpatient care at the Lincoln VA Hospital be terminated in the near future. While it is true that the number of veterans served at the Lincoln VA Hospital and other VA facilities in the state have decreased over the past years, as they have in most areas of the nation because we now deny most veterans in-patient care in our VA hospitals. Nevertheless, we still have an obligation to provide care to these people who served our country during our greatest times of need. There must be at least a basic level of acceptable national infrastructure of facilities, and medical personnel is needed to serve our veterans wherever they live. This Member finds the decrease in quality and accessibility of medical care for veterans who live in sparsely populated areas to be completely unacceptable.

Everyone will agree that the VA must provide adequate facilities for veterans all across the country regardless of whether they live in sparsely populated areas with resultant low usage numbers for VA hospitals. This Member strongly supports the Hinchey amendment to prevent further implementation of the Veterans Equitable Resource Allocation system. American veterans living in all areas of the country deserve nothing less. This Member asks his colleagues to support the Hinchey Amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 501, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) will be postponed.

AMENDMENT NO. 32 OFFERED BY MR. HILLEARY

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 32 offered by Mr. HILLEARY:

At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. . The amounts otherwise provided by this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available for "DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT—COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT—HOUSING OPPORTUNITIES FOR PERSONS WITH AIDS, and increasing the amount made available for "DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS—DEPARTMENTAL ADMINISTRATION—GRANTS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF STATE EXTENDED CARE FACILITIES," by $21,000,000.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, I rise today and offer an amendment to H.R. 4194 that will adjust HUD housing opportunities for persons with AIDS back to fiscal year 1998 levels and invest more money in the Department of Veterans Affairs grants for construction of State extended-care facilities.

Mr. Chairman, I must first acknowledge the hard work of the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and his counterpart on the other side of the aisle and the members of the committee and their staff for all the hard work on this bill. I know they did everything they could to come up with a balanced budget. I think it is pretty balanced.

But I just have one small amendment I want to make, and it is very simple. As has been said many times on the floor this afternoon, we have a severe shortage of veterans care facilities, both health care and these type of housing facilities. This program is used to provide matching grants to States to construct State home facilities, to provide a home or nursing home care to veterans. These grants may also be used to expand, remodel or alter existing facilities that provide those needs to veterans or that provide hospital care to veterans in State homes.

The need for veterans care facilities continues to increase at a rapid pace as the veterans population continues to age. The number of veterans 65 and over is expected to peak in the year 2000 at 9.3 million. H.R. 4194 in its present form appropriates $80 million for this program, the same as last year, while the number of veterans who need this program has dramatically risen. To fully fund the extended-care needs of our veterans in this country for fiscal year 1999 we would need $152 million.

My amendment does not even meet that level of assistance, but it does transfer $21 million toward that goal. This additional money would provide grants to assist States in constructing State home facilities. My amendment transfers $21 million from the base bill's increase in housing for persons with AIDS. My amendment does not cut dollars from housing opportunities for Persons With AIDS program. It simply freezes that program at fiscal year 1998 levels. While the number of aging veterans who require this program continues to increase at a rapid pace, the most recent data shows that the annual number of new AIDS cases declined by 6 percent. Once again, the base bill increases funding for housing opportunities for persons with AIDS by 21 million over fiscal year 1998 levels while the base bill freezes funding for veterans housing at fiscal year 1998 levels even though the number of veterans who need this housing has increased dramatically. My amendment transfers the increase in funding to veterans housing and leaves housing for those with AIDS frozen at the fiscal year 1998 level.

I want my colleagues to know that the American Legion fully supports this effort to increase VA grants for construction of State extended-care facilities by this $21 million.

I ask my colleagues to consider what is at hand and make the right choice, and I urge a strong vote on this amendment.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. NADLER TO THE AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. HILLEARY

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. NADLER to the amendment offered by Mr. HILLEARY:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted insert the following:

SEC. XXX. The amounts otherwise provided by this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available for National Aeronautics and Space Administration—Human Space Flight for and increasing the amount made available for Department of Veterans Affairs—Departmental Administration—grants for construction of state extended care facilities', by $21,000,000.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I recognize the intentions and the intelligence of the gentleman's intention to increase $21 million in funding to the veterans housing and medical care facilities. I object, however, to his wanting to take this $21 million away from the housing opportunities for people with AIDS, or HOPWA program. It is a cut in the HOPWA program compared to what the bill gives it of almost 10 percent. The HOPWA program is the only Federal housing program that specifically provides cities and States hardest hit by the AIDS epidemic with the resources to address the housing crisis facing people living with AIDS. Sixty percent of all people living with HIV and AIDS will face a housing crisis at some point during their illness because of high medical expenses and the loss of wages attendant under the disease.

Major strides, thank God, have been made in treatment options for people living with AIDS, and with these advances there is new hope. But the cost of these treatments often places people in the position to decide between essential medications and other necessities such as housing. Further, individuals who have HIV and AIDS must have stable housing, access to and benefits from complex drug treatments which often requires special dietary needs.

Medications must often be refrigerated and taken on a rigid time schedule. Inadequate housing is not only a barrier to treatment, but also puts people with AIDS at risk of premature death from exposure to other diseases, poor nutrition, stress and lack of medical care. At any given time, one-third to one-half of all Americans with AIDS are either homeless or in imminent danger of losing their homes. HOPWA answers this need.

Mr. Chairman, increasing numbers of people have AIDS in this country and increasing numbers of people every year, luckily, because of our medical advances, are surviving and living longer, and we need more money for HOPWA. A cut of almost 10 percent makes no sense.

So I would suggest, instead, and what my amendment does is takes $21 million instead away from the space station which is funded this year at 2.1 billion. So this is 1 one-thousandth, a reduction of 1 one-thousandth in the space station budget, instead of a reduction of 10 percent in the HOPWA budget.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NADLER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, let me say to the gentleman I appreciate where he is coming from. It has been my intention to oppose the amendment as it is presented. If we go through with this process of amending amendments, I am not sure the chairman is going to be able to find himself in that position.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, let me just suggest if the gentleman would accept the amendment, I would support his amendment. If he does not, I have to oppose his amendment. I think the space station, regardless of how colleagues voted on the Roemer amendment, $20 million less, $21 million less out of 2.1 billion, will not materially affect when the space station is completed; but a 10 percent reduction in HOPWA is a devastating cut, and I would ask if the gentleman would accept the amendment.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NADLER. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, I cannot accept that amendment simply because it is not a devastating cut to HOPWA. This is going to freeze it at its present level.

Mr. NADLER. Reclaiming my time, if the gentleman will not accept the amendment, I have to say a 10 percent cut is a very heavy cut. We have a choice, and I will press the amendment. We have a choice. If the amendment goes as it is, then it is a 10 percent cut to HOPWA. I do not see how my colleague can rationally say that it will make a material difference to the space station whether it gets 2.1 billion or 2.098, or whatever it is, billion dollars.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NADLER. I yield to the gentleman from Oklahoma.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Chairman, the actual numbers of people with AIDS in our country declined 6 percent this past year. That is a fact produced. It is because we are doing a good job on triple drug therapy and there are more people living with HIV that the actual number of people living with AIDS is down 6 percent in our country, living with AIDS.

Mr. NADLER. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, my information, and I do not have the figures in front of me, is that the number of people who died from AIDS is down, thank God, but the number of people living with AIDS is up because more people are contracting AIDS every year and fewer people are dying from it and more people are living with it.

So we need these funds.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield on that particular?

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, no, there is no point debating that specific. The fact is we have great unmet needs for housing for people with AIDS. The committee made an intelligent decision, and now to cut the budget by $21 million, by almost 10 percent for veterans needs which are also there, I do not understand the stubbornness in not accepting my amendment which I hope people will agree to. A 1 one-thousandth reduction in the space station is a heck of a lot more bearable than a 10 percent reduction in housing for people with AIDS. One doesn't really have an effect, the other has a very substantial effect, and I just hope people will think about it.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NADLER. I yield to the gentleman if he has a question to ask me.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. NADLER was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, I was simply going to say that I think the statistic about the 6 percent decrease might not be exactly right. It is a decrease in the number of new cases, a percentage decrease in the number. It is a decrease in the increase of the number of new cases, and I just wanted to clarify that.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, the needs in both areas are going up, and I would again implore the gentleman to accept the amendment because it will not affect the space station, 21 million, it is so tiny a percentage of it, but it will really affect HOPWA.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I wanted to rise in opposition to the Nadler amendment and, in addition to that, enter into a colloquy with the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG, I have read the various "Dear Colleague" letters that have been distributed on the committee bill and listened carefully to the floor debate on this issue. Is it the committee's intention to limit EPA programs such as a climate challenge, the program for a new generation of vehicles, green lights, energy start and other programs that Congress has funded in the past?

I raise this issue because these programs have increased energy efficiency over the range of U.S. energy in industrial sectors of our economy. It would not seem that it was the intent of the legislation to report language or limit these activities.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARTON of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the opportunity to respond to the gentleman's inquiry about this legislation because there has been a great deal of misunderstanding and mischaracterizations regarding the real-world results it might have on EPA.

We need this provision in order to assure that EPA does not undertake back-door implementation of the Kyoto Protocol. This is a strong setup of the House based on the debate that we have had. We have seen a trend where EPA is beginning to interpret existing statutes overly broadly and to even create new interpretations of current law. These examples have come out in oversight hearings in both the House and the Senate.

The main purpose of the legislative and report language is to ensure that existing regulatory authority is not misused to implement or to serve as a future basis for the implementation of the Kyoto Protocol in advance of its consideration and approval by the Senate of the United States. We are not trying to cripple or to cancel existing energy conservation programs or to curtail research development and demonstration programs for new, more efficient technologies or to undermine existing environmental law. We are only trying to keep EPA honest.

That is our job in Congress, to conduct oversight hearings and to make sure that the Federal agencies live by the letter of the law and the Constitution and to ensure taxpayer money is spent wisely.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman from Michigan if the Senate has taken a similar position in their VA appropriation bill.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. I would be pleased to respond to that.

The Senate does indeed have a similar position dealing with this issue. In fact, Senator CHAFEE, the chairman of the Senate Environment Committee, stated in a colloquy with Senator BOND, that was during the debate on the VA-HUD appropriations, that he agreed. And let me stress this point: He agreed that the EPA should not use appropriated funds for the purpose of issuing regulations to implement the Kyoto Protocol unless and until such treaty is ratified by the U.S. Senate.

Both the House and the Senate strongly concur in that position, so it is a bit of a red herring for people to say that this legislation will hamstring EPA or hinder energy conservation and greenhouse gas reduction programs that are ongoing.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. I understand that there is more concern about the report language in this bill than the legislative language. There seems to be various interpretations of the report language.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. The report language simply tries to clarify that EPA has been pushing the envelope with various activities that have been portrayed as being educational in nature but have, in fact, become Kyoto Protocol advocacy activities. We wanted to make it clear that EPA should not be engaged in advocating for implementation of the Kyoto Protocol, or through its so-called outreach activities that would actually implement the protocol. It was not our intention to stifle discussion about potential climate change, scientific give and take, research or general educational efforts regarding global climate. This report language was never intended to muzzle EPA. It was, however, needed because we wanted to clear the EPA and the CEQ, but there is a fine line between education and advocacy, and that the EPA should not cross that line.

The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) made this quite clear during the debate on this amendment.

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, to summarize, I appreciate the gentleman's clarification. I agree that EPA should not be stopped from fostering legitimate scientific research and balanced public debate on this issue because there is still much to be learned in this area. During our numerous congressional hearings on this issue, the administration has not been willing to engage in this debate.

For example, we have yet to receive an authoritative analysis of the economic impact of the Kyoto Protocol reflecting all of the constraints on possible emissions trading. As chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations of the Committee on Commerce, I look forward to working to assure that the administration, EPA and CEQ understands this guidance, and I thank the patience of the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS).

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARTON of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield to the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) by chance?

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I yield to my good friend, the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I am informed that the chairman of the subcommittee would probably oppose the Hilleary amendment, in fact, I think he said that on the floor but I was not listening carefully enough, if we withdraw this amendment to the amendment.

So, Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the secondary amendment on the understanding that we will have support in opposing the Hilleary amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. HILLEARY) is withdrawn.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. HILLEARY). I cannot support reducing the amount provided for housing opportunities for people with AIDS, as the Hilleary amendment proposes to do.

□ 1700

Last year's appropriations bill provided a 70 percent increase for this program. This year, we simply held the program constant at the higher amount. It is also true that the committee did recommend an increase for the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS Program.

This year's recommended increase is about 15 percent, and it follows smaller increases or freezes in the preceding years. Why did the Committee on Appropriations consider it so important to provide a modest increase for HOPWA? Quite simply because the need for this program is great and continues to grow each year.

The number of Americans living with AIDS continues to grow. One reason for this is that the number of new cases remains substantial. More than 60,000 last year. Another important reason is that advances in medicine are making it possible for people with HIV infections to live longer. That is wonderful news, but it does mean that, every year, there are more people living with AIDS who may be in need of our help.

One measure of the need for this program is the number of State and local governments that qualify for HOPWA grants. Almost all funding under the HOPWA program is distributed through a formula based on the number of AIDS cases.

When the number of cases in a State or metro area crosses a specified threshold, that State or locality becomes eligible for HOPWA grants. The number of jurisdictions qualifying has risen from 80 last year to 88 this year and is expected to rise to 96 next year.

In this context, the funding increase provided in the bill seems quite modest. Between 1977 and 1999, the number of States and localities qualifying for HOPWA money will increase by 20 percent while the funding will increase by only 15 percent.

That increase is not enough to fully accommodate the newly qualifying States and cities, let alone the workload increases in those places already receiving grants. The Hilleary amendment would cut the 2-year funding increase to just 4 percent, plainly inadequate in the face of the rising need.

Some may ask, why do we have a special housing program for people with AIDS? The answer is that we have a special AIDS-related program because AIDS creates some very special and particularly urgent housing needs.

A number of people living with AIDS are already homeless. Many more face the imminent threat of losing their homes, either because of discrimination or simply because the combination of declining earnings and escalating medical expenses makes housing unaffordable without some help.

At the same time safe, decent, and stable housing is essential to maintaining health and to undertaking the complex medication and treatment regimes that offer the best hope of survival.

But we do not just maintain the HOPWA program out of compassion, although that would be reason enough. The program also makes sense as a matter of economics. It has been estimated that about 30 percent of the HIV patients in acute care hospitals in any given time are in the hospital only because there are no appropriate community-based residential alternatives.

It is far less costly to help someone live in a residential environment with access to supportive services than to have them in and out of emergency rooms and hospitals.

This supportive housing, as funded under the HOPWA program, helps save health care dollars while helping people live healthier, happier, and more productive lives.

In short, HOPWA is a program that makes sense. The modest increase recommended by the committee is more than fully justified by the rising need. We should not eliminate this increase. I urge defeat of the amendment.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Hilleary amendment which would take much-needed funds from the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS, the HOPWA program.

I am sympathetic to the gentleman's concerns about the funding for the veterans program that benefits from this amendment, and that is why I wish that the 602(b) allocation for this particular appropriations bill could be larger.

I sympathize with the attempt on the part of the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) to say we respect the need that the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. HILLEARY) points out, but recognize that this is also a bad place to take the funds. As the distinguished ranking member has said, it is a good investment in health. It saves taxpayers' dollars and, indeed, it saves lives.

I feel very partial to the Housing Opportunities for People With AIDS legislation because the gentleman from Washington (Mr. MCDERMOTT), the gentleman from New York (Mr. SCHUMER), and I were the authors of this legislation on the Committee on Banking and Financial Services or the Committee on Banking, Finance, and Urban Affairs years ago. It has been a successful program that has deserved continuing support of this House under the leadership of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES) and now under the distinguished chairman of the committee, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS).

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS).

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I very much appreciate my colleague from California yielding to me.

I have before me a "Dear Colleague" that is signed by most of those Members who have spoken today regarding this matter on the floor. There is a broad bipartisan understanding of the challenge that AIDS provides for our entire society, and I must say that this particular housing problem is a very, very difficult one. I want to associate myself with the remarks of the gentlewoman from San Francisco, California and appreciate very much her position.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman and his opposition to the Hilleary amendment when he is associating himself with my remarks.

Mr. LEWIS of California. I certainly agree with the gentlewoman's complimenting the concern of the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. HILLEARY) about deference problems; but, the challenge that we have relative to funding these problems that HOPWA programs address deserves our support. Thereby, I oppose the amendment.

Ms. PELOSI. I thank the gentleman for the clarity of his statement, for his leadership on this issue, and for the hard work that he has put into this important VA-HUD bill. He sees the whole picture. He knows the value of this HOPWA program. He has followed it over the years. So I am very, very pleased with his clear statement and the remarks of the distinguished ranking member, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES).

It is clear that, by reducing HOPWA's funding by $21 million, this Hilleary amendment would deny housing assistance to more than 4,800 people. It would result in the withdrawal of program support for an estimated 3,800 units of housing, including funds for rental assistance and homelessness prevention.

If one has HIV, if one is HIV infected, the last thing one's immune system needs is the additional stress of homelessness or the threat of homelessness.

We will hear today, Mr. Chairman, that the HOPWA funds may not be necessary because the annual new number of AIDS cases is declining. The reality is that the need for this housing continues to grow, as does the epidemic, as the ranking member pointed out. In the 1997 reporting period, CDC reported 60,634 new cases, to be precise, in the United States.

HOPWA funding is primarily allocated on a formula basis. Almost since its inception, funding for HOPWA has not kept pace with the number of new communities eligible for HOPWA funds. I would like to name what those communities are for 1999. FY 1999, it is expected that seven communities, Birmingham, Alabama; Buffalo, New York; Honolulu; Wilmington; and the States of Arizona, New Mexico, and Utah will become eligible for HOPWA funds, and five other States: Hawaii, Delaware, Minnesota, Nevada, and Wisconsin, which would otherwise have lost funding due to their urban areas qualifying separately under the formula.

As a result of the good news of the success of powerful drugs fighting the virus, the number of people living with AIDS is increasing dramatically. But so are their needs. In 1997, the number of people living with HIV increased 13 percent. But in order for the drug therapies to work, people need the stability of having a home.

Some of the people on the AIDS drugs must take as many as 40 pills a day at regular times. People cannot comply with the rigors of these drug regimens if they are homeless, moving from shelter to shelter, or trying to cope with impending homelessness.

The number of people living with AIDS has increased by 13 percent. It is important to remember who benefits from HOPWA funding. HOPWA funding is for people with HIV/AIDS and their families. About 25 percent of recipients of HOPWA funds are family members who reside with persons with HIV/AIDS. Over 96 percent of the families and individuals who received HOPWA assistance were households with incomes of less than $1,000 a month.

I know it is difficult for many of us to vote against something for the veterans, but I urge my colleagues to understand what this need is. Many of the people who benefit from the funds are veterans.

Vote "no" on the Hilleary amendment.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, as others have indicated, this amendment would strike funding for programs that are, not only compassionate, but are cost effective. In short, it is working. I am at a loss to understand why anyone would want to undercut it.

The sponsor of the amendment says he wants to redirect this money to veterans' health care programs but who does he think these funds are benefiting now? Because it is important to remember that roughly 30 percent of the homeless in America are veterans, and many of these are numbered among the 100,000 to 150,000 veterans who are living with HIV.

These are the very people that HOPWA serves. It helps them live longer and stay healthier. It spares States and localities the far greater costs of hospital and emergency room care to which they would otherwise be forced to turn.

If this amendment succeeds, thousands would be forced to choose between paying their medical bills or paying the rent. Many would end up in acute care hospitals at a cost 10 to 20 times that of the housing and services that they would receive in a HOPWA-funded residential facility.

The rest could find themselves huddled in homeless shelters and sleeping on grates.

Mr. Chairman, I associate myself and welcome the remarks of the other speakers and am pleased to hear the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), the chair of the subcommittee, will oppose this particular amendment.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DELAHUNT. I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman very much because I quickly want to associate myself with the gentleman's remarks because I was here previously on the floor of the House discussing the question about the needs of veterans.

I do want to say that this is a difficult and very wrenching decision. The gentleman is right, 100,000 to 150,000 of our veterans are living with HIV. I know that many of our veterans are homeless.

Another point I wanted to raise, many people living with AIDS are suffering housing discrimination. People do not want them around, and the idea of HOPWA is to provide clean, secure housing that these people who have been in the past looked at as being contagious or not wanting to have people around them and being isolated or rejected from normal housing situations, to be able to have good clean housing.

As you well know, the increase in minority populations also require this kind of housing.

I would simply say that we are making a wrenching decision that really would be more hurtful, hurtful to veterans living with AIDS, hurtful to new populations and other States that are being grandfathered in and other States like Utah that are being added in, and I would hope that we would defeat this amendment, recognizing how crucial it is to be able to provide for these people living with this disease and living longer.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in reluctant opposition to this amendment. I have always supported the highest possible spending levels for veterans programs, but unfortunately we should not be pitting one important program against another and that is what this amendment does by cutting the housing opportunities for people with AIDS, the HOPWA program, by $21 million.

Mr. Chairman, the HOPWA program has strong bipartisanship support. It is the only Federal housing program that specifically provides cities and States, those that are hardest hit by the AIDS epidemic, with the resources to address the housing crisis faced by people living with AIDS.

In fact, the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) and I circulated a Congressional letter to appropriators urging increased funding for HOPWA and this letter was co-signed by almost 100 Members of both parties.

It is true that the number of AIDS-related deaths has begun to decline thanks to dramatic new treatments and improvements in care. However, HIV/AIDS remains a major killer of young people. It is the leading cause of death for African and Hispanic Americans between the ages of 25 and 44.

The high cost of the new treatments has often forced people to decide between essential medications and other necessities, such as housing. Further, stable housing is critical to the success of the drug regime. The medication often must be refrigerated and taken on a rigid time schedule.

Without adequate housing, people with HIV/AIDS may not only be unable to adhere to the strict regimen required but premature death may result from poor nutrition, exposure to other diseases and the lack of medical care. At any given time, one-third to one-half of all people with AIDS are either homeless or on the verge of losing their homes.

HOPWA addresses this need by providing reasonably priced housing for thousands of individuals and yet the demand far outstrips the supply. HOPWA gives cities and States the ability to provide community-based cost effective housing and, in so doing, reduces the number of people who would otherwise end up on the streets or in acute care facilities.

At a daily cost of $1,085 per day under Medicaid, acute care facilities are far more expensive than HOPWA community housing, which averages $55 to $110 per day. Nationwide, HOPWA saves an estimated $47,000 per person per year in emergency medical expenses.

Contrary to the assertions that there is a reduced need for HOPWA funding, HUD has estimated that an additional seven to ten jurisdictions will qualify for HOPWA funding during fiscal year 1999, a program that already serves more than 52,000 individuals in 88 jurisdictions, 59 metropolitan areas, and 29 States.

To prevent cuts to qualifying jurisdictions, the bill's level of funding is needed. It is important to realize that the increase in HOPWA spending in the bill simply maintains current services for qualifying jurisdictions. It is important to recognize that between 100,000 and 150,000 veterans currently access some level of HIV-AIDS services, and many of these veterans are also eligible for housing assistance under HOPWA.

Mr. Chairman, I will certainly work in conference to ensure that veterans' housing is increased. However, this funding offset is unacceptable, and I must reluctantly oppose the amendment. I hope my colleagues will do likewise.

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong opposition to the Hilleary amendment. While I recognize the urgency of housing for our Nation's veterans, robbing Peter to pay Paul is not the way to go.

The Hilleary amendment would take away $21 million earmarked for the Housing Opportunity Act from the 1999 budget. This is a bill that, as the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) said, we started a long time ago. And I think we ought to acknowledge the gentleman from Texas (Mr. GONZALEZ), who really was the man who was in charge of the committee when we were on it; and when we told him about this idea he said, it sounds like a good idea.

While supporters of this bill will argue that we are not cutting HOPWA per se but rather freezing it at the 1998 levels, I would argue that an increase is what is actually needed to provide adequate housing for people living with AIDS, many of whom are veterans.

As my colleagues have heard, what the gentleman fails to recognize is the dramatic increase in the number of veterans with AIDS. There are 100,000 to 150,000 people in this country who are veterans who have HIV. 17,000 of them are taken care of in the VA system, and roughly 30 percent of the homeless in the United States are veterans.

Now, with the advent of new drug therapies, new hope is offered to people with HIV. However, these therapies are not available to everyone, especially the homeless. Strict regimens and a proper diet are mandatory for these drug therapies to work, and people with inadequate housing are not good candidates for such therapy.

This was one of the suggestions of the Reagan Commission on AIDS. There were five suggestions, and one of them was HOPWA. The reason they suggested it is because when one has AIDS, one has a weakened system, and if one does not have anyplace to live, one winds up in a shelter.

Now, if one goes into a shelter and one sleeps in a big room with 200 or 300 people and one has no defense system, one picks up every disease in the world, so one then gets sick and winds up back in the hospital. And every big city hospital in this country has had the experience of getting somebody with AIDS up and stabilized and ready to go out but knowing if they put them out of the hospital they will be back in in worse shape. That is what this program is really all about. We are not talking about people who have not served their country.

HOPWA really is a link between housing and health care. And if one looks at the numbers, one would say, well, AIDS is declining in this country; but, actually, the HIV infection rate in selected groups continues to rise. Tragically, that epidemic is increasing among the low-income communities where homelessness is a reality or it is one paycheck away.

HOPWA helps fund a variety of AIDS services throughout Washington State, not just in the district where I come from, but from the Sean Humphrey House in Bellingham in the district of the gentleman from Washington (Mr. METCALF); Three Cedars in Tacoma; the Tamarak House in Yakima, which is in the district of the gentleman from Washington (Mr. HASTINGS); and the Bailey Boushay House in my district. HOPWA is used by housing authorities in Spokane, Tacoma and Seattle. So it is distributed across our State; it is not just in the big cities.

Mr. Chairman, I have always been an advocate for the Nation's veterans, and it is critical that we ensure adequate health care and housing for them. However, cutting the one is the wrong way to get the other.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to vote against the Hilleary amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment of the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. HILLEARY).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. HILLEARY. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to House Resolution 501, further proceedings on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. HILLEARY) will be postponed.

Mr. DOOLEY of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

I would like to engage the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), chairman of the subcommittee, on a matter of importance to my district in the San Joaquin Valley of California.

The agricultural communities along Interstate 5 in the San Joaquin Valley face chronically high unemployment rates that are, in part, as a result of uncertain water supplies. A coordinated water resources management plan that makes the maximum use of available supplies must be a central feature of any environmental protection or economic development initiative in the arid Central Valley.

A partnership of public and private interests in the I–5 corridor has proposed a Water Resources Assessment Plan that will centralize information on the region's surface and groundwater supplies. This information will include assessments of water quality conditions, wetlands, riparian habitat and domestic industrial water needs.

I look forward to working with the chairman and the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES), the ranking member, and the conferees in trying to identify funding for this important effort.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DOOLEY of California. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the comments of the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY). I will be glad to work with him on this very worthy project and plan to talk with him between now and conference as well.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I take this time in order to engage in a colloquy with the chairman of the subcommittee and potentially with the ranking minority member.

Legislation was enacted in 1996 to amend the Safe Drinking Water Act and to inject more common sense into the process of testing and treating our Nation's drinking water. This Member is concerned, as a representative of the State that has the largest use of groundwater for its public water supplies by far in the Nation, with only 7 out of some 700 or 800 systems using any surface water. I am concerned that the Environmental Protection Agency's groundwater rule may be ignoring congressional intent. Specifically, the EPA may attempt to implement a rule which would result in enormous disinfection costs for small communities, but with no actual benefits to the citizens of those communities.

In recognition of the general good quality of our Nation's groundwater, the excellent existing State water quality protection programs, and the expense and other complications of unneeded treatment, not to mention questions about whether or not some of the treatment agents themselves are threatening the health, the Safe Drinking Water Act of 1996 provided the EPA with only the authority to promulgate regulations requiring disinfection as a treatment technique, as necessary, and I stress the words "as necessary," for all public water systems using groundwater. Therefore, this Member would request that the chairman of the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies of the Committee on Appropriations enter into a colloquy on this matter.

Mr. Chairman, is it the committee's intention that a small community using groundwater should not be subject to EPA-directed improvements unless the community's groundwater poses a genuine health risk?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEREUTER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, yes, it is.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

Is it also the committee's intention that EPA should work to develop a groundwater rule which gives the States adequate flexibility in developing preventive measures?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, let me say to the gentleman I appreciate his bringing this problem to my attention and the committee's attention. It is our intention to not only be responsive to that problem but to have as much flexibility as possible in dealing with those communities' problems.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman. I would say to the distinguished gentleman I appreciate his clarification, and I appreciate the fact that the subcommittee's report language also addresses this subject.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate my colleague's concern.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BEREUTER

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BEREUTER:

SECTION 425. The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, in consultation with the National Academy of Sciences, shall expedite a review of scientific literature concerning the health effects of copper in drinking water. The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency shall assemble a team of technical and policy experts from the Agency's Region 7 Office and headquarters to work with Nebraska state officials to help identify and clarify measures to meet requirements of the Copper Rule where central treatment of groundwater is not cost effective. The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency shall expedite clinical research studies regarding the health effects of copper in drinking water. The Environmental Protection Agency shall use the results of its review of scientific literature and clinical studies of the health effects of copper in drinking water to review the National Primary Drinking Water Standard for copper pursuant to section 1412(b)(9) of the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) reserves a point of order.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I understand that the gentleman is reserving a point of order, and this is straightforward legislating on an appropriation bill if it were to be accepted. I understand that fact.

I have two amendments filed, I would say to my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, that indeed are in order. One simply forbids the use of funds to implement the copper rule, and the other takes $15 million out of the administrator's office. Both are in order. I would prefer not to offer them.

I gave my colleagues some indication of why this is particularly important to my State. I want to tell my colleagues that the Republican Attorney General of Nebraska is filing or has filed a lawsuit on this issue. The Democratic governor is supporting that lawsuit and requesting relief for more than 60 communities in our State that are affected by the copper rule, and the entire Nebraska delegation in both Houses are very much involved in trying to find a solution to this issue.

In fact, I believe that the amendment offered here might well be acceptable to the EPA and to the appropriators and authorizers on both sides of the aisle as report language, but what the administrator wants to avoid is any kind of statutory direction, and I think that is what it comes down to on this amendment. But I do think it is better to have that statutory language than report language which seems sometimes to have little impact upon the Environmental Protection Agency. And I think I would say to my colleagues it is better to accept this amendment than having one of the two other amendments that are in order and which are not subject to a point of order.

Unfortunately, the EPA is moving forward in implementing a regulation, despite the lack of any convincing evidence of adverse health effects which would justify its current course of action. As a result, the current regulations will result in enormous costs for water systems across the country, even though it is unlikely to result in any health benefits.

Obviously, communities do not have unlimited financial resources, and money spent on compliance with the copper rule is money that cannot be spent for other necessary community needs. The costs are significant for all communities, especially the smaller ones. As a result, it is crucial that this rule be implemented only if it is supported by solid, objective and scientific research.

The EPA's current standard relies on what seems to be almost anecdotal evidence rather than scientific studies. For instance, one of the studies cited by the EPA involved nurses who became ill after consuming cocktails which were mixed and stored in corroded copper-lined containers. It is important to emphasize that this so-called copper problem is generally the result of the corrosion of copper household plumbing, rather than by copper in the community's water sources.

In addition, copper concentrations from plumbing result from water setting in copper pipes for many hours and the level drops dramatically after the tap has run for several seconds.

The commonsense solution to any potential problem related to copper concentrations from plumbing in the house is to have consumers simply run the faucet for less than a minute for the first time the water is used in the morning, and that eliminates the problem or reduces the copper level below the 1.3 or even below the 2.0, 3.0 milligrams per liter, whatever standard or copper action level you might wish to choose.

To help compensate for the dearth of scientific research on the issue of copper in drinking water, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention were commissioned to conduct new and more comprehensive studies. One was conducted in Nebraska and the other in Delaware. The studies are expected to be published soon. They have not been peer-reviewed. That is the problem at this point.

The interim CDC report on the Nebraska study concluded that "People were not experiencing G.I.," gastrointestinal, "illness related to the level of copper in their drinking water, even though in 51 of the selected homes drinking water levels were greater than 2 times the EPA action level the year prior to the study."

A similar study in Delaware which had even higher copper concentration levels also found that the water was safe for drinking. Correspondence from the EPA concerning the Delaware study acknowledges that "Study results suggested no meaningful differences in the symptoms typically associated with copper toxicity between the control group, those not exposed to copper in drinking water, and the group with high copper levels of 5 milligrams per liter."

That 5.0 level is much more than what is being proposed here by the EPA in the way of a copper action level—1.3 milligrams per bites. That is on the "first draw sample."

The EPA rule establishes an action level for copper and drinking water of 1.3 milligrams per liter. Yet our Canadian friends and the World Health Organization says it should be at 2.0. They also provided for a risk margin at that level, as well.

Copper in drinking water is generally caused by household plumbing, as I said, rather than water source. In addition, copper concentrations result from water setting in copper pipes for many hours, and the level drops dramatically after the tap has been run for several seconds.

I could give the Members some statistics about a number of our communities.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. BEREUTER was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, in one of our communities, a community of 23,000, the estimated initial cost would be $1 million for water treatment equipment, $250,000 per year for treatment. Unfortunately, it would result in no health benefits. That community has wells in 14 different locations. None of them are interconnected. There is no central point for decontamination, disinfection, or copper treatment. That is a very typical situation in our State. We are unique in that respect. We have the largest groundwater supply in the continent.

Although this Member is obviously most familiar with the problems in our communities, it is important to keep in mind that dozens of States will be affected by this rule. If Members have not heard from communities in their districts, they should expect in the near future to hear from them as the EPA pushes for enforcement.

This Member has had repeated contacts with the EPA on the issue dating back to 1993. Unfortunately, the EPA has resisted a commonsense approach, and this Member has come to the conclusion that Congress must act to correct the situation. This amendment does not go nearly as far as I would like, but it does require them to move ahead in consultation with the National Academy of Sciences to find a proper copper action level.

I want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) for his work and the work of his staff with me in trying to find some accommodation on this issue.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEREUTER. I am pleased to yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. BILIRAKIS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

As the gentleman knows, the original amendment that he is planning to offer was an amendment that I was prepared to oppose very, very strongly, because we, the majority and the minority, worked awfully hard for a long time to come up with the Safe Drinking Water Act, and now, just a short time afterward, it looked like attempts were made to change that.

But we have pointed that out to the gentleman, and we had tremendous cooperation in trying to work this out. Actually, the language we did work out would not have changed, because there was never any intent on our part to change, the Safe Drinking Water Act in any way whatsoever. It was just basically to focus on the fact that there is a problem in Nebraska in expediting a review, and asking the EPA to use the results of its review pursuant to the appropriate section of the Safe Drinking Water Act.

So whereas I suppose technically it is legislating on an appropriations bill, there is really no intent to do that, or to change the Safe Drinking Water Act in any way whatsoever.

Again, I appreciate the gentleman's understanding and cooperation. I would hope that the Environmental Protection Agency would see that we are focusing on this, even though we certainly do not intend to change the Act.

Mr. BEREUTER. I am pleased to have the gentleman's comments. I appreciate his assistance.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEREUTER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I know the gentleman is trying to deal with a very real problem in the gentleman's State.

As I understand it, the language that the gentleman has worked out would be acceptable to the Administrator in the report of this legislation. But the Administrator is reluctant to have the precedent of having this language inserted in the statute itself.

The gentleman expressed his concern that perhaps the report language would not be taken seriously, and statutory language would be necessary to accomplish the goals. I would point out to the gentleman that if the Administrator is supporting this language——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. BEREUTER was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEREUTER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, as I understand it, the Administrator is willing to commit to follow the language that we would seek to have in the report. The gentleman has more assurance than simply report language, because the one to whom it is directed is promising to carry it out.

The subsequent point I want to make is that just last week, as we discussed this bill, we had a heated debate over whether the report language that I and others were trying to strike in the appropriations bill would be taken seriously and we had assurances from the Chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee that report language is not binding, but we were concerned that the report language would be intimidating to the EPA, and that we did not want that report language to go forward.

So my point to the gentleman is that I regret that I am going to have to make the point of order, but I would have hoped that this could have been in the report, and that the whole issue might have been avoided.

Mr. BEREUTER. Reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for his understanding of the concern that we have in our State. It is not our State alone, but we have a more severe problem with it, there is no doubt about it, because of our groundwater dependence and the corrosive impact of copper in the house pipes.

I would say to the gentleman, perhaps he could help this gentleman understand, since we are legislators, what the difficulty is in us legislating some advice on the kind of studies that are necessary, since we are not changing the copper standard, since we are only asking them to proceed at the same time with studies to be done in consultation with the National Academy of Sciences?

What is there about the precedent of having some statutory direction that is so offensive to the administrator?

Mr. WAXMAN. If the gentleman will continue to yield, I think the concern the Administrator has, and I think it is a legitimate one, is that if we start legislating on specific problems in appropriations bills——

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. BEREUTER was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEREUTER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, the concern is that once we have that precedent, we will have a never-ending series of small changes that people will try to make in our laws—whether it is the drinking water law or some other statutory environmental legislation.

So for that reason, there is this reluctance to accept this proposal offered as bill language.

Mr. BEREUTER. I thank the gentleman for his comments. I think we are in the business of making judgments as legislators over appropriate kinds of initiatives by Members trying to take the interest of their constituents to heart. If statutory direction is a bad idea, if it does damage in a national sense to priorities, then the gentleman has a right to object. That is his responsibility. I see no reason why that would happen in this instance.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEREUTER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, if we were in a position of having this item considered as part of the report language, I could tell the gentleman that I would work directly with him between now and the time we go to conference to try to find a way, with our colleagues, to accommodate the gentleman's problem.

Mr. BEREUTER. I thank the gentleman. I know that he is sincere in this, but perhaps the gentleman himself knows that the entire Nebraska delegation has met with Ms. Browner and people under her in the last several weeks.

Mr. LEWIS of California. If the gentleman will yield further, I would mention to the gentleman that I believe the Senator from the gentleman's State is a member of the committee, and will be participating in the conference as well.

Mr. BEREUTER. I wish that was the case, but my senior Senator gave up his position to go to the Senate Finance Committee.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER) has expired.

(On request of Mr. WAXMAN, and by unanimous consent, Mr. BEREUTER was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BEREUTER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I want to join with the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) in making my personal commitment to the gentleman as well that if we can work on this as report language, we will do everything that both of us can to make sure that the goals the gentleman wants are accomplished.

Mr. BEREUTER. Reclaiming my time, if the gentleman persists in his point of order and I proceed with what I think is necessary, I assume the gentleman's commitment is still there to work with me.

Mr. WAXMAN. I want to be as helpful as I possibly can.

Mr. BEREUTER. I thank the gentleman.

POINT OF ORDER

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) insist upon his point of order?

Mr. WAXMAN. Yes, Mr. Chairman, I would insist on it.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) is recognized on his point of order.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation in an appropriations bill, and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states, in pertinent part, "No amendment to a general appropriations bill shall be in order if changing existing law . . . ." This amendment gives affirmative direction, and in effect imposes additional duties, modifies existing powers and duties, and I therefore ask that the amendment be considered out of order.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there other Members who wish to be heard on the point of order?

If not, the Chair is prepared to rule. The Chair finds that the amendment explicitly places several new duties on the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. As such, the amendment proposes to legislate on an appropriation bill, in violation of clause 2 of rule XXI. Accordingly, the point of order is sustained.

Mr. BROWN of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, my remarks here directly relate to the point of order and to other similar situations which have arisen during the course of this and other appropriation bills.

The rule with regard to legislating on an appropriation bill has been with us in the rules of the House for quite a long period of time. It was originally put there in order to distinguish between the role of the Committee on Appropriations and the rest of us peons who only serve on authorizing committees, and do not get a chance to do the heavy lifting that is involved in distributing the money, like the appropriators do.

I have frequently had reason to raise points of order about legislating on appropriation bills as it involved the work of my own committee. There has been a propensity to insert in appropriation bills funding for research projects which were not authorized, and a number of other things of that sort.

I did this to the point where I made myself obnoxious to my friends on the Committee on Appropriations for a period of several years, and I have ceased to pursue that as actively as I once did, because I began to recognize that there were many legitimate reasons why there should be or could be legislation on an appropriation bill.

The standards for what are the appropriate reasons for having legislation on an appropriation bill are extremely vague. I can think of a number of good reasons in my own case, and involving the Committee on Science, we have a problem getting the Senators to enact authorization bills, for example. That is because the Senate rules have allowed Members who serve on the Committee on Appropriations to also serve as chairmen of authorizing committees, something they cannot do in the House of Representatives.

These Senators have a very strong interest in doing things efficiently, so they do it on the appropriation bill and leave the authorizing bills sort of hanging out to dry over there in the Senate. This is not the way the system is supposed to work.

In the case of what is going on in most instances here in the House, authorizing on an appropriation bill constitutes the fastest and most efficient way to get action accomplished on something that needs to be accomplished or should be accomplished. I think that is a legitimate reason to have an exception to the rule, to have a waiver. These waivers, of course, are frequently granted by the Committee on Rules to include situations where there seems to be a good reason to have such a waiver. But there is, again, no standard as to when waivers will be granted.

Many of the amendments that we have considered here are an effort to legislate on an appropriation bill by Members of the House who are not appropriators, but they see an amendment to the appropriation bill as the fastest way to get action.

This was the case with the sleepwear amendment as I recall, and it comes up very often.

Now, there are cases in which waivers are not granted; and, of course, in that case any Member can raise a point of order against language in an appropriations bill and we end up with in some cases half or 75 percent of an appropriation bill being "stick it" and we go to conference with no House position. That is not sound legislation, it is not efficient, and we need to think this through.

Now, I am not proposing a solution, but I am saying that this matter has gotten to the point where I think at the beginning of the next session of Congress there ought to be responsible Members who look at the problem and come up with reasonable solutions, which might include having authorizing committees ask the appropriators to include legislative language on an appropriations bill in order to move something through the other body that needs to be moved. That would seem to be reasonable to me. It is completely different from what we do now, but I have found that the whole system works better when there is close cooperation between the authorizing committee and the Committee on Appropriations.

At the present time, that exists in some cases; it does not exist in other cases, and we need to regularize that. We need to have a regular order under which we can understand what is appropriate and what is not appropriate.

Mr. Chairman, I make this brief statement in order to alert my friends to the fact that if I am so blessed as to return to this great body I may propose such a change in the rules.

AMENDMENT NO. 29 OFFERED BY MR. SCARBOROUGH

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 29 offered by Mr. SCARBOROUGH:

At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceeding the short title) the following new section:

SEC.—. None of the funds made available in this Act may be used to carry out Executive Order 13083.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, President Clinton signed Executive Order 13083 on May 14, while out of the country, and we believe it is a serious affront to the Federalist framework established in the United States Constitution. It could potentially lead to the abuse of power by individual agencies as they attempt to interpret this Executive Order.

The order establishes broad, ambiguous, and we believe unconstitutional tests to justify Washington bureaucratic intervention in matters that are typically left to State and local communities. Neither the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, nor the Federalist Papers even remotely justify Executive Order 13083 or its expansion of Federal regulatory activity.

Back in 1987, President Ronald Reagan signed an Executive Order which this Executive Order reverses. In the Reagan Executive Order it stated, "The constitutional relationship among sovereign governments, State and national, is formalized in and protected by the tenth amendment to the Constitution."

President Reagan also said, "It is my intention to curb the size and influence of the Federal establishment and to demand recognition of the distinction between the powers granted to the Federal Government and those reserved to the States or upon the People."

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman and I have had a chance to discuss this amendment. I discussed it with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES) as well. While we will need to massage this as we go towards conference, we are inclined at this point to accept the amendment.

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman from California. And if no one is willing to object to it——

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, the amendment is also acceptable to us.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Scarborough amendment to curtail funding for Executive Order 13083, President Clinton's efforts to grab power from the states in the name of "federalism."

Ronald Reagan had it right. In 1987, President Reagan reaffirmed the principles of federalism—that powers not explicitly given to the federal government are reserved for the States and individuals.

The specifically enumerated federal powers that are designed to limit Washington's power is the very cornerstone of our fundamental liberties. It is at the heart of what the American people expect from Washington—respect for their rights to know what's best for them—without Washington interference.

Unless we preserve a healthy balance between the States and the federal government, we risk the creation of a government that is beyond control, one insulated from the will of the people. It is for that reason that our Constitution lays out enumerated powers of the federal government—powers given to it only by the people in the nation. It was the genius of the founders—a way to ensure that no leader pandered away the wealth and resources of the nation.

In fact, a central theme of our 1994 "Contract with America" was the return of power to the States and the revival of federalism. The nation responded, with overwhelming enthusiasm.

I was astonished to learn that on May 14th, President Clinton issued a new Executive Order that overturns Ronald Reagan's 1987 federalism Order and repudiates a principle so deeply held by all Americans.

I was pleased to read in today's Washington Post that OMB has decided it errored in its federalism executive order based on unanimous opposition from states, cities, and counties. I commend Chairman DAVID MCINTOSH for his hearing that demonstrated this opposition yesterday.

This amendment is still a valuable message to send the White House, and I commend the leadership of my colleague, JOE SCARBOROUGH.

I hope the committee will accept this amendment. I urge the committee, in the strongest possible terms, to retain this amendment as they work with the Senate and come to a final resolution on this appropriation bill. Congress must also be clear in rejecting this effort by the Administration to change long-standing federalism principles.

Is there a more fundamental guarantee of liberty than this check on federal powers?

President Clinton's pronounced exceptions to federalism swallow up the principle with nearly one bite.

Paul Begala, one of President Clinton's advisors, in talking about President Clinton's increased use of Executive orders, was quoted as saying, "Stroke of the Pen. Law of the Land. Kinda Cool."

Kinda Cool, Mr. Begala? With a stroke of the pen, President Clinton undermined the foundations of federalism. With a stroke of the pen, he repudiated a time honored, fundamental principle that rules this nation. By a stroke of the pen he gave a green light to future unwarranted and unconstitutional national regulatory powers and actions. With a stroke of the pen, he may have done irreparable harm to individual rights and liberties.

As President Reagan would say—"Well, there they go again."

President Clinton is starting to demonstrate a comfort level with an unprecedented use of executive branch powers—trying to effect policy without going through the regular, time-consuming legislative process, where the American people are represented, negotiations occur and laws are made.

The Wall Street Journal labeled this phenomenon on July 8th in their lead editorial, as "King Clinton." The editorial says we are witnessing "a Presidency that has attempted to build between itself and the other branches a kind of moat of nonaccountability. . . . If it receives subpoenas, it rejects them or files lawsuits against them. Raw background files on hundreds in the political opposition are summoned from the FBI. . . . If Congress balks, overleap it with whatever executive order is needed, to satisfy the courtier constituencies." The editorial goes on to say, [it is time for the Congress] "to act as a check and balance on the assertion of the royal prerogatives."

Executive Orders, Presidential Memorandums, Presidential Decision Directives and Proclamations can sometimes have tremendous policy impact on the nation, yet they do not require the approval of Congress. They do have the force of law. These legal tools are not mentioned in the Constitution, but have grown up based on the implied powers inherent in the grant of "executive power" to the President in Article 2, section 1. President Clinton seems bent on using his powers until someone says stop.

The federal courts have stopped this President from legislating through Executive orders before. Who recalls President Clinton's Executive Order to forbid government contractors from hiring permanent striker replacements? There, the courts found the President had overreached.

Who recalls the Federal "land grab" in Utah? 1.7 million acres—by "presidential proclamation."

What about the stroke of a pen addition of "sexual orientation" to federal anti-discrimination laws? All other "protected categories" were put into this Executive Order because Congress had passed a law for them—race, gender, ethnicity, religion, handicap, and age. Previous efforts along these lines were based on statute, not political pressure and pandering. If this is the right thing to do, let's do it the right way—through the legislative process, where the American people have a voice.

Then there is the dangerous manipulation or disregard of the Constitution's wording when it comes to the census, as President Clinton pursues a politically motivated concept of sampling, rather than actual counting of people. The Constitution is a restraint on government power, but not for this team in the White House.

Consider the many legal maneuvers we have seen from this White House—all in efforts to escape scrutiny. Using taxpayer funded lawyers oftentimes, this President is undermining executive branch accountability by invoking novel and frivolous constitutional privileges—with the ultimate effect of hiding the facts from the public.

Who can forget the attempt to escape questioning by the Paula Jones attorneys by the claim that this President was "on duty," in accordance with the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act? And, how can this President have such disrespect for the Secret Service that, instead of asking them to tell the truth, he seeks to establish a new "protective function" privilege, risking the making of bad law to save himself from potential embarrassment?

Who isn't appalled at the efforts by Clinton allies to intimidate political opponents or witnesses? Where is the outrage about the fact that we now know that this White House has an "enemies list" and that research on those enemies is bought and paid for by the President's lawyers?

In summary, Paul Begala may think this is "kinda neat," but President Clinton is running roughshod over our Constitution.

As for the Congress, it is time to make a stand. There is an abuse of power occurring that can no longer be tolerated.

It is time for the Congress to say, "enough is enough." In representing the American people, you and I are far too familiar with the fact that compromise and negotiation is difficult and slow—yet, it is the very hallmark of divided federal government. Lawmaking and the process of making laws occur here, Mr. President, not with the stroke of your pen.

A vote against the Scarborough amendment is a vote for another form of government; it is a vote against the Framers' vision of how we were to preserve our liberties.

I urge my colleagues to vote yes to affirm the federalism principles that Ronald Reagan articulated.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, today I ask my colleagues to send a clear message to the White House that our venerable Constitution is alive and well, if not at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, at least here in the People's House. Especially, that the principles of the Tenth Amendment endure.

On May 14, from Great Britain, President Clinton issued Executive Order13083 which completely undercuts the notion of federalism that forms the basis of our entire system of government. This Executive Order deeply undermines, if not obliterates, the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Congress must stop the White House by responding aggressively and quickly. Blocking this unconstitutional Executive Order on federalism is essential. If we fail to act by August 12, 1998, the Order will go into effect; no ifs ands or buts; and regardless of what promises or platitudes are issued by the Administration.

As most of us are aware, in 1987, President Ronald Reagan issued Executive Order 12612, reaffirming the principles of federalism and the powers reserved to states and individuals as outlined in the Tenth Amendment.

Ronald Reagan's Executive Order which is explicitly repealed by President Clinton, detailed that the federal government was given few, limited, and enumerated powers. Reagan's Executive Order served as a limitation on Executive Agencies, not an accelerant on their work, as proposed in President Clinton's order.

In the Constitution the Framers granted specific federal powers, and outlined when the government legitimately may exercise its authority.

They did not intend the federal government to exercise authority over the states, local communities, and the people except in very limited and clearly delineated circumstances, such as a national currency, or customs matters.

The Executive Order which will in effect have the force of law if we don't stop it, lists several, all-encompassing "exceptions" under which the powers of the states and the people could be abrogated by any federal agency at any time; ignoring and overriding the Tenth Amendment.

Some individuals, I presume we will hear from today, will argue this Executive Order constitutes nothing more than the President's opinion and does not carry the force of law. These individuals are wrong.

Congress must stop the Clinton Administration practice by responding aggressively and quickly. This amendment today will be the first step to block this unconstitutional Executive Order on federalism.

This reflects a systematic, very conscious political plan by this Administration. A recent New York Times article noted that some of President Clinton's "closest advisers deeply pessimistic about the chances of getting major legislation passed during the rest of the year, Mr. Clinton plans to issue a series of executive orders to demonstrate that he can still be effective."

The President's recent actions raise a bright crimson flag signaling just what he thinks of the office of the President.

I have already heard from hundreds of individuals from around the country, outraged over this Executive Order.

It is time for this Congress to focus the political issues for the public. Today we take the first step to bring back the Framers' principles of checks and balances.

This is not a theoretical debate. The consequences of our failure to act will be real, immediate, and continuing; from taxes levied by federal agencies with no congressional authorization, to international agreements being forced on state and local governments without any advise and consent by the Senate.

The Clinton Administration believes power should be given to, taken by, and retained in Washington. They believe in a top-down governing structure—not the bottom-up structure clearly envisioned by our Founding Fathers and by many of us in this Chamber. Power comes from the individual not the Federal Government.

I rise in support of the Gentleman from Florida's amendment and ask my colleagues to support this important issue.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, I was outraged by President Clinton's recent Executive Order (E.O.) 13083 which revoked President Reagan's historic Executive Order on Federalism issued in 1987. President Reagan's order provided many protections for and reflected great deference to State and local governments.

By stark contrast, President Clinton's order, issued without prior consultation with State and local governments, betrays and repudiates an 11-year tradition of trust and mutual consultation between the States and the Federal Government. In its place, President Clinton's order lays the groundwork for an unprecedented Federal power grab in virtually every area of policy previously reserved to the States under the Tenth Amendment.

On June 8, I wrote President Clinton that "I could not understand how you, as a former Governor, could willingly abandon the protections accorded the states since 1987 from unwarranted federal regulatory burdens." Prior to the new order's revocation, there were "important constraints on federal regulatory power by requiring a minimum of federal intrusion and substantial deference to state governance. With E.O. 13083, you have swept away these limitations on the power of the federal government." I stated my belief that the bottom line is that the new order would wreak havoc on the balance of power envisioned by the Constitution between the States and the Federal Government.

On June 10, my subcommittee called the National Governors' Association (NGA) to ascertain NGA's views of the new executive order. Shockingly, NGA's Executive Director was totally unaware of the order. NGA learned about it first from my staff!

Apparently, the Clinton-Gore White House had neither consulted with any of the seven principal State and local interest groups prior to issuance of the new order nor notified them about it after its issuance. The way they went about this executive order belies any claim that the Clinton Administration intends to consult with State and local governments.

On July 17, leadership of "the Big 7"—the governors, the state legislatures, the cities, the counties, the mayors, the city/county managers, and council of State governments—wrote the President requesting that the new order be withdrawn. They wrote "we feel that Executive Order 13083 so seriously erodes federalism that we must request its withdrawal," which should occur "as quickly as possible."

Although the President has agreed "to delay implementation of the Executive Order . . . and to make changes where appropriate," at this point, frankly, there is no change that will repair the damage to the President's credibility that has resulted from the stealth issuance of this order.

It takes a lot of nerve for a president, while out of the country, to issue an order that completely reverses an 11-year commitment to the States and gives federal regulators sweeping new justifications for interfering with State affairs, but giving the States: no advance notice of the order; no opportunity to comment; and no voice in a decision that will drastically upset the constitutional balance of power between the States and the federal government.

In this climate of bad faith, the States are extremely reluctant to entrust their social, moral, and financial destiny to an Administration that governs by midnight decrees issued on the fly.

Yesterday, I chaired a hearing to examine (1) the potential impacts of President Clinton's Executive Order on Federalism on State and local governments and (2) the need for a possible legislative solution to address the concerns of State and local governments. This hearing allowed key State and local elected officials to voice their concerns and former and current Administration officials to express the rationales for their Federalism executive orders.

To ensure that the States' constitutional rights and protections are guaranteed, the only sure path at this stage is to enshrine the principles of Federalism in law and not leave them to the President's whim. By repealing the protections afforded in earlier executive orders issued by President Reagan and reaffirmed by this President, President Clinton has demonstrated that he cannot be trusted to defend the States against an ever-expanding federal bureaucracy. Congress must take responsibility and pass new legislation that will codify federalism principles.

Vote yes on the Scarborough amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH).

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I did not want to interfere with the progress of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH), but I did want to underline the significance of this to Members.

As I understand it, we have now adopted an amendment that acts against the President's Federalism order. That is relevant, because I have been told, by looking at the work of the Committee on Rules, that when we do the Commerce, Justice, State appropriation, an amendment will be offered by the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. HEFLEY) which would cancel an Executive Order involving the civil service and discrimination and will also include this.

So I do want to make it clear now to Members that having adopted this amendment today, which cancels the Federalism order, when the vote comes on the amendment of the gentleman from Colorado which deals with sexual orientation and the executive branch, it will have a part dealing with Federalism which will be moot. That is, the Federalism part of that amendment, of the Hefley amendment, will now not mean anything. So the Hefley amendment is now back to its original form before it was transmogrified by the Committee on Rules.

Thus, and I want to stress this again because it did get a little complicated, it is a little late, people may be getting low blood sugar and may not be paying attention, we now have adopted an amendment which, to the extent that we can, cancels the President's Federalism order. I was not in favor of that. I tried to yell loud, but nobody heard me.

On the other hand, what it means is that when the Hefley amendment comes before us, even though it will purport to deal both with the question of sexual orientation in the Executive Order on the civil service and with anti-Federalism, it will in fact be solely on sexual orientation, because the Federalism part will be redundant and it will, therefore, have no role whatsoever in the debate.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I do this as a courtesy to the House to give plenty of notice as to what my motion to recommit will be, if we ever get to that point tonight.

Let me explain briefly what it will be. There are provisions in this bill which, in essence, prevent the Consumer Product Safety Commission from enforcing new regulations with respect to fire retardant furniture. Language was adopted to this bill which will prohibit the enforcement of provisions that are designed to protect people from flammable furniture. So I will simply be offering a motion to strike the sentence beginning on line 7 on page 55 and strike section 425 of the bill.

Mr. Chairman, I will be doing this, frankly, because I think this proposal in the bill is masquerading under false pretenses. Supporters of the provision in the bill will be saying, well, what is more reasonable than simply providing more time for the study of the matter before the Consumer Product Safety Commission can take up a new rule?

What I think would be more reasonable is that we quit allowing lawyers to jerk this Congress around and get to the point of actually protecting the public from a serious safety hazard.

I want to say, Mr. Chairman, this is going on governmentwide, whether we are talking about consumer products and pajamas for children, or whether we are talking about flammable furniture, or whether we are talking about OSHA in its efforts to try to protect workers from repetitive motion injuries. In each case, we have got smart law firms in this town who put together a case on behalf of their clients. They go to a friendly Member of Congress or a friendly committee or a friendly Chamber of the Congress, and they say, "Boys and girls, why don't you help us out? Shield us from regulatory action."

Well, when we shield them from regulatory action, we really expose the general public and workers in this country to dangerous products, dangerous work facilities, and the result is injured workers, the result is injured children, and in some cases we have the death of children and the death of consumers.

So, Mr. Chairman, it just seems to me that this Congress is going to have to make a choice. We are either going to stand with the law firms that advocate for these special interests or we are going to stand for the public that we are supposed to represent.

So, I will be offering that motion at the proper time and wanted to give the House notice of that fact now.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment Number 20 which would stop the promulgation of the copper rule. I am not going to offer it, because of my concern of what it would do in some places where the copper rule needs to be applied.

I have heard the assurances of the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BILIRAKIS) and the gentleman from California (Chairman LEWIS) of the appropriations subcommittee, and I take those assurances for cooperation. And next year, I will be back to cut the $15 million out of the administrator's office, a very tempting target, if necessary.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, very quickly, the language of this bill on the Kyoto Protocol was wonderful. I wanted to engage in a quick colloquy with its author, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), about a couple of the provisions in that language.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman, do those activities include drafting, preparing, or developing rules, orders or decrees, or work such as preparing notices or other language or studies that would be used to justify rules, orders, or decrees that would implement the Kyoto Protocol?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield, the gentleman is correct.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, would this language also prohibit the finalization of any rules——

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I have a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, we did not hear that exchange. I would like to have the question repeated.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is correct. If the Committee would be in order, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and all gentlemen and gentlewomen deserve the opportunity to be heard.

If the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. McINTOSH) would repeat the question.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, the question was: Do those activities regarded in the Knollenberg amendment include drafting, preparing, or developing rules, orders, or decrees, or work such as preparing notices other language or studies that would be used to justify rules, orders, or other decrees that would implement the Kyoto Protocol?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Yes, those regulatory activities would be precluded.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, would this language also prohibit the finalization of any rules, regulations, or orders implementing the Kyoto Protocol prior to Senate ratification, whether or not authorized by current law?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, yes; and when and if the protocol were ratified after full and open discussion by the Senate, these provisions would be void.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, I would ask what this funding restriction would not do. Does it limit funding for balanced education activities that are not propaganda advocacy or lobbying?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. No, it does not.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, what about legitimate climate science and research and development activities?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I would tell the gentleman that those activities are still funded and encouraged. In fact, we have increased funding for the global climate change research account within this bill by $10 million.

Mr. McINTOSH. What about existing programs and ongoing activities to carry out the United States voluntary commitments under the 1992 Climate Change Convention?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. The United States will live up to its commitments.

Mr. McINTOSH. So what we are really talking about here is just stopping action by EPA to implement the protocol prior to ratification, not legitimate programs or education or research?

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman again is correct. And we have good reason to be concerned about EPA's back-door regulatory actions. EPA has repeatedly sought to expand its authority to restrict greenhouse gas emissions where no such authority exists.

Mr. McINTOSH. We cannot allow EPA to circumvent our constitutional process through such action.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG: I agree. The Kyoto Protocol is a flawed treaty. Our only safeguard against a flawed treaty is our constitutional process.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, the language of the gentleman from Michigan is crucial to prevent back-door regulatory implementation. I thank the gentleman for bringing it.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I rise to thank my colleagues, Representatives OBEY and McINTOSH, for their discussions on the House floor regarding the fine line between education and advocacy efforts conducted by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). I have ongoing concerns that some of the EPA's education activities at times crossed that line and became advocacy efforts.

Mr. OBEY offered an apt description of education when he explained to Mr. McINTOSH during the debate over his amendment, and that his amendment clarifying the DPA's ability to conduct educational outreach was meant to allow only those activities that were objective in nature and presented both sides of the issue in a factual manner.

In my view, much of the EPA's past problems have stemmed from its inability to present information in an objective and balanced manner. If information is presented without allowing the airing of both sides, it ceases to be education, and becomes advocacy. There is a fine line between education and advocacy, and the EPA must recognize this distinction and refrain from crossing this line.

So, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for helping me to make this very important point. It is my hope that the Obey amendment will help clarify what is the necessary role of the Administration, and compel the EPA to promote balance and objectivity in all its future activities.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I listened carefully to the colloquy that just took place and I want to point out that that colloquy may reflect the views of the two gentlemen who entered into it, but I do not think they accurately reflect the views of the House.

□ 1800

Last week the House adopted an amendment to the Knollenberg language that came out of the Committee on Appropriations, an amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY). The Obey amendment made it quite clear that the EPA would not be precluded from doing studies and educational efforts, that the House did not want the Knollenberg language to be interpreted so narrowly, and so I do not know whether that colloquy was an attempt to make some legislative history, but I just want to use this opportunity to point out that I do not think it reflects the views of the House.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WAXMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, let me simply say that the only use of any colloquy, if they have any use at all, is to explain legislative history. If readers of the RECORD want to know what the legislative history is, they need to read more than the comments of two Members of the Congress who agree with each other, who get up for 2 minutes and think that they have taken a public opinion poll.

The fact is that the Knollenberg amendment has been modified by the Obey amendment, and it seems to me that there is no accurate description of what that amendment means, as amended, unless all parties to the action actually have a consensus.

Mr. WAXMAN. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, I would point out that the gentleman is absolutely correct. I do not think that the Knollenberg language, as amended by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) would preclude the EPA from developing any information they need to permit an adequate ratification debate and to express their views on such a debate on behalf of the administration.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WAXMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, let me say it certainly was not my intention and the intention of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) to modify the legislative intent as expressed by this body with the Obey amendment. There was much debate during that time about those activities that would be allowed and the difficulty of defining the line and when it became advocacy.

I think the debate that we had on the House floor the other night, the gentleman is correct, accurately reflects the legislative history regarding that amendment, and that is incorporated into the Knollenberg amendment.

We were merely exploring other provisions, not intending to rewrite any of the legislative history regarding the Obey amendment.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for his clarification. I do want to point out that some of the colloquy that I heard reflected his individual views, and it did not reflect how I interpret Knollenberg language, as amended by Obey, and should not be used for any legal interpretation of the Knollenberg amendment as so modified.

Mrs. CLAYTON changed her vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN. The committee will rise informally to receive a message.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) assumed the Chair.

SUNDRY MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Sundry messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the House by Mr. Sherman Williams, one of his secretaries.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The Committee will resume its sitting.

DEPARTMENTS OF VETERANS AFFAIRS AND HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT, AND INDEPENDENT AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1999

The Committee resumed its sitting.

(By unanimous consent Mr. LINDER was allowed to speak out of order.)

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Chairman, regrettably I was not present to vote on Rollcall Numbers 337, 338 and 339 last Friday afternoon. Had I been present I would have voted aye on 337, no on vote 338 and aye on vote 339 which was the final passage of the Patient Protection Act.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SCOTT).

(Mr. SCOTT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the motion which will be offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) a little bit later in the evening.

Mr. Chairman, in 1994 the Consumer Product Safety Commission decided to grant part of a petition by State fire marshals, State fire marshals who have been asking the CPSC to develop a safety standard for upholstered furniture to address the problems of fires started from small open flames such as lighters, matches and candles. Every year 200 people are killed and 600 injured unnecessarily by fires which start on upholstered couches and chairs. Most of the fires start when children play with lighters and matches, and every year 40 children under age 5 die in fires started by burning upholstered furniture.

These fires, Mr. Chairman, cost an estimated $1 billion and are completely avoidable. These fires could be avoided by using fire-retardant chemicals to reduce the flammability of upholstered furniture. The CPSC has been working for the past 4 years to conduct tests and evaluate all of the issues relating to the proposed standard to reduce fires, but the upholstered furniture industry does not want this standard to move forward, so in subcommittee an amendment was added to tie the CPSC up in red tape and paperwork and delay the development of these standards.

Mr. Chairman, the study required in this bill is unnecessary, it is a stall tactic, and the CPSC estimates that it would take more than 5 years and cost nearly a million dollars to do this unnecessary study. In the meantime more fires will occur putting peoples' lives in danger. Each year that goes by before the standard is put in place 200 people die, each year 600 people are injured unnecessarily, and each year that goes by nearly $1 billion in damages and social costs from these preventable fires occur. Each year that goes by 40 more children under age five will die from fires and burns.

Will we continue to sacrifice the lives of our children and firemen? Will we pander to the upholstered furniture industry to stop the CPSC from taking steps to prevent these completely avoidable fires? No. I urge my colleagues to support this motion to recommit.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield to my colleague, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL).

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Chairman, we will vote on a motion to recommit with specific instructions to strike section 425. This section puts the interest of an industry over the interest of our citizens. Today we won a victory on children's sleepwear fire safety standards. We demonstrated Congress' bipartisan commitment to ensuring that our children are safer from fires. Now we must continue that commitment by allowing the Consumer Product Safety Commission to proceed on upholstered flammability standards.

In a letter to the Committee on Rules, the Consumer Product Safety Commission called this language an obstacle to their work. They said, and I quote:

> The proposal creates additional costs to an ongoing project and adds considerable delay and redundancy with no additional benefits to the American public. This is only intended to interfere and disrupt the orderly process already developed by the Consumer Product Safety Commission to consider a serious hazard facing American consumers.

That is not stated by any Congressperson. That is stated by the CPSC. Unfortunately, if this VA-HUD appropriations bill passes with section 425, the $16 billion upholstery manufacturing industry will receive an early Christmas present. That is what this is all about.

While the industry is laughing its way to the bank, thousands of Americans will be in jeopardy and will continue to be in jeopardy. They will be burned because the industry spent thousands of dollars lobbying against a national upholstery flammability standard. Thirty-seven hundred people a year are killed by house fires. Seventeen hundred youngsters are injured due to residential fires, most of which are starting when upholstery furniture catches fire.

This bill blocks the progress that has been made by the Consumer Product Safety Commission. The provision not only delays the project, but it is totally redundant and provides no further benefit to the American public.

While we wait, over 25,000 men, women, and children will have died as a result of burning furniture if we wait a year or 18 months. The Consumer Product Safety Commission calculates that an upholstery flammability standard will have an annual net savings of $300 million.

AMENDMENT NO. 31 OFFERED BY MR. RIGGS

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 31 offered by Mr. RIGGS: At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. . None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to implement section 12B.2(b) of the Administrative Code of San Francisco, California.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, I will try to be as brief as I can for this debate, because I believe that this is the last substantive amendment pending to the bill before we move to recommittal and final passage.

I am glad the Clerk read my amendment because the amendment has been revised and modified now a couple of times in part because of what I think is the legitimate criticism of earlier versions of the amendment from some of my colleagues on the Democratic side of the aisle.

So the amendment in its current form is intended to do one thing and one thing only, and that is to prevent the City and County of San Francisco government, which is one unit of local government, one political subdivision, and to the extent that my amendment, if it passes, reflects the thinking and the intent and the will of the Congress, by inference, any other local government, to prevent the city and county of San Francisco government from being able to use Federal taxpayer funding, Federal taxpayer funding to condition any city contract to a private organization to require that private organization, whether it be a for-profit business or a not-for-profit community-based charitable organization, to provide domestic partner benefits to their employees.

I think that that is the basis for a very legitimate, a very serious debate in the people's House before any local government can use Federal taxpayer funding in this fashion.

So I want to stipulate at the outset that this is not, in my view, a matter involving local autonomy. It does not force the city and county of San Francisco to change its current law, city ordinance on the use of city funding, local taxpayer funding in this fashion, no matter how misguided I might think that is. For that matter, it does not apply to any city contracts with State taxpayer fund.

While I would disagree with the policy, it does not interfere with the city and county of San Francisco's decision to offer domestic partner benefits to their own employees. It only applies at that point where the city and county attempts to condition the city contract using Federal taxpayer funding to impose this requirement on the private sector. Therein lies, I think, a very important distinction.

Secondly, the way the city's ordinance is currently drafted, chapter 12B of the San Francisco Administrative Code, it requires private organizations doing business with the city to provide benefits to unmarried domestic partners to the same extent as spouses of married employees.

I think we should have a debate on whether we want to elevate that relationship to the same status as marriage, which I consider to be a sacred institution and which I define as the covenant between one man and one woman. I think we can have a very legitimate debate on that.

But the real problem I have with the city ordinance is, as I have mentioned, that it applies to all city contracts and grants using monies deposited or under the control of the city. I quote from the ordinance. So it applies to Federal taxpayer funding as well as State and local taxpayer funding. Hence, the need for my amendment.

This is a relatively recent law, relatively recent development in San Francisco. Since its implementation by the elected decision makers for the city and county of San Francisco, that is to say a majority of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, there have been a number of organizations that have resisted this policy, some of them for-profit businesses, large corporations like United Airlines, Federal Express. It needs city approval in order to be able to do business, to have facilities in San Francisco International Airport.

Those large corporations, for-profit entities, they have resources that smaller nonprofit community-based charitable organizations do not. So I am not here really on their behalf. I am here on behalf of Catholic Charities and Salvation Army, two venerable organizations. They have longstanding relationships with the city and county of San Francisco government that have found themselves suddenly forced to accept this policy or lose its city contracts.

In the case of Catholic Charities, they were able to work out apparently an agreement that is a slight variation of the city law. But in the case of the Salvation Army, which refused to buckle to the city policy, the Salvation Army forfeited $3.5 million of its $18 million budget. Here is the headline from the San Francisco Examiner newspaper.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. RIGGS was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, the headline says "The Salvation Army has decided to end its contracts with San Francisco and shrink programs serving the homeless, drug addicts and the elderly because of a dispute over the city's domestic partners law.

Some, if not most, or even all of this funding originated with Federal taxpayers and was appropriated by this body, in this annual spending bill, as well as other annual spending bills.

What I want my colleagues to know is that the city law provides for a specific exemption, a sole provider exemption, otherwise known as a waiver, and that the city and county of San Francisco, upon the recommendation of the city's Human Rights Commission, has granted a number of waivers to private contractors doing business with the city of San Francisco, including Blue Cross, Encyclopedia Britannica, the U.S. Tennis Association, Lawrence Hall, Paramount, the large corporation that operates two amusement parks in the San Francisco Bay area so that 9,000 underprivileged kids living in San Francisco could go to those amusement parks this summer; yet it refused to grant a waiver to the Salvation Army and Catholic Charities.

So, Mr. Chairman, I think this is an appropriate debate to take. I think we should take a stand. We should not sanction domestic partner relations; that we should say unequivocally that the American people want leaders who will respect and support rather than dishonor and undermine marriage and the family, and most importantly, I think we should support the rights of private organizations, whether it be the Boy Scouts, Catholic Charities or Salvation Army, to adhere to the traditional values that they have always followed.

So I ask support from my colleagues for my amendment which simply would not allow Federal taxpayer funding from this bill to be used to force or to coerce private groups and businesses to adopt policies that they find morally objectionable.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Riggs amendment. When I came to the floor to oppose the amendment, I did so on the basis of the issue of local autonomy. Having the concern that I do about the impact of a vote on my colleagues that I wish the maker of this motion would share, I am concerned when I hear him making statements about the practice in San Francisco that is not true. Either the gentleman is ill-informed or he chooses to ignore the truth in this situation.

What this amendment will do is to single out one city. I ask my colleagues, do you want your city singled out next? None of the funds appropriated by this act may be used to implement Section 12B.2(b) of the Administrative Code of the city of San Francisco.

This is the fifth version of the Riggs amendment. It took five versions for the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) to conclude what he wanted our colleagues to consider because this is a very sloppy approach to legislation. It is in violation of local autonomy and it is unconstitutional.

As I said, I came to talk about this in terms of local autonomy, and if I have the time I will, but I do want to set the record straight.

First of all, the city of San Francisco is not forcing anyone to act against his or her or their principles. Indeed, the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) said he is here on behalf of Catholic Charities. He said that.

Catholic Charities and the city of San Francisco have entered into a very amicable agreement about how Catholic Charities will continue to provide the services that it does exceptionally well in helping with the homeless and with child care and other delivery of services as contractors to the city of San Francisco. There is peace between Catholic Charities and the city of San Francisco. I do not know why the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) wants to create a war there.

In terms of the services provided by the Salvation Army, the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) says that there has been a shrinking of programs and they have not been able to provide the services that they have been contracted to do, and that simply is not true. Indeed, the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) says that San Francisco has offered sole-sourcers the opportunity for a waiver but it would not offer that waiver to the Salvation Army. Not true.

That waiver is available to Salvation Army. They chose not to accept it, and in September their contracts will lapse and San Francisco will award the contracts for the delivery of services that Salvation Army so ably provides. Perhaps the contract will go to Catholic Charities which is complying with the law in San Francisco, as I say, very peacefully.

I say to my colleagues I care about the impact of this vote on them and I do not want to ask them to do something that is not in their interest at the end of the day, and I believe it is in their interest at the end of the day to protect the local autonomy.

Indeed, in the words of our colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS), who said on another occasion, when he was arguing against Federal control, he urged us, and I quote, to decentralize authority and responsibility and, yes, funding and revenues back to the States. This was in the context of the block grants in education.

Then he said, in turn, we will be disbursing power to our fellow citizens.

Well, that is a great idea. Why not support it today?

In another statement, he advised the House, we have to have a national policy which specifies that the Federal Government no longer can impose mandates on State and local government.

□ 1900

Well, if the maker of the amendment were to be true to those words, he would vote down his own amendment today.

The Riggs amendment would prohibit, as I say, any funds from being used to implement section 12B, or the antidiscrimination section of the San Francisco Code to the Administrative Code of San Francisco.

I want my colleagues to hear the words of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. If any of my colleagues have cities and towns in their districts, and I assume that they do, they might want to know that they have said: "The modified," and this is now the 5th modification, "Riggs amendment strikes at the heart of a local jurisdiction's obligation to ensure that civil rights are protected within its boundaries."

The Office of Management and Budget warns that "The amendment would impose an unfunded, expensive and extremely burdensome administration requirement on the city."

Can my colleagues just see it now? We are going to administer some homelessness or child care or whatever the service is, and we are going to have to figure out what part of it going to Catholic charities is federal, in a way that meets the criteria of the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) but not those of the City of San Francisco and the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Chairman, this body is not the city council of any city in the country. I urge my colleagues to vote against this ill-advised, poorly-formed amendment.

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS), who serves in this House from the State of California, is retiring from his position at the end of this year; and I would make a suggestion that if he wants to get involved in the laws adopted by the City of San Francisco, he ought go to San Francisco and run for the city council.

Because what this amendment has us do here in Washington is interfere with the legitimate local judgments about city contracts by the city itself. It prohibits the use of Federal funds to implement Chapter 12B of San Francisco's Administrative Code, but, obviously, the City does not use Federal funds to implement its ordinances. It does not use Federal funds to pay its employees or its department of public works. When the City issues an RFP, it does not spend Federal dollars.

So what is this amendment all about? It is a message amendment. It is an attack on the City of San Francisco. It is an affront to the citizens of San Francisco and to the progressive corporate citizenship of companies which provide domestic partner benefits. It is a slap at both small mom and pop businesses and Fortune 500 companies like American Express, IBM, and Shell Oil.

The amendment may not have any real effect on the City's business, but it will unquestionably encourage prejudice and intolerance. It will encourage future attacks on local government, and it will fail to do what it purportedly seeks to accomplish; it will fail to interfere with San Francisco's local judgment about its own contracts.

Mr. Chairman, I want to put into the RECORD following my comments here on the floor a letter from the Human Rights Campaign Fund, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, the United States Conference of Mayors, and the American Civil Liberties Union, and a resolution adopted by the City of Los Angeles, all opposing this amendment.

I urge my colleagues to oppose it. It is an unwarranted, extraordinary interference with local community judgment. It is not the job of the Congress to be micromanaging the business of American cities.

Mr. Chairman, I urge defeat of this amendment. I include at this time the letters I just referenced.

VOTE NO ON THE RIGGS AMENDMENT TO VA-HUD APPROPRIATIONS

(Working for Lesbian and Gay Equal Rights)

Representative Riggs (R-CA) intends to introduce an amendment when the House resumes consideration of the VA-HUD Appropriations bill. The amendment would prohibit the City of San Francisco from using VA-HUD funds to implement its entire city ordinance against discrimination in city contracts. The ordinance requires all city contractors to prohibit discrimination based on factors which include race, color, religion, sexual orientation, domestic partner status, marital status, or AIDS/HIV status.

UNPRECEDENTED FEDERAL INTERVENTION. The Riggs amendment is an example of gross micro-management of one particular city by the federal government. Congress sets a dangerous precedent and poses a threat to all localities if it begins to use its power to appropriate funds as a means to intimidate and coerce local governments. While the federal government conditions the use of federal funds, these conditions are based on the federal law authorizing the grant program (which is openly debated in Congress) or existing federal government regulations on the use of federal funds (which are subject to public comment). The Riggs amendment is "de facto" legislation on an appropriations bill without appropriate committee consideration and debate.

NO NATIONAL INTEREST AT STAKE. In a recent decision regarding the San Francisco ordinance, the U.S. District Court held that local governments have the discretion, as do individual consumers, to pick and choose the companies and organizations with which they will do business. Federal grant requirements similarly require grantees to comply with civil rights and other federal law in order to do business with the federal government. While Representative Riggs may disagree with San Francisco's ordinance, there is no national interest at stake in its application.

MEAN SPIRITED PUNISHMENT. Punishing the people in one particular city because their duly elected leaders set a government policy clearly within their jurisdiction is a mean-spirited Congressional action. While the Riggs amendment does not cut off federal funds, use of those funds forces the city to violate its own rules and regulations. VA-HUD dollars are meant to help state and local governments meet the needs of their citizens. They are not meant to punish a locality for setting government policy.

THE ORDINANCE IS FLEXIBLE. The San Francisco ordinance requires city contractors who already provide benefits to married partners of employees to also provide benefits to domestic partners of employees. Several exceptions to the ordinance exist which, for example, have allowed San Francisco to craft an agreement with Catholic Charities that is satisfactory to both. Catholic Charities is now delivering care, housing, counseling and other services under a city contract.

THIS IS AN HRC KEY VOTE.

The United States
Conference of Mayors,
July 22, 1998.

Dear Member of Congress: On behalf of The United States Conference of Mayors, I am writing to express our continued opposition to an amendment to the VA-HUD Appropriations bill which would be a major undermining of local autonomy and the principles of federalism.

The modified amendment proposed by Representative Frank Riggs (CA) would prohibit any funds under the bill from being used by the City of San Francisco to implement sections of its municipal code that provide specific civil rights protections. These protections include prohibiting discrimination on the basis of race or national origin, religion, gender, disability or age.

The nation's mayors are seriously concerned with this unwarranted intrusion into local decision making. The modified Riggs amendment strikes at the heart of a local jurisdiction's obligation to ensure that civil rights are protected within its boundaries.

We again urge you to oppose this amendment on the grounds that the principles of federalism and local autonomy must not be held hostage to the provision of needed federal funding. The amendment would establish a very dangerous precedent and we urge you to oppose its adoption.

Sincerely,

J. Thomas Cochran,
Executive Director.

Leadership Conference on Civil Rights,
Washington, DC, July 22, 1998.

Dear Representative: On behalf of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights (LCCR), a coalition of more than 180 national organizations representing people of color, women, labor unions, persons with disabilities, older Americans, major religious groups, gays and lesbians and civil liberties and human rights groups, we write to express our strong opposition to the so-called modified Riggs amendment to H.R. 4194, the FY '99 VA-HUD Appropriations Bill. If enacted, this amendment would mark a profound departure from this nation's bipartisan commitment to equal protection under the law and cause irreparable harm to countless Americans.

The modified Riggs amendment would prohibit the implementation of Chapter 12B of San Francisco's Administrative Code in programs funded by this bill. Chapter 12B includes fair employment protections prohibiting private vendors who do business with the city from discriminating on the basis of race, gender, color, creed, national origin, disability, and sexual orientation. Chapter 12B also provides for enforcement of these nondiscrimination protections through the local Human Rights Commission.

Each year, government entities (federal, state, and local) purchase goods and services from private vendors. For most of the nation's history, women and people of color faced insurmountable legal barriers that deprived them of the opportunity to compete for these government contracts. Even after these legal obstacles were removed in the 1960's, Congress has repeatedly recognized that systemic illegal discrimination continues to deprive countless individuals an equal opportunity to secure the federal government's procurement dollars. Similarly, state and local governments have enacted numerous program to ensure they are not an active participant in the continuing cycle of discrimination.

Prohibiting the City of San Francisco from ensuring nondiscrimination within programs under its jurisdiction not only would represent an unprecedented intrusion in local government autonomy, but more important, would mark a significant retreat in the nation's bipartisan commitment to effective civil rights enforcement. State and local governments have a compelling interest in expanding employment opportunities and ensuring that taxpayer dollars are not inadvertently being used to subsidize discrimination.

On behalf of the Leadership Conference, I urge you to continue the bipartisan tradition of supporting non-discrimination by rejecting the revised Riggs Amendment that would endanger equal employment opportunities.

Sincerely,

Wade Henderson,
Executive Director.

ACLU,
Washington National Office,
Washington, DC, July 23, 1998.

Dear Representative: The American Civil Liberties Union strongly urges you to oppose the Riggs Amendment to the Veterans Administration/Housing and Urban Development Appropriations bill. The Riggs Amendment will most likely come up for a vote as early as this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Congressman Riggs has proposed four different versions of his amendment to punish the City of San Francisco for contracting with businesses that provide domestic partnership health care benefits to their employees. Several of those versions are unconstitutional as lacking any legitimate governmental purpose under the Supreme Court case of Romer v. Evans, or as directly violating the constitutional prohibition on Congress passing any bill of attainder—specifying a person or organization for punishment instead of passing a generally applicable law.

The fourth and latest version of the Riggs Amendment raises an entirely new set of problems. It provides that "none of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to implement Chapter 12B of the Administrative Code of San Francisco, California."

In his rush to punish San Francisco for encouraging its vendors to provide the partners or spouses of both gay and lesbian and heterosexual employees with the same health care benefits, Congressman Riggs is attacking a city law that also protects against discrimination based on race, religion, color, gender, and national origin. Riggs has broadened his attack to include all minorities.

The San Francisco City Council passed Chapter 12B of its Administrative Code to eliminate all forms of discrimination against its employees and persons working for its vendors. The objective is to protect the basic civil rights of persons working for the city—even if those workers are in positions that have been privatized.

The Riggs Amendment will punish San Francisco for doing what all federal civil rights laws permit San Francisco to do. Specifically, federal civil rights laws do not preempt state and local civil rights laws. The purpose of preserving the rights of state and local governments to pass their own civil rights laws is to encourage them to enforce civil rights laws at the state and local level and reduce the need for the federal government to intervene.

The Riggs Amendment violates the historic federal principle of not preempting stronger state or local civil rights laws by punishing a city for passing a provision that provides effective protection for persons based on such characteristics as race, religion, color, natural origin, gender, and sexual orientation. If it passes, the Riggs Amendment will be a big step backward for the protection of civil rights at the state and local level.

For these reasons, the ACLU strongly urges you to vote against the Riggs Amendment.

Sincerely,

Laura W. Murphy.
Christopher E. Anders.

City of Los Angeles,
California, July 24, 1998.

Re: Include in city's Federal Legislative Program Opposition to Riggs Amendment to H.R. 4194—VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies appropriations bill—which would prohibit any HUD funds from being distributed to a locality which has an ordinance requiring contractors to provide health care benefits to domestic partners of company employees.

I hereby certify that the attached resolution (Miscikowski-Wachs), was adopted by the Los Angeles City Council at its meeting held July 24, 1998.

J. Michael Carey, City Clerk.
By Judi R. Clarke, Deputy.

Resolution

Whereas, Congress is in the process of enacting various appropriation bills to fund all Federal programs for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1998; and

Whereas, one of these bills is H.R. 4194, which makes appropriations for Veterans Affairs, HUD, and Independent Agencies, including funding for homeless programs, housing programs for people living with HIV/AIDS, low-income elderly housing and lead abatement programs; and

Whereas, Representative Frank Riggs has introduced an amendment to this legislation which, although worded differently in its various iterations, would essentially undermine local autonomy and put the Federal Government in the role of dictating policy to cities around the country; and

Whereas, this amendment would essentially prohibit any HUD funds from being distributed to a locality which has an ordinance requiring contractors to provide health care benefits to domestic partners of company employees; and

Whereas, although currently worded to specifically apply only to the City of San Francisco, the real impact of this amendment stretches far beyond the borders of any particular city. The issue is the right of any municipality in America to consider and enact ordinances within their traditional purview without Federal intervention; and

Whereas, the effect of this amendment would be to reduce lead hazard reduction activities for children, eliminate funds for low income elderly housing, curtail services to the homeless and eliminate resources for housing for people with AIDS; and

Whereas, the San Francisco ordinance under attack by this amendment merely requires contractors who already provide benefits to married partners of employees to also provide benefits to domestic partners of employees; and the ordinance provides several exceptions to exempt certain contractors, such as Catholic Charities and the Salvation Army from some of these requirements; and

Whereas, this ordinance has been upheld by a U.S. District Court in San Francisco which held that local governments have the discretion to pick and choose the companies and organizations with which they will do business; and

Whereas, the Riggs amendment has been modified four times in an effort to secure its passage, the last version narrowing to apply only to the City of San Francisco. However, its intent is far reaching and has serious implications for all cities, including the City of Los Angeles which has implemented various efforts to benefit domestic partners, secure living wages for workers and eliminate substandard/slum housing—all programs which may fall victim to some future Congressional initiative such as the Riggs amendment; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Council of the City of Los Angeles hereby includes in the City's Federal Legislative Program opposition to the Riggs Amendment to H.R. 4194—the VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies appropriations bill, and any similar legislation which would prohibit any HUD funds from being distributed to a locality which Has an ordinance requiring contractors to provide health care benefits to domestic partners of company employees, and would undermine local autonomy and put the Federal Government in the role of dictating Policy to cities around the country.

ANDY MISCIKOWSKI,
Councilwoman, 11th District.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Riggs amendment, because, frankly, this amendment is a clear intrusion into the affairs of a local government. It targets an ordinance approved by only one city in this country, San Francisco; and, frankly, it sets a terrible precedent in so doing.

As has been mentioned, the U.S. mayors oppose the modified Riggs amendment saying that, quote, the modified Riggs amendment strikes at the heart of a local jurisdiction's obligation to ensure that civil rights are protected within its boundaries, unquote. The Leadership Conference on Civil Rights has also expressed its strong opposition, as have other organizations.

Further, the amendment violates the Constitution's prohibition against the enactment of "bills of attainder" by naming specific targets for punishment through the prohibition of funding. I think it would clearly be challenged in the courts.

The amendment would have a substantial financial impact on the City of San Francisco. The Office of Management and Budget has determined that the amendment would impose an unfunded, expensive and extremely burdensome administrative requirement on the City, unquote.

Mr. Chairman, contrary to the charges made by amendment supporters, the City of San Francisco has worked with organizations with differing beliefs to reach agreements satisfactory to both; and as has been mentioned and I will reiterate, in fact, Catholic charities and the City have reached just such an agreement in regard to the ordinance.

So Mr. Chairman, I repeat, this is a clear instance in which the Federal intervention in local affairs is not appropriate. There is no justification for this intrusion in local decisionmaking. In fact, this amendment would set a dangerous precedent if it were approved, and I hope it will not be approved.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, San Francisco has two representatives in Congress, and I am proud to join the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), my friend and colleague, in expressing my strongest disapproval of this proposed amendment.

This amendment by the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) should be called the "Big Brother Amendment," because it engages in a preposterous degree of micromanagement of the affairs of a city. And it is not surprising that the national organization representing the mayors of our country and the national organization representing the counties in our country are as opposed to this amendment as are we.

It is simply preposterous for the Federal Government to interfere with city ordinances that merely provide for equality of opportunity and fairness. Micromanagement has no role in our legislative process. And to find a subsection of a section of the San Francisco city ordinance to be unacceptable to the Congress of the United States by individuals who favor block grants and who tell us to allow local decisionmaking is so hypocritical as to boggle the mind.

But this is not just interference in local decisionmaking. This is a poorly disguised assault on a persecuted minority, and I hope my colleagues across this political spectrum, from the far right to the left, will oppose this amendment. There is no room in our society for fermenting divisions, hate, and persecution, and this amendment should be rejected.

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS). I do so because I believe the amendment represents an unwarranted intrusion into the local affairs of one particular city.

The Riggs amendment says that none of the funds in this bill may be used to implement section 12B.2(b) of the Administrative Code of San Francisco, California. This particular section of local law requires contractors doing business with the City of San Francisco to provide the same benefits to their employees' "domestic partners" as they provide to employees' spouses. Domestic partners are defined as persons registered as such with a government agency pursuant to a State and local law. The apparent intent of the Riggs amendment is to prevent the City from applying this requirement on contracts that use funding from HUD or one of the other Federal agencies covered by this bill.

San Francisco's domestic partnership law is motivated, in part, by a belief that, as a matter of principle, spouses and domestic partners should be treated equally with respect to employee benefits. The practice of providing benefits to domestic partners has been adopted by a great many employers throughout the country, ranging from local governments to large corporations.

I also understand that the City's law is motivated, in part, by a desire to make health benefits more widely available and thereby reduce costs for public health programs.

Now, whether one agrees or disagrees with the particular approach chosen by San Francisco, we should all be able to agree that these are legitimate goals for a municipal government to be pursuing and that the City's elected officials have every right to adopt this rule.

We are so often told, especially by members of the majority party, that greater power must be returned to State and local governments and that the Federal Government should be providing assistance, largely through block grants with few strings attached. And, indeed, many of the programs administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development that are funded in this bill, there has been an increasing emphasis on local control and local decisionmaking.

The Riggs amendment turns this principle on its head. It singles out one particular city and says that city cannot apply a particular local ordinance to block grant and other funds.

Mr. Chairman, do we believe in local control and local decisionmaking or do we not? If we truly believe in local control, that principle should apply regardless of whether Congress happens to agree with all of the decisions made by every locality. Does Congress really need to turn itself into some sort of super review body for city councils picking and choosing those local enactments with which it agrees and disagrees and singling them out for disapproval in appropriation bills? I hope not. We should not start down that road.

Mr. Chairman, I urge defeat of the Riggs amendment.

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS).

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, I thank my good friend and colleague for seeking recognition and for yielding to me, because at this point in the debate I think it is important that we perhaps clarify some erroneous impressions that I believe my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are laboring under. Certainly I hope that they are not trying to perpetuate some of this nonsense that I have heard in recent days as we diligently sought to narrow the scope and the impacts of my amendment.

Just for the record, there were three versions, not four, not five, and I do not think there is a need to constantly exaggerate.

Just for the record, the City and County of San Francisco is the only such city with this kind of law, this kind of ordinance on the books, using Federal taxpayer funding to force private organizations to comply with the law. They are very proud of that fact. They are proud of the fact that they have a ground-blazing ordinance, their groundbreaking domestic partners law, the equal benefits ordinance which requires that organizations doing business with the City provide health care benefits to gay, lesbian and unmarried partners of their employees if they provide the same benefits to husbands and wives. And I do not think we will get any dispute over here that that is what the ordinance says and what it seeks to do.

So I guess the question to my colleagues is, do my colleagues have any concern about unwarranted intrusion into the private sector? I guess not. Do my colleagues really think that we should elevate a relationship between two unmarried people to the same relationship as two married people? And if we do not, that that is a form of discrimination, as I have heard people who oppose my amendment say repeatedly? Do my colleagues really feel that that is a form of discrimination, that unmarried people are treated differently under the law than married people? Do my colleagues think that that should be the policy of the United States Government, that unmarried people in a relationship are treated the same as married people?

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Georgia controls the time.

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Chairman, is this a rhetorical question or a serious question?

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Georgia controls the time. I will continue on. I will continue on, because, obviously, the gentleman has the ability to get more time on that side of the aisle.

□ 1915

I do not want people, our colleagues who might be following this debate, to labor under a false impression. Of course the Conference of Mayors, of course local officials, are going to go on record as opposing the amendment. They want as few strings attached as possible. We recognize that.

The gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI) is right when she says that generally speaking it is the Republican philosophy to decentralize funding and to maximize local control. The problem here is that we are talking about Federal taxpayer funding, not just State and local government funding, but Federal taxpayer funding.

My amendment does not jeopardize, as some have attempted to portray, receipt of these funds. The city and county of San Francisco would still get their full allocation of funding under the bill. They just could not use the funding to require that private organizations accept this policy against their fiscal and/or moral objections.

So my amendment merely prohibits the city and county of San Francisco, the first unit of local government to adopt such a law and to use Federal taxpayer funding, to force this law on private sector contractors, from attaching any domestic partner conditions to city contracts with Federal taxpayer funding because it now has had the unintended effect, at least in the case of the Salvation Army, of jeopardizing, if not disrupting, $3.5 million in funding to serve the homeless, to serve AIDS patients, and to provide meals to elderly citizens.

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I think a national civics lesson is in order here. First of all, as a former mayor of the city of Cleveland, I think that I understand what all mayors understand, and that is that people in our cities pay taxes to city, State, and to the Nation. So people in cities across this country give their tax dollars to the Federal Government. They are Federal taxpayers. That does not give them any less rights, it actually gives them more rights. It gives them something to say at all levels.

I am very concerned, as a former mayor and as a former city councilman, that the Riggs amendment would usurp the right of a local community, and by reference, all local communities, to make their own laws. The principle of home rule is something that every one of us in the Congress of the United States ought to support. We ought to support the principle of home rule.

People make laws at a local level to promote their own safety, to provide for their own services, to make sure that people have their waste collected, have their streets plowed in the winter, the streets clean, to make sure that the people have good recreation and health care. People establish local governments specifically to do that, and they also establish laws which relate to the concerns of people in the community.

People elect local officials because there are some decisions that are made at a local level, the decision of which ought to be made by the people of that locality. The history of the Federal Government does not provide for preemption of State or civil rights laws where State or civil rights laws of a locality have gone further than the Federal Government.

There is no place like home, and there is no government institution like home rule. How precious is this right of self-government? How precious is this right of home rule? People together, coming together at a local level, they elect their members of council to address local issues which are of importance to the people in their neighborhood, their community, and their city.

City councils meet as legislative bodies to make the laws for a city. It has been said before, we are not a plenipotentiary legislative body that seeks to make laws at every level of this government. We make Federal laws. We do not make laws for city councils and the city of San Francisco or Cleveland or Chicago or New York.

All across this land, mayors and councils meet daily, meet weekly, to do what they feel is in the best interests of their community. Local government exists for local matters, and the Federal Government exists for Federal matters, and we should not try to usurp the job and the duty of local government.

But when an amendment is created and aimed specifically at one city, in this case, San Francisco, California, I submit that it attacks home rule not only in San Francisco, but it attacks home rule in every city in the United States of America. As a former mayor, I can tell the Members that that ought not to happen, because that is not what the founders or the framers meant when they created a United States. It attacks home rule in New York, in Cleveland, in Chicago and Los Angeles, in every city and in every suburb and in every town.

Local government means power to the people in its finest. Aside from this attempt to dictate to San Francisco, there is an undercurrent here which is not worthy of this Congress. I ask the Members, whatever happened to keeping government out of people's private lives? Whatever happened to live and let live? Whatever happened to do onto others as you would have them do unto you? Whatever happened to judge not, that ye be not judged?

Mr. Chairman, I yield back, but I do not yield back anybody's constitutional rights.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise with some regret to strongly oppose the amendment of my colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS).

Mr. Chairman, I rise to make a couple of points. The first is that many may not know, but the early part of my life in a professional sense involved years in the health and life insurance business. I know a good deal about the group health insurance business and the way those contracts are formed.

I feel very strongly that in this arena, the marketplace ought to have something to say. Indeed, as my colleague, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. STOKES) indicated, there are corporations across the country who, in specifications they have outlined in terms of health insurance contracts, have included, among other things, provisions such as the ones that are being discussed here. The marketplace will work. People who are bidding to place those contracts can either choose to compete or not compete. So, frankly, I think, in the clearest sense, that ought to be true in this instance in the bay area of California.

Above and beyond that, it strikes me that beauty often lies in the eyes of the genuflector, and I find people in this House, sometimes on both sides of the aisle, stand and pound their chests in support of local control. Indeed, I have often said to my friends who are involved in educational issues at the local level, friends, be very careful as you turn to Washington and look for your educational dollars, and recognize that we only give 10 cents on the dollar for educational purposes, but very quickly those who are delivering that dime want to spend your entire dollar, for they love the control, using the Federal dollar as the reason to control.

In this case, in a most fundamental way, local government is reflecting its views as to what their policy should be, and very much reflecting their community in total, the epitome of what local control is all about.

It seems to me that the first thing the Congress should know is that we do not have all the answers to all the problems around. Indeed, that government that serves best is the government that is closest to the people who would be served.

So for all of those reasons, I would strongly urge the Members of this body to reject the Riggs amendment.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LEWIS of California. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, as the gentleman knows, we are friends and colleagues of the same State congressional delegation, and I respect the gentleman's opinion and views. But I want to explain one more time why I think we should give this very careful thought.

That is simply this: In the instance of the Salvation Army, we have an organization that has had a longstanding relationship with the city of San Francisco. I do not think there is any argument to that. They have long had a presence in the San Francisco Bay area that is specifically within the city and county of San Francisco.

There are a lot of destitute and very needy people in the city of San Francisco. This is an organization dedicated through its founding principles, yes, its Judeo-Christian principles, on which it was founded, to helping the desperately poor and truly needy among us in our society.

So there is an organization that is put in this quandary. They have a presence, a longstanding presence there. They have had a relationship with local government. Local government adopts this law. They condition their contracts; and ultimately, the contractor, this private organization, objects to the contract and to the law on moral and religious grounds.

The problem that I have is that that is not the marketplace working. If it is a private for-profit entity, that is one thing, but this is a private not-for-profit charitable Christian organization that objects on moral and religious grounds, but wants to stay there in the city and continue to provide the services.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I must say to the gentleman that there is probably not an organization in the country that I feel more closely to than the Salvation Army. I have worked with them not just here at home but overseas, in many instances in the country of India. I have a great sensitivity there.

But indeed, the marketplace does play a role here. Indeed, I am sure the Salvation Army, like other organizations working with the city, can find a way through this. But we should not be overriding that fundamental element of local control because of either a single organization, or in this case, because some disagree here at the Federal level.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FILNER. I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas.

Mr. Chairman, because this is a very destructive amendment, I rise to oppose it, and I hope my colleagues will defeat it handily.

Mr. FILNER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) for reminding other Members of his party that they are again conveniently forgetting their own sacred mantras of local control and no Washington interference to meet their own extreme partisan ends. Do they not get it, Mr. Chairman? They cannot have it both ways: honor and even sanctify local control when it suits them, but then disregard it when it conflicts with their own partisan agenda.

I am very concerned that this Congress is attempting to micromanage the affairs of the American public.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FILNER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I do feel this is a very serious issue. I would really regret it if we paint an issue like this in partisan terms.

Mr. FILNER. I thank the gentleman.

In any terms, Mr. Chairman, this is a very harmful precedent to set. Members should mark my words that each and every one of our communities, as the gentleman from Ohio stated, becomes instantly vulnerable to the very same congressional meddling if we pass this amendment.

As a former city councilman and deputy mayor of the city of San Diego, I recall that my city's working with the Federal Government was a two-way relationship. The city met the reasonable requirements and guidelines of Federal grants and programs, and the Federal Government did not meddle in our city's internal affairs and policies. It was a mutually respectful arrangement that this Congress should continue to honor.

Mr. Chairman, the city of San Francisco has the right to conduct its business as it sees fit. Whether it is domestic partnership benefits or term limits or parking restrictions, if the people of San Francisco do not agree with the policies of their government, it is their prerogative to address these issues at the ballot box. It is not the prerogative of this Congress.

I strongly urge my colleagues to be consistent in their demand to honor local control. Let the people of San Francisco and every city in America govern themselves.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FILNER. I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I thank him for his statement. I know that he is a former member of the city council, and deputy mayor or vice mayor.

Mr. FILNER. Deputy mayor.

Ms. PELOSI. Deputy mayor of San Diego. I appreciate the perspective he brings to this debate.

I particularly want to thank the chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) for his opposition to this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, just for the record, because a statement I made was contradicted by the maker of the motion, I want to submit for the RECORD the five versions of the Riggs amendment. This will be a resubmission, Mr. Chairman, because they have already appeared in the RECORD on July 15, in the case of one of them; on July 16, in the case of two of them; on July 21, in the case of another one; and the amendment that we have before us.

Mr. Chairman, I also want to say that it is interesting that the gentleman stood up and said he spoke here on behalf of Catholic Charities and Salvation Army, and now he is backing off the Catholic Charities defense because he knows it was not a legitimate one. It is one that does not say that if you oppose the Riggs amendment, then you support domestic partners.

That is not the issue at all. It is about local autonomy. And, as I say, there is nobody here to have to defend Catholic Charities. They do a good job themselves. They are in contract with the City of San Francisco to provide the services that Federal dollars do provide. We do not want them to have to spend some of that money trying to separate which dollar is a San Francisco dollar, which dollar is a California dollar, which dollar is a Federal dollar. We would rather they have the maximum use of those funds for the delivery of services to meet the needs of the people of our community.

Mr. Chairman, I am very proud to represent San Francisco, particularly so in conjunction with my colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. LANTOS), who spoke so eloquently against this amendment earlier. But we all respect our cities that we represent and we respect our colleagues; and when we ask them to vote for something, we should be on the level with them.

When this legislation comes to the floor, it is about local autonomy. I do not think that the VA-HUD bill is the appropriate venue for us to have a discussion about domestic partners. I do not think it is the appropriate venue for us to tell all the corporations in America, many of the largest corporations in America, and I have the list which I will submit for the RECORD, that what they are doing is immoral and indecent. Perhaps the gentleman thinks that is a legitimate debate for this Congress to have. Let him bring it up as an authorizing measure, but not to interfere with this VA-HUD bill.

Mr. Chairman, I include for the RECORD the amendments offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS):

Amendment No. 15. At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. XX. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be provided to the City of San Francisco because the City requires, as a condition for an organization to contract with, or receive a grant from, the City, that the organization provide health care benefits for unmarried, domestic partners of individuals who are provided such benefits on the basis of their employment by or other relationship with the organization.

Amendment No. 24. At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. XX. None of the funds appropriated by title II may be provided to any locality that requires as a condition for an organization to contract with, or receive a grant from, the locality, that the organization provide health care benefits for unmarried, domestic partners of individuals who are provided such benefits on the basis of their employment by or other relationship with the organization.

Amendment No. 25. At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. XX. None of the funds appropriated by title II may be provided to the political entity known as the City and County of San Francisco, California.

Amendment No. 30. At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. XX. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to implement Chapter 12B of the Administrative Code of San Francisco, California.

Amendment No. 31. At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. XX. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to implement section 12B.2(b) of the Administrative Code of San Francisco, California.

Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I want to echo some of the comments that have been made by my colleagues, most particularly the comments just made by my colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), with respect to the marketplace and the fact that, in these instances, the marketplace dictates that these provisions do be provided. Do my colleagues know why? In order to get the best people.

These provisions need to be provided because, in this tight labor market, employers want to make sure they get the best possible talent. And I am sure the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) means no slight to those who are receiving human services. Because, obviously, we want the best people out there who are capable of delivering human services to be the people that we have deliver human services. We would not want to shut out anybody from being able to deliver those human services.

So I think we need to address that point that the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) brought up, because I think it is a very good point. It is not a matter of these private companies having extra money so they can dig into their pockets and do something that feels good. These companies adhere to stock markets. They need to provide the best maximum profit. And the reason they know they can do it and provide these benefits is because they know they are going to get the best possible people. The City of San Francisco should be no different from these private corporations.

Mr. Chairman, I just want to bring to the attention of my colleagues in the House, however, the issue that is being brought up here, the issue with respect to local autonomy. It has been echoed over and over again that the Council of Mayors has rejected the Riggs amendment. They have spoken very strongly on this issue. I want to add that the National Association of Counties and County Executives has also come out vigorously against the Riggs amendment because of its usurpation of local control.

But I want to bring to the attention of my colleagues the fact that this really is usurping local control. In fact, so much so that it will undoubtedly end up in the courts. I am not making anything up here, when the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) himself acknowledges that the only city that is going to be affected is San Francisco.

Mr. Chairman, I thought we were passing a bill that would provide coverage to all the cities and towns in America. But, apparently, the gentleman wants to micromanage and effect a policy in one city in this country. To me, that violates the case of Romer v. Evans, which said that Congress cannot pass any bill of attainder which specifies that Congress cannot carve out one city and town or person for direct impact when passing any legislation. That any legislation that the Congress proposes must impact the whole body of general information that the amendment seeks to change, and it cannot specify in one instance. So, for that reason, this will be tied up in the courts.

Let me tell my colleagues what will practically be the result of when this is tied up in the courts. When this is tied up in courts, it will tie up approximately $65 million in Federal funds which will be tied up. What are those funds? The very programs that the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) says he cares about are going to be compromised because of his amendment.

Homeless people are not going to get the McKinney Grant funds because of the Riggs amendment. People who are homeless because of AIDS are not going to get the necessary Federal funds because the gentleman from California is on this political witch-hunt.

So do not think that this is any old amendment for Members to go in there and cover themselves with political stripes saying, "I was strong today because I stood up and beat up on some minority in this country and was able to scapegoat some group in this country." Do not be so quick to do that, because when we do that we are affecting real people's lives. Real people are going to be affected by this, because of some ideological march that the gentleman from California is on.

Mr. Chairman, I would ask my colleagues to join the gentleman from California (Mr. Lewis) and others in rejecting this mean-spirited, bigoted, bigoted amendment.

Mr. MICA. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, there has been a great deal of comment from the other side on this issue, and I think it is only fair that I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. Riggs) so that he may respond.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Mica) for yielding this time to me. I do want the opportunity to respond, since the previous speaker in the well I think just referred to me as being "mean-spirited" and "bigoted." I guess the proper thing to do is to consider the source.

But I also want to respond by saying that I did not know the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. Kennedy) was a constitutional expert. I did not realize he was a legal scholar.

Mr. Chairman, I do realize that he is reading from a letter, because I have a copy of the same letter. I can read from the same letter. I have a copy from the ACLU, the Washington office, which the gentleman, the renowned constitutional scholar, was just referring to regarding, "The Riggs amendment is an unconstitutional bill of attainder." But right above that it says, in their opinion, "the sole objective of the Riggs amendment is to punish San Francisco for attempting to use its municipal spending powers to help equalize health care benefits for married heterosexual couples and unmarried, due to State law, homosexual couples."

That is kind of a convoluted way, I guess, of explaining their interpretation of my amendment. But it is the purpose of my amendment not to allow them to use Federal taxpayer funding to condition contracts to equate married heterosexual couples with, as they put it, unmarried homosexual couples.

I also want to respond to a couple of points. The gentlewoman from California (Ms. Pelosi) is correct. I stand corrected. We apparently had five versions of the amendment, three of which we drafted in 1 day.

It is rare that one can stand up on the floor and get criticized by one's colleagues for making a good-faith effort. I served with the gentlewoman on the Committee on Appropriations in the last Congress, so I am well aware of the tactics. It is rare that when one makes a good-faith effort to address, as I said at the outset, legitimate concerns raised by one's colleagues that one is then criticized for raising those efforts.

Be that as it may, I want to go back to Salvation Army and Catholic Charities. I will insert the San Francisco Examiner article in the Record at the appropriate time that quotes Mr. Richard Love, an appropriate name, spokesman for the Salvation Army who said that, after 11 months of negotiation, the organization told city officials that it could not comply with the ordinance. It is giving up $3.5 million in city contracts to serve the needy. Three programs, including meals for 1,700 senior citizens, received taxpayers' dollars and will be reduced, but the programs will not be closed.

So it seems to me that the actual effect at the local level was exactly the opposite of what the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. Kennedy), in a kind of hysterical rhetoric, was trying to describe.

The part about Catholic Charities though, well, staying on Salvation Army, it quotes Mr. Love as saying, as I pointed out to the gentleman from California (Chairman Lewis), chairman of the subcommittee and the primary author of the legislation, "The Salvation Army objects to the domestic partners law on religious grounds.

"The Army's belief system, grounded in traditional interpretation of Scripture, does not perceive domestic partnership arrangements as similar to the sanctity granted marriage partners."

That is the position of the Salvation Army. But then they went on to say that the Salvation Army says that the group will continue to "provide services to individuals, regardless of race, religion, sexual orientation, or marital status." They just do not want this policy forced on them, because it contradicts their founding principles and the beliefs that they have long adhered to. They have been in San Francisco for 118 years.

Mr. Chairman, with respect to Catholic Charities, and this I do want to personally address to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. Kennedy), since he is a member of one of best-known Catholic families in America, it says, "Last year the City of San Francisco and the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco, which has affiliated agencies with city contracts, fought the mandate."

Mr. Chairman, I would say to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Pelosi) they fought the mandate. They did not go along with it, Catholic Charities. "In the end, they reached an accommodation which allows employees of Catholic agencies, or any other organization doing business with the city, to designate someone in their household as eligible to receive spousal-equivalent benefits, and that could include a spouse, a sibling, other relative, or other married partner. Citing Church doctrine, the Archdiocese has been a vocal foe of sanctioning domestic partner relations, homosexual or otherwise."

So I think it is very inappropriate to give the impression that Catholic Charities went along willingly.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. WOOLSEY. I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, let the Record show that no one here says that Catholic Charities approved of domestic partners laws. What we are saying is that no law in San Francisco forces Catholic Charities to accept domestic partners laws or stops it from contracting with the City.

Catholic Charities and the City of San Francisco have reached their accommodation. There is no fight here in our city on this issue. I do not know why the gentleman from California (Mr. Riggs) wants to start one on this floor.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I rise in strong opposition to this amendment, an amendment designed to prevent San Francisco from requiring their contractors to offer domestic partner benefits.

This legislation is discriminatory, hypocritical, mean-spirited and ill-conceived. This legislation is hypocritical because it blatantly denies local control. In essence, it says local officials are free to make decisions about local issues, unless we, the Federal Government and individuals in the Congress, do not agree with that local decision.

I thought Republicans wanted more, not less local control. I guess I was wrong.

This amendment is discriminatory because it once again singles out one group, gays and lesbians, for second-class treatment.

This legislation is mean-spirited because it will deny thousands of people living in domestic partnerships the funds that they need to have health care for themselves.

Finally, the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. Riggs) is ill-conceived because it is an attempt to play politics with the vitally important appropriations process.

This amendment, which has wide-reaching implications for our country through precedents, if through no other way, was rushed to the House Floor without going through the normal committee process because the right-wing element in this country wants to score some political points.

The fact is, Mr. Chairman, San Francisco chooses to view domestic partnership as a legitimate life-style, a choice that thousands of people make. The Federal Government has no right to tell San Francisco what is right or what is wrong.

□ 1945

The Federal Government has no place in interfering with local decisions. This Congress has no place in judging another person's lifestyle.

I urge my colleagues to make this truly moral choice and vote against this amendment and support the principle of home rule.

Ms. FURSE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, this is an amazing day. We have a member of Congress, the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS) who has decided that he knows better than San Francisco council members who were elected by San Francisco city citizens.

Wake up, citizens of Portland, Oregon and Portland, Maine. Understand that this amendment affects you and the people you elect.

In fact, this amendment is an equal opportunity offender. It is offensive on a bipartisan basis. It is offensive to the people of this country, and it is offensive to the whole issue of home rule.

I say we should vote for local control, stop the nonsense, vote against the Riggs amendment.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Those who would take this amendment lightly or who would sit on the sidelines of this debate, I would warn them, because it reminds me of the words of Martin Niemoeller commenting on Nazi Germany. He said that, they came first for the Communists, and I did not speak up because I was not a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I did not speak up because I was not a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists and I did not speak because I was not a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, I did not speak. I was a Protestant. Then they came for me. And no one was left to speak up.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak up for those individuals who would be affected by this amendment. It is the City of San Francisco today, could be New York tomorrow, Los Angeles next week, New Orleans next month and even perhaps Chicago next year. I rise against this amendment because I agree with those who have suggested that it is indeed a mean-spirited maneuver that is designed to punish a certain group of individuals in one particular city.

This amendment would bar the City of San Francisco from using HUD funds to execute its entire city ordinance against discrimination in city contracts. If enacted, the well-being of tens of thousands of veterans, disabled people, children, victims of natural disasters, individuals with HIV and AIDs would be jeopardized in order to punish a locality.

I agree with those who have stressed the issue of local control, home rule, citizenship, meaning that people can decide what it is that they will and will not do. I would hate to see us move back to the days of witch-hunting, back to the days of trying to determine what others should and should not do. But I simply close, Mr. Chairman, by saying that I strongly oppose any measure that seeks to discriminate based on sexual orientation, and I urge my colleagues to reject this amendment and let America be America, the America that it has never been but the America that it can and must become.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, although the sponsor of this amendment would have us believe that this amendment is not as egregious as its earlier incarnation, the fundamental fact remains: its purpose is to nullify a duly adopted local ordinance, micro-manage a city, and punish those who don't share a narrow-minded vision of America.

I have to ask why, in the Congress where Members on both sides of the aisle routinely preach the virtues of states' rights, local governance, and devolution of federal power, we're even considering such a thing. This amendment is really the height of hypocrisy.

If the people of San Francisco—or any city for that matter—have chosen to use their municipal spending powers to prohibit discrimination in city contracts and help equalize health benefits for married heterosexual couples and unmarried same-sex couples, what business do we have in stepping in and overruling that action?

As the U.S. Conference of Mayors has stated, passage of this amendment "would establish a very dangerous precedent." It could harm more than 30,000 people who benefit from federal funding for low-income elderly housing, homeless programs, and housing for people with AIDS. It also would serve to blackmail other municipalities who—through the democratic process—want to adopt similar ordinances that prohibit discrimination in city contracts.

Call me cynical, but I don't believe the sponsors have had a change in heart on the issue of local control. The truth is that, in this election season, the Republican leadership has decided it's in their political interest to push proposals backed by the Radical Right in order to mobilize their base for the November elections.

This amendment is just one in a series of attacks on those who don't fit the Right Wing's vision of America. In the next few days we'll debate an amendment to strip gay and lesbian federal employees of basic protections against being fired simply because of their sexual orientation.

This is not the direction we should be heading in. I urge all Members to defeat the Riggs Amendment and work instead on bringing all Americans together.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong opposition to the Riggs Amendment, which is a unacceptable intrusion into local affairs. My colleagues on the other side of the aisle constantly preach to us about government intrusion into local affairs. According to them, government has no place in education. No place in protecting our environment. No place in protecting the safety of American workers.

But when it suits their purpose, it suddenly becomes acceptable to dictate how a city should run its affairs. San Francisco has been a model for the nation in providing benefits for domestic partners. This is a policy determined by San Francisco's government. This is a policy supported by San Francisco's citizens. This is a policy meant to end discrimination and ensure equality under the law.

This amendment would single out the city of San Francisco for punishment because it enacted a policy that the Congressional Majority just doesn't like. Requiring any city to go against its own ordinance in order to use federal funds is simply unacceptable. Congress has no place dictating local affairs to this extent. That's why this amendment is opposed by the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which called it an "unwarranted intrusion into local decision making."

I urge my colleagues to stand up for local decision making and for civil rights and oppose this amendment.

Mr. NADLER, Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong opposition to this amendment.

This amendment flies in the face of the ideals that many of its proponents purport to hold dear. In debates after debate, my colleagues from the other side of the aisle warn darkly of the dangers of intruding into the affairs of State and local governments. Is that not exactly the effect of this amendment? Some may say that those who have espoused the belief that State and local governments deserve autonomy would be committing a gross act of hypocrisy if they were to support this amendment.

Beyond that fact, I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment because it is outrageously mean-spirited. This amendment is a blatant effort to deny gay men and lesbians, who live as domestic partners, health benefits through their partners' employment.

If this amendment were to become law, San Francisco and other cities fearing government intervention would be forced to choose between ensuring their domestic partners receive appropriate health care benefits or, ensuring that funding is available to assist those in need of adequate housing. This is nothing short of blackmail. By punishing localities that set policies that help ensure equal rights in health care benefits, thousands would be hurt through the loss of Federal housing dollars.

In the past few weeks, we have hear much from some Members from the other side of the aisle about their views on homosexuality. Now, these appalling statements are being put into action through attempts, such as this amendment, to legislate away rights that have been hard fought and won fair and square. This level of bigotry must not be tolerated in this body. We must not stand by and allow such a mean-spirited and dangerous amendment to prevail. I urge my colleagues to oppose this amendment.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the opportunity to speak on this issue tonight. The Riggs amendment would unfairly deny Federal funds to any locality that requires private companies and organizations contracting with the locality to provide health care benefits to unmarried domestic partners of its employees.

Equality in employee compensation is a legitimate public policy goal recognized by a myriad of different entities including cities, municipalities, private and public colleges and universities and private employers both large and small.

This amendment infringes on the right of local government to operate freely and without gross Federal interference. The passage of this amendment would affect an enormous demographic pool. The private lives of our workers and who they choose as life partners should not interfere with their ability to receive spousal benefits. Thousands of people including veterans, the disabled, the elderly, and victims of natural disaster would lose access to spousal benefits, along with the targets of this amendment—the gay and lesbian community.

It is irresponsible for Congress to act on such an important matter without appropriate committee considerations and debate. Equality in employee compensation is a legitimate public policy goal and when employees are denied benefits for their life partners, they are being unequally compensated as compared to their married co-workers, as defined in this amendment. I urge my colleagues to vote "No" on the Riggs amendment.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong opposition to this outrageous amendment. Mr. Chairman, this bill brings me memories from my childhood, but not a single good one. I remember how excited I was about going to school. The sad reality was that when I started school, I was unable to attend public schools because education was segregated. I was unable to attend public schools because of the color of my skin. I was unable to attend public schools because I was black. It did not matter that my father proudly served in the military with patriotism risking his life to protect my freedom and that of others regardless of skin color. No, it didn't matter. I, like many others, was subjected to the painful calvary of discrimination. It wasn't until many courageous men and women from all over the country decided to join forces to fight prejudice and the injustice of segregation that these barriers were broken. I learned so much from those experiences and there is one lesson I will never forget, discrimination—no matter what form it takes—is wrong.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment has gone through four rewrites. Not one, not two, not three, but four rewrites and the latest version is still unfair, invasive, and unconstitutional. Mr. Chairman, the San Francisco's civil rights ordinance has the full support of the City and County of San Francisco, its elected mayor and Board of Supervisors. This amendment constitutes nothing but a chilling attack on San Francisco's civil rights laws. It sends out to undermine the civil rights laws of the City and County of San Francisco, a prospect that should sound alarm bells for anyone who supports the effort to attain civil rights in this nation.

Mr. Chairman, I thought that our friends on the other side of the aisle were in favor of more powers for local government not against. Well, may be I'm reading the wrong papers or may be it is that some people have decided to be selective about who to attack, when to attack, and why. If we are the House of the people, we are not to violate their trust by launching a malicious attack on the City of San Francisco and its wonderful people. But the people of San Francisco are not the only ones opposing this amendment. The U.S. Conference of Mayors has indicated that they are "* * * seriously concerned with this unwarranted intrusion into local decision making * * *" Mr. Chairman, the passage of this amendment would establish a frightening precedent, which is why the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the National Association of Counties, the City of Los Angeles, and others have voiced strong opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I come from a religious family and I continue to practice my faith. I learned early in life that if we believe in justice we also need to believe in tolerance and respect. Mr. Chairman, I have no doubt in my heart that every single Member of this House agrees with me that discrimination is wrong. Every single person is created equal! If that is the case we need to oppose this attack on civil rights. I encourage my fellow Members to vote no on this amendment.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Chairman, the Riggs Amendment might just as well be called the "Join the District of Columbia Club" amendment. Until now, bald intrusion into the affairs of a local jurisdiction was confined to the nation's capital. Now another noble city joins the ranks of local jurisdictions run by the Congress of the United States.

San Francisco local code not only bars discrimination based on sexual orientations; San Francisco requires contractors who benefit from city contracts to provide health care and other benefits to domestic partners only if they provide these same benefits to married partners. This is a wise policy because it assures health care at no cost to the city from companies who profit from city contracts. Otherwise the city of San Francisco might well be left to pay for the health care of people with AIDS or other illnesses.

Is there nothing we will not do to promote gay bashing? Some of the most revered principles in this chamber have been sacrificed in the name of anti-gay chest thumping—religious tolerance, civil rights, privacy, service in the armed forces, and now, devolution and local control. We've done enough harm through Federal laws. But this is still a Federal republic. Let each jurisdiction decide its own local laws locally.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the amendment.

I happen to support the San Francisco policy. I believe that companies should provide benefits to the domestic partners of their employees. And I think it is reasonable for a local jurisdiction to choose to award county contracts to companies whose practices conform to local civil rights policies.

But it really doesn't matter what I think about this policy, or any other * * * you think about it. The only opinion that matters is the opinion of the citizens of San Francisco.

With all due respect to the gentleman from California, where did he get the idea that Congress has the right to step in and nullify the contracting decisions made by locally-elected leaders?

This Congress has told local governments what to do about a lot of things. We have used federal grants to dictate local policies regarding abortion and contraception, educational standards, and juvenile crime. The list goes on and on.

Whatever one may think about these federal mandates, most of them can claim at least some tenuous connection to the national interest.

But what possible national purpose can we have in telling the County of San Francisco how to award its contracts? Next, we'll be placing street lights and directing traffic.

I think that if members of Congress want to try their hand at local government, they should run for mayor. Otherwise, they should content themselves with governing the country.

We have no authority to tell the people of San Francisco—or any other locality—whom they should select to perform their public contracts. I know of no legitimate national interest that can justify this kind of incursion into state and local prerogatives.

Many groups, including the National Association of Counties, have expressed alarm over this amendment. It is a feeling we all should share.

Let's defeat this outrageous amendment, and get back to the business we were sent here to do.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from California (Mr. RIGGS).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote, and, pending that, I make the point or order that a quorum is not present.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will count for a quorum.

Evidently a quorum is not present.

Pursuant to clause 2 of rule XXIII, the Chair announces that he will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the period of time within which a vote by electronic device, if ordered, will be taken on the pending question following the quorum call. Members will record their presence by electronic device.

The call was taken by electronic device.

☐ 2016

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, earlier this evening, although I was in the Capitol building, I did not hear the bell for the vote on Rollcall No. 349 and consequently was not present for the vote. Had I been present, I would have voted "no."

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the final lines of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999".

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Chairman, I insert the following for the RECORD.

U.S. CONSUMER PRODUCT SAFETY COMMISSION

[Statement of Chairman Ann Brown, August 3, 1994]

CHILDREN'S SLEEPWEAR

I voted today to terminate the Commission's rulemaking proceeding to amend the Standards for the Flammability of Children's Sleepwear in sizes 0–6x and 7–14. I also voted to terminate the stay of enforcement after providing firms an adequate lead time to bring their sleepwear garments into compliance with the flammability standards.

The proposal approved by the Commission today would exempt so-called tight-fitting sleepwear garments from the flammability standards, and sleepwear garments for infants under one year of age. In considering whether to support continuing the rulemaking proceeding, I have made it clear that my primary concern is that the Commission take no action that would reduce the level of safety currently provided by the children's sleepwear standards. I am unable to support changing the sleepwear standards unless I can make the statutory findings that the changes would not present an unreasonable risk of the occurrence of fire leading to death or personal injury, or significant property damage. Since I am not convinced by the evidence currently available that I can make this finding, I cannot vote to support the proposed amendments.

I am concerned that the available data fail to support the conclusion that exempting tight fitting garments from the regulation will not decrease safety. Available injury and death data demonstrate to me that the sleepwear standards are working. Although incident data was not kept on a statistical basis before issuance of the sleepwear standards in 1972 (sizes 0–6x) and 1975 (sizes 7–14), it is clear that a significant number of burn injuries and deaths associated with children's sleepwear did occur. Over the years, the actual numbers of injuries and deaths associated with sleepwear injuries and deaths appear to have declined dramatically. Although there is speculation that this decline may be based on such things as the reduced number of persons smoking and safer appliance such as space heaters and ranges, it is merely speculation. It is just as likely that the injuries and deaths have declined because the sleepwear standards are working.

I recognize that there is a consumer preference for cotton children's sleepwear garments especially in infant sizes, and that the Commission staff has encountered difficulty in enforcing the sleepwear standards because of this consumer preference. I have taken this into account in reaching my decision. I understand and am sympathetic to these concerns.

I do not disagree with the staff's conclusion that tight-fitting cotton garments present less of a hazard than loose-fitting cotton garments. I am skeptical, however, of the staff's conclusion that if the standard is amended, parents will switch from loose-fitting cotton garments (e.g. t-shirts) to exempt tight-fitting sleepwear. There is no factual evidence of consumer demand for tight-fitting sleepwear. There is no factual evidence that consumers would switch from loose-fitting noncomplying garments to exempted tight-fitting garments. It is at least as likely that the purchase of tight-fitting garments will be at the expense of garments that meet the children's sleepwear flammability standards. If so, the level of safety afforded children may well be reduced. Further, even if skin tight garments could reduce burn injuries, I am concerned that it is not practical to think that consumers will actually sleep in them. We may well find that consumers purchase tight-fitting garments in larger sizes to increase comfort, thereby obviating any safety benefit staff has indicated might be achieved with tight-fitting garments.

Regarding the proposed exemption for sleepwear for infants less than six months of age, existing evidence shows that infants at this tender age are exposed to ignition sources. The exemption would cover at least 20% of sleepwear garments in sizes 0–14. I am unable to agree to an exemption that could leave these infants more vulnerable to injury or death.

U.S. CONSUMER
PRODUCT SAFETY COMMISSION,
Washington, DC, April 10, 1998.

Hon. ROSA DELAURO,
U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSWOMAN DELAURO: Thank you for your letter opposing the change in the CPSC's children's sleepwear standard. I appreciate your kind words about my opposition to the change. As you know, I share your views. I continue to be concerned that parents will not switch from loose fitting garments to tight fitting sleepwear. I also am unable to agree with the nine month exemption that could leave infants more vulnerable to injury.

In these circumstances, it appears the only remedy is legislative action to restore the previous rule. If you decide to introduce a bill to achieve that result, my staff and I would be pleased and honored to assist you in drafting an appropriate bill.

Sincerely,

ANN BROWN.

[From the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, July 27, 1998]

SO NOW WE'RE BACK TO FLAMMABLE PAJAMAS?

(By Molly Ivins)

AUSTIN—Keeping your eye on the shell with the pea under it seems to get harder and harder. While the media are focused on the thrilling antics of Monica, Ken Starr and Co., there are just a few other itty-bitty items that you might want to pay some attention to. Your babies, for example. Congress is now engaged in a quiet donnybrook over whether to keep the old flammability standards for children's pajamas. Thought that one was over, did you? Thought that after the consumer movement forced pajama manufacturers to make kids' PJs from flame-resistant material back in 1972—and after the number of children burned to death every year from having their PJs catch on fire decreased tenfold—that no one was ever going to question whether that was a good idea again.

Wrong. Consumer protection is so politically incorrect these days that Congress won't even listen to groups representing firefighters and trauma care providers on this issue, much less consumer advocates.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission revised its flammability standards for sleepwear in 1996, in theory because parents were letting their kids sleep in oversize cotton T-shirts, which are comfortable but highly flammable. According to "The Washington Post," from 200 to 300 kids a year are treated in emergency rooms for burns related to billowy sleepwear. Under the new standards, snug-fitting garments such as long underwear can be sold as sleepwear, and pajamas for infants younger than 9 months need not be flame-resistant.

Rep. Rosa DeLauro, D-Conn., introduced a bill in May to reinstate the earlier standards and then tried to tack it onto the VA–HUD bill as an amendment in June. Cotton lobbyists learned of the move and started lobbying Republicans—including Reps. Henry Bonilla, Larry Combest and Mac Thornberry, all of Texas.

Bonilla will move to strike DeLauro's amendment today. He told "The Washington Post" last week, "I don't have a huge cotton constituency in my district, but my state does," and added that the Texas drought has already taken a toll on cotton farmers. "They came to me and explained this would place severe restrictions on what they could produce."

Excuse me—did I just hear someone say we should bail out the cotton farmers by letting more little kids get burned to death every year? Did anyone think to ask the cotton farmers whether they approve of this move? Because I seriously doubt that they do.

DeLauro said, "It is just mind-boggling to me that we would allow special interests to influence this legislation." However, according to Bonilla's press secretary this week, his main motive here is procedural: DeLauro's bill never got a hearing, and here she is trying to tack it onto an unrelated bill.

I find this objection breathtaking—using the amendment-on-an-unrelated-bill maneuver has been a specialty of Republicans in this Congress. As previously reported, they have used unrelated bills to pass amendments damaging the environment, fouling up the Department of Interior's efforts to get a fair royalty from the oil companies (the Kay Bailey Hutchison special) and innumerable other horrors.

(The "St. Louis Post-Dispatch" recently editorialized: "Republicans are sneakily trying to chisel away at environmental protections. . . . they are using the legislative rider to slip through anti-environmental bills that would wilt under the glare of public scrutiny. . . . This summer the riders have multiplied like E. coli.")

In fact, I'd bet good money that the Republicans have done more actual legislation by the sneaky amendment-and-rider method than they have passed actual legislation (an easy bet, given their remarkable nonperformance in general). Boy oh boy, if that's now an objection on procedural grounds, these R's will never get anything passed.

We could go on and on with these examples, but let's take a look at the broader perspective instead.

There are two things we can do about corporate misbehavior in this society: We can have the government regulate corporations for health, safety and environmental damage, or we can let people who have been damaged by corporations haul them into court and sue the b-----. What is happening is that both avenues of control are being squeezed out of existence. "Regulation" is a dirty word to the Republicans, and at the same time they are restricting the right of citizens to sue in every way they possibly can.

According to a study by the Violence Policy Center, the latest effort was a bill placing wide-ranging limits on product liability lawsuits against "small business." You may think that "small business" means the mom-and-pop candy stores. Nah. Specially included as a "small favor" in "small business" are, among others, manufacturers of Saturday-night-specials, the AK-47, the TEC-9 and the Street Sweeper. Cut, eh?

Look, friends, this is all fairly simple. Corporate money dominates politics, and the politicians dance with them what brung 'em. Until we force politicians to change the way campaigns are financed, rule by corporate money will continue. And while we're on the subject, please notice that corporations have put millions and millions and millions of dollars into the campaign to convince us that lawsuits against do-badding corporations are rotten, unfair and nasty. Welcome back to flammable pajamas.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments, under the rule the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) having assumed the chair, Mr. COMBEST, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4194) making appropriations for the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and for sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 501, he reported the bill, as amended pursuant to that rule, back to the House with further sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment?

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I demand a separate vote on the so-called Coburn amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is a separate vote demanded on any other amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment on which a separate vote has been demanded.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment:

At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new sections:

SEC. ____. The amounts otherwise provided by this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available under the heading "DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT—FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION—FHA—MUTUAL MORTGAGE INSURANCE PROGRAM ACCOUNT" for non-overhead administrative expenses necessary to carry out the Mutual Mortgage Insurance guarantee and direct loan program, and increasing the amount made available for "DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS—VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION—MEDICAL CARE", by $199,999,999.

SEC. ____. The amounts otherwise provided by this Act are revised by reducing the amount made available under the heading "DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT—FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION—FHA—GENERAL AND SPECIAL RISK PROGRAM ACCOUNT" for non-overhead administrative expenses necessary to carry out the guaranteed and direct loan programs, and increasing the amount made available for "DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS—VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION—MEDICAL CARE", by $103,999,999.

Mr. COBURN (during the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRIES

Mr. LEWIS of California. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, to clarify for the House, is this the amendment that will transfer administrative funds for FHA's program that are in the HUD provisions and move those moneys to veterans programs?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Would the gentleman like the amendment read?

The reading of the amendment was suspended by unanimous consent and would the gentleman demand a reading of the gentleman from Oklahoma's amendment?

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I believe my question was clear.

Mr. WAXMAN. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman will state his parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. WAXMAN. My inquiry is whether it is timely to ask for another separate vote in the House of an amendment adopted in committee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The House has proceeded past that opportunity when the Chair inquired earlier.

The question is on the amendment.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 351, noes 73, not voting 10, as follows:

Mr. DOGGETT changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. SHAYS and Mr. ABERCROMBIE changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The question is on the engrossment and a third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time

MOTION TO RECOMMIT OFFERED BY MR. OBEY

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is the gentleman opposed to the bill?

Mr. OBEY. I certainly am, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the motion to recommit.

The Clerk read as follows:

> Mr. OBEY moves to recommit the bill, H.R. 4194, to the Committee on Appropriations with instructions to report the same back to the House with an amendment as follows:
>
> On page 55, line 7, strike the sentence beginning on line 7, and strike section 425.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) is recognized for 5 minutes in support of his motion.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, the rule under which this bill was considered contains a self-executing provision, the effect of which was to delay from anywhere between 2 and 5 years the Consumer Product Safety Commission's adoption of a rule protecting consumers from flammable furniture. Because of the way that rule was adopted, Members were precluded from offering any amendments to that provision.

The proponents of that provision will say that all this provision does is to allow for more study and to get more science before the Commission proceeds. In fact, in my view, the real purpose of this provision is to stall and stall and stall some more, in hopes that eventually they will get a commission with a different makeup so that the rule will never proceed at all.

Mr. Speaker, this is part of a pattern. What has been happening is that law firms around this town have been hired by clients. Those clients are hired to prevent action by the government to prevent consumers or workers from being protected by new actions of the government.

So whether it is children's pajamas or whether it is OSHA being precluded from offering a new rule to stop the development of carpal tunnel syndrome by millions of workers or whether it is consumers continuing to die because of flammable furniture, those law firms find friendly voices in Congress who will carry out their wishes and we wind up with language like this in the bill.

I think the issue is very simple in this case. More deaths occur in this country from upholstered furniture than from any other product under the Consumer Product Safety Commission jurisdiction.

So the vote is very simple. If Members want to vote to save lives, Members will vote for this amendment to allow the Commission to proceed to develop rules that will protect the public from flammable furniture. If Members want to let yet another industry continue to expose consumers to life-threatening products, then Members will vote against the amendment. It is as simple as that.

I would urge an aye vote on the motion to recommit.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to recommit.

Mr. Speaker, I strongly urge my colleagues to oppose this procedural motion.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. WICKER).

Mr. WICKER. Mr. Speaker, I thank my chairman for yielding. I thank him for a good bill.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support of the bill and certainly urge defeat of the Obey motion to recommit with instructions.

In the 1970s, the Consumer Product Safety Commission issued a regulation concerning children's sleepwear, and in this 1970s regulation, the CPSC required that baby's sleepwear be coated with a chemical known as tris, T-R-I-S. Thereafter, the regulation went out and all of the baby sleepwear in America was coated with this chemical.

It turns out that this chemical caused cancer. It was a pesticide. It had to be recalled at enormous expense to the American people, at enormous danger to American consumers, and it continues to be a black mark on the history of the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

This is what then Congressman AL GORE had to say about the tris disaster with the Consumer Product Safety Commission: Quote, "The magnitude of this nightmare is difficult to fathom. Here we take all of the sleepwear for children of this country and soak it in what is basically a pesticide, a mutagenic, and then we wrap up American children in these garments." I unquote then Congressman AL GORE.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if you believe this is the only mistake that the Consumer Product Safety Commission will ever make, then perhaps you need to vote for the motion to recommit by my friend from Wisconsin.

If my colleagues believe that Federal regulatory agencies are always right and never make a mistake and never need an outside scientist looking at what they propose, then maybe my colleagues should vote for the motion of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

What are we talking about here? We are talking about a proposed regulation by the Consumer Product Safety Commission that says every bit of upholstered furniture in the United States of America will be coated with flame-retardant chemicals. My colleagues might ask, what is wrong with this? Let us just coat furniture with a flame-retardant chemical.

Well, here is the problem. EPA, our own Federal Government, says that these chemicals are harmful. Let me just list three of them, if I can pronounce them:

Decabromodiphenyl oxide. EPA says it is a class C carcinogen. It causes cancer.

Ammonium nitrate. Do my colleagues know what EPA says about this flame retardant chemical that would go on furniture? It says it causes adverse affects across whole ecosystems.

Antimony trioxide, a B2 carcinogen. It causes tumors.

That is what the Consumer Product Safety Commission is proposing that we put on furniture in the United States of America.

Now, if it does not bother my colleagues to have thousands and tens of thousands of Americans exposed to what the EPA says is a toxic chemical, then maybe my colleagues should vote for this motion.

Mr. Speaker, I think the scientists raise serious questions. We are all for saving lives. Every Member of this Congress wants to prevent fire-related deaths, and we have done that working through the subcommittee of the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) and working with voluntary and mandatory programs with industries. But we need to ask ourselves the question: Are we preventing one kind of harm while allowing all sorts of other dangers to come about?

How do we resolve questions like this? We do not make the decisions ourselves. We are elected officials. We turn it over to science. And in this Federal Government, we have procedures for reasonable scientific peer review; and, despite the hyperbole, that is exactly what this well-crafted bill and well-crafted compromise by the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) does. It turns the issue over to scientists within the Consumer Product Safety Commission. It turns it over to scientists within the National Institutes of Health, an agency that we are plussing up the funding for.

So I say when my colleagues vote in just a moment, vote against taking unwarranted risks with American industrial workers and consumers. Vote for sound science. Vote for the bill and against the Obey motion to recommit.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the motion to recommit.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 5 of rule XV, the Chair will reduce to 5 minutes the minimum time for an electronic vote on final passage.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 164, noes 261, not voting 9, as follows:

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I would advise the Members of the House that we do not expect this to take more than just a few moments.

Less than a month ago, we voted on the floor of the House on this bill, H.R. 4059, and it passed 396 to 10. No controversy came out of the conference. It was a very amicable and successful conference.

Mr. Speaker, I simply want to thank the members of my subcommittee and the staff that has helped craft this conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I submit the following for inclusion in the Record:

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HEFNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, first of all I would like to congratulate the gentleman from California (Chairman PACKARD) for his work, as well as the work of the staff on the committee, which I think is one of the staffs that is most responsive to the needs of the members on the Committee on Appropriations.

This is a good bill. We did the very best that we could with very limited funds, and we targeted it toward quality of life for our men and women in the Armed Forces. I would urge everyone to support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the conference agreement for the FY 1999 Military Construction bill.

I also want to thank the Subcommittee Chairman, Mr. PACKARD, for his hard work as well as the bipartisan spirit he has encouraged among the members of this committee.

The bill provides $8.4 billion for military construction, family housing, and the last two rounds of base closings.

Although members recognize the importance of this bill in meeting the needs of the men and women that serve us in the military, this bill is $734 million dollars below last years level. I can't say that I am happy to see funding for this important bill drop like this.

Within the allocations, though, this is a good agreement that responds to the highest priority needs of our service men and women.

Of course, I am very proud of the years of service that I have given this subcommittee. It used to be easy to forget the folks that serve us in the military, and we have changed that.

The past few years, though, the numbers keep getting lower and lower. It worries me.

Giving our men and women in the military a decent place to live and work is not just one of the keys to military readiness and retention, it is also a basic responsibility we all shoulder.

I urge all members to support the conference agreement.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, let me conclude by simply saying this is the last conference report for the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HEFNER) and we want to thank him with a round of applause.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HEFNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I will not take the 2 minutes. I simply want to, on this side of the aisle, express our congratulations to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. HEFNER) for the wonderful service he has provided this institution.

He has worked for as long as he has been here for decent working conditions and decent living conditions for our American servicemen and servicewomen, and I think this institution owes him a debt of gratitude for the work he his done on behalf of all of them.

Mr. HEFNER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, we have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XV, the yeas and nays are ordered.

So the conference report was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. McDADE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members have 5 legislative days to revise and extend their remarks and that I may include tabular and extraneous material on H.R. 4060, the matter to be considered now.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LaHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 4060, ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1999

Mr. McDADE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 4060) making appropriations for energy and water development for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

MOTION TO INSTRUCT CONFEREES OFFERED BY MR. VENTO

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion to instruct conferees.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. VENTO moves that in resolving the differences between the House and Senate, the managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the bill H.R. 4060, be instructed to disagree with the provision in Title IV of the Senate amendment, providing funding for the Denali Commission, and the provision in Title VI of the Senate amendment, the authorization for such Commission.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. VENTO) will control 30 minutes and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. McDADE) will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. VENTO).

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is an important motion that could save the American taxpayers $20 million in this fiscal year which is included in the Senate bill, unauthorized, and could save tens of millions of dollars in each of fiscal years 2000, 2001, 2002 and 2003.

The Senate provisions of the Energy and Water Development Bill include a small title, title VI, that goes under the innocuous title of Denali Commission. However, if one reads the title, it becomes clear that this Denali Commission is designed to be more than a small help for the isolated communities of Alaska. This commission is destined to become the new Alaska Department of Economic Development funded by the Federal Government and the Federal taxpayers.

This commission is granted broad authority to develop a statewide comprehensive plan for economic and infrastructure development and, as I said, is given $20 million to approve project and grant proposals in fiscal year 1999. The bill goes on to authorize such sums as may be necessary for the following 4 years.

It does not take much imagination, given the prominent role of Alaska in the Senate appropriation process, as to what is going to happen with regards to this in future years. Federal funding will be as much as the traffic will bear, fundamentally. While we would be handing over millions of dollars for economic development in Alaska, we are providing a pittance of Federal oversight or accountability.

There are no guidelines or standards as to the grants that are provided. There is no qualification. There is no matching funds. The oversight, of course, by the GAO and the Inspector General will probably prove ample if something like this were ever put in place and point out in graphic detail all the mistakes and political deal that will have been made and the misappropriation and or waste of federal dollars.

This Denali Commission is stacked and is dominated by Alaskans with a board composed of a representative from the Chamber of Commerce, the executive director of the Alaska Municipal League, the president of the University of Alaska, a representative of the governor and a single Federal representative, who would be subject to Senate confirmation, in essence a Senate veto over the one national voice.

Mr. Speaker, it is my understanding that the original intent of the legislative proposal was to help those Alaskans who lived in the bush regions, the rural parts of the State. Mr. Speaker, this is far afield of what was considered.

The bill did not have any hearings in the House or Senate. It was inserted into the Senate appropriations bill. As a member of an authorizing committee, I would point out to my colleagues this is how bad law is developed. I would hope that we would instruct our conferees not to agree to this egregious provision, that we go back to the regular order, the regular process in terms of hearings in the sunlight of open hearing and debate on this issue; to pass the authorization, if there is a justification to pass it, through the House and the Senate and then provide for an appropriate commission and funding as justified and reasonable.

I might say, too, that Alaska as a State seems to be doing quite well these days and has not been shortchanged with regards to resources of the Federal Government. In fact, it is pointed out that it is one of the leading States in terms of per capita investment by the Federal Government and has a surplus today of $25 billion due to its oil revenues, so much so that it will be making $1,400 rebates this year for each person without a sales tax in most parts of Alaska, without an income tax.

I think that the State of Alaska, while having serious problems that we need to work on, and I have worked on many of them over the years, this is not the way to go, this is not the route to go to create an economic authority to pass out grants. I urge my colleagues to strongly support my motion to instruct conferees, not to accept these provisions.

Mr. Speaker, I include the following two documents for the RECORD:

TAXPAYERS FOR COMMON SENSE,
Washington, DC, July 29, 1998.

Hon. BRUCE VENTO,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE VENTO: Taxpayers for Common Sense is pleased to support your motion to instruct House conferees to oppose authorization and funding for the Denali Commission (Title VI) in the FY99 Energy and Water Appropriations bill. We oppose Title VI for the following reasons:

Process: A big new commission doesn't belong in a spending bill. Even if such a commission were a nice idea (Taxpayers for Common Sense doesn't think it is), it is totally outrageous that the five pages of authorization language creating this commission are stuck into an appropriations bill.

Cost: No ceiling. The language authorizes "such sums as may be necessary" for the years 2000 through 2003. If this commission is enacted, no doubt there will be huge pressure to continue it after 2003. In short, Congress would be establishing an open-ended program with no authorization ceiling.

Substance: No controls and poorly drafted. Many other federal public works programs contain safeguards to make sure the money goes to good use. But Title VI requires no local cost sharing (as is required for Corps of Engineers water projects), no targeting of benefits to communities of need, and no criteria for judging priorities. There is nothing in Title VI to prevent money from simply being spread around to politically influential localities for low-priority projects and people who don't need the benefits.

Role: Should federal taxpayers pay for this? The commission would use federal taxpayers' money to accomplish what are clearly state projects addressing unique state concerns. Congress should be eliminating programs like this, not creating more of them.

Waste: Half-baked commission unlikely to achieve goals. With all of these failings, the commission is unlikely to achieve its goals and may very well end up wasting taxpayer money.

When the House considers the motion to go to conference on the FY99 Energy and Water Appropriations bill, Taxpayers for Common Sense urges all Representatives to vote for your motion to instruct on this issue. Please call me at (202) 546-8500 x102 if you have questions.

Sincerely,

RALPH DEGENNARO,
Executive Director

Permanent Fund; Record Dividend on Our Riches

The Alaska Permanent Fund provided further proof of its status as the state's most powerful economic engine on Thursday with word that its value grew to about $25 billion as of June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

That's a staggering number. But a much smaller number is the one that strikes home for most Alaskans—the estimated $1,460 that each Alaskan will receive this fall for doing no more than living here.

That number is a guess, but Alaska Permanent Fund Corp. spokesman Jim Kelly does promise a record check, meaning something bigger than the $1,296 sent to each Alaskan in 1997.

Call it $1,400. That means an Alaska family of four will receive $5,600 this fall. That's money to use for everything from appliances to cars to college savings to knocking down debt. No other state in the union gives its people such a direct, no-strings share of its revenue. What other state has the means?

No state income tax. In Anchorage, no sales tax. A yearly check that's grown to four figures. A $25 billion fund that provides more revenue to the state than oil does. Financial-crisis? Not even with oil at $12 a barrel. Other states would love this crisis.

Alaska has its share of problems and challenges, from Third World sanitary conditions in some villages and troubled fisheries to battles over subsistence rights and religious convictions. But we're not broke. We're rich.

That's a problem, too. We must decide what to do as a state with the Permanent Fund's income. We must decide what to do as families and individuals with our dividends.

May we be cursed with such difficulties for a long time to come.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MCDADE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I want to point out to my colleagues, they do not need to be told that the hour is late. I think we are trying to get as much as we can done before we break. This bill is a pending bill which passed this body, Mr. Speaker, by a vote of 404–4. All we are saying to our colleagues is do not fetter us as we go to conference. Give us the opportunity to continue to represent the House that will merit a vote like this as we come back.

Mr. Speaker, I hope this will be roundly defeated.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. Miller), the ranking member of the Committee on Resources.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding time. I rise in support of his motion to instruct conferees to maintain the House position that he has offered.

The House has passed a clean energy and water bill without controversy over antienvironmental legislative riders which have bogged down Interior and other appropriations bills. The Vento motion to instruct would put the House on record in opposition to a $20 million Alaska grant program which has been included as a rider in the Senate bill.

It is my understanding that the original intent of authorizing these funds was for the purpose of improving sanitation, drinking water and other basic needs of remote native villages in Alaska. Let me clearly state that I recognize the serious problems in rural Alaska and support responsible congressional efforts to address them.

But the Senate rider, as presently drafted, is not limited to using Federal funds to meet priority needs of native Alaskans. Instead, the Senate would empower a five-person commission to develop a statewide, comprehensive plan for economic and infrastructure development. No native Alaskan nor rural Alaskan is directly appointed to the commission. Rather, the Chamber of Commerce, the Alaskan Municipal League, the university president, all of which are urban dominated, are given a vote in distributing $20 million in federally funded grants with no strings attached.

Let us not allow ourselves to be fooled here. This is a blank check to use Federal funds to promote road building, resource extraction and other favorite causes of development proponents in Alaska. This is a recipe for federally funded antienvironmental mischief.

The Senate would spend $20 million in Federal funds for Alaska development grants in 1999 and authorizes unlimited amounts for the next 4 years. So the next 4 years we would see a repeated habit of the Senate adding money for this purpose as the appropriations bills come from the Senate.

As the gentleman who has offered this motion points out, we have not been stingy with Alaska. In 1996, they insisted upon $110 million in emergency economic disaster relief in southeast Alaska communities impacted by the closure of two pulp mills because of poor markets. Some of that money was used to hire lobbyists to come down here and ask for more money. I think what we have seen here, that is $110 million, now there is $20 million for this study. Then there is open-ended appropriations for the next 4 years. I do not think that the taxpayers of this country can afford to do business this way. I do not think that we can ask for another $20 million. If this was important, then why did they not use some of the $110 million we gave them 2 years ago to do economic and infrastructure studies?

I would also point out very clearly, as the gentleman who offered this motion has pointed out, and, that is, Alaska has a permanent fund of $23 billion. That $23 billion fund is supposed to be there in perpetuity for the future of Alaska and its residents. I have no problem with that. But maybe Alaska and its residents concerned about their economic development in the future could find it in their heart to spend $20 million of their $23 billion for the purposes of ensuring the kind of infrastructure and development that they think they need to go into the future.

This is a permanent fund that is currently spinning off $1,300 for every man, woman and child who is a resident of the State of Alaska. That is fine. That is what they decided to do with the fund. But because they decided to have the fund make those expenditures does not mean that the Federal Government and all of the rest of the taxpayers of this country need to come in and fill behind those decisions with $20 million in a study that is very loosely constructed and without limitations as to the future appropriations for it. I think it is fair to ask the State legislature to step up to the plate and contribute to addressing the problems of rural Alaska, but the Senate rider does not even require matching funds from the State of Alaska.

In the State of California, we have huge infrastructure problems, we have huge problems trying to meet our water needs, our transportation needs, our airport needs, all the things that so many of us in other States experience. But we are not getting $20 million from the Federal Government to study that and we are not getting 4 years of unlimited appropriations to study that in the future.

Clearly, there ought to be some effort to try to focus this study on the problems of rural Alaska. There ought to be some effort to have the State match the money for this study.

There are many, many studies and many, many projects in this bill that are worthwhile. But local communities are matching those, States are matching those, private organizations are matching that. This one is simply a free gift of $20 million to the State of Alaska. I would urge Members to support the Vento motion.

Mr. MCDADE. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Alaska (Mr. Young), the chairman of the Committee on Resources.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the motion to instruct conferees.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. Hinchey).

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Speaker, I believe that if a comprehensive infrastructure bill was brought to the full floor of this Congress, there would be many people who would support it. I think it is quite clear that the infrastructure needs of the country are quite severe and that we ought to have a comprehensive approach to these infrastructure needs. But this is a particular appropriation for one particular

State, $20 million in one fiscal year and an open-ended circumstance for the next several years, probably as much as $100 million over a 5-year period for the State of Alaska.

As has been pointed out, this Congress has not been ungenerous to the State of Alaska. Alaska is second only to the State of Mississippi in terms of Federal per capita aid.

In addition to that, the State has its own $42 billion fund from oil royalties. That fund will be distributed to every man, woman and child in the State this year as it was last year. Last year, every person in the State received about $1,300. That is $5,200 for a family of four.

It is also true that Alaska has not been aggressive in taxing itself. This is a State without a State income tax, and much of the State does not have a State sales tax. So it is hard to imagine why the Congress would be appropriating this particular money for this one State for this one particular situation, particularly when the expenditure is so open-ended.

In other words, this money could be spent for virtually anything. It could be spent to build roads anywhere. It could be spent to engage in a whole host of activities which would be contrary to sound environmental not less economic policy.

With all that in mind, Mr. Speaker, I think that it is prudent for us to join with those who have called this a taxpayer boondoggle and support the Vento motion.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. McDADE. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the motion to instruct.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the motion to instruct offered by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. Vento).

The motion to instruct was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. McDADE. Mr. Speaker, may I explain to my colleagues that for the first time in 36 years, I am about to move a call of the House, and I only do so because the leadership on both sides is trying to get a rule up, so, therefore, Mr. Speaker, I move reluctantly a call of the House.

A call of the House was ordered.

The call was taken by electronic device, and the following Members responded to their names:

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 4060, ENERGY AND WATER DEVELOPMENT APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1999

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chair appoints the following conferees on H.R. 4060: Messrs. McDade, Rogers, Knollenberg, Frelinghuysen, Parker, Callahan, Dickey, Livingston, Fazio of California, Visclosky, Edwards, Pastor and Obey.

There was no objection.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

(Mr. ARMEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask for this time for the purpose of reporting on the schedule.

Mr. Speaker, let me begin by saying I appreciate all the Members for their patience. Working this time of the year in appropriations season is always difficult, we know. We are about to begin consideration of a rule for the transportation appropriations bill.

We have a little bit of difficulty with that bill, but the principals who are involved in it are, in fact, actively, and I think effectively, working towards a solution of that. So I would suggest that we could move forward with the rule and then by the time we have the vote on the rule I am sure we will be ready to begin our work and complete our work on transportation.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ARMEY. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleague for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, if I might say to the majority leader, most folks have been working on both sides of the aisle. We are going on probably the 14th hour of a workday today. In addition to that, we have had an extraordinary week, an emotional and stressful week, as we all know. Folks have been working long hours and long shifts, including the Capitol Police, as the gentleman is fully aware and appreciates.

I do not know what we gain by going into at 10:30 in the evening a contentious rule that has not been worked out yet, and even if it is worked out I am not sure that we are in a position to even proceed on the appropriation bill itself.

I am cognizant of the pressures that the majority has with respect to finishing these appropriation bills, and I can appreciate that having once been in the majority, but I think I would say to my friend, the gentleman from Texas, that in consultation with many of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, I think they have expressed a desire to me anyway that the prudent thing today and this evening would be to leave and come back and start fresh after the funeral in the morning.

I would just offer that to my friend, the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. ARMEY. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentleman for suggesting that. I appreciate the gentleman for his concern, not only for the Members but for the staff, in particular our Capitol Police who are still standing their stations around the Capitol. It is because we, as a group, have clearly indicated our desire, rightly so, to spend the time tomorrow and then again on Friday in attendance to these very important funerals, that we feel the compulsion to complete the work as best we can this week and to try to do so in maximum consideration of all people.

I just would like to assure the gentleman from Michigan that all of these matters are of concern to me and I am working the best I can.

We are ready now, though, to begin to move forward on the rule; and given the progress that I am confident I am seeing with the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER) and others, I think we can be confident we can complete our work tonight and all get some rest.

I thank the gentleman.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING SPECIAL INVESTIGATIVE AUTHORITY FOR THE COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION AND THE WORKFORCE

Mr. DREIER, from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 105–658) on the resolution (H. Res. 507) providing special investigative authority for the Committee on Education and the Workforce, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 3262

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to remove my name as cosponsor of H.R. 3262.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 4328, DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1999

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 510 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 510

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 1(b) of rule XXIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 4328) making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. Points of order against consideration of the bill for failure to comply with clause 7 of rule XXI or section 401(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. The amendments printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution shall be considered as adopted in the House and in the Committee of the Whole. Points of order against provisions in the bill, as amended, for failure to comply with clause 2 or 6 of rule XXI are waived except as follows: beginning with ", of which", on page 11, line 19, through "Fund" on line 20; page 16, lines 20 through 24; beginning with ": Provided" on page 18, line 2, through "motor carriers" on line 5; and page 54, lines 4 through 8. Where points of order are waived against part of a paragraph, points of order against a provision in another part of such paragraph may be made only against such provision and not against the entire paragraph. During consideration of the bill for further amendment, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose in clause 6 of rule XXIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. The chairman of the Committee of the Whole may: (1) postpone until a time during further consideration in the Committee of the Whole a request for a recorded vote on any amendment; and (2) reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on any postponed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions shall be 15 minutes. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill, as amended, to the House with such further amendments as may have been adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Dallas, Texas (Mr. FROST), my friend, and pending that I yield myself such time as I may consume. Mr. Speaker, all time that I will be yielding will be for debate purposes only.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and to include extraneous material in the RECORD on the resolution now being considered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, this rule makes in order H.R. 4328, the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Bill for fiscal year 1999 under an open rule containing a number of noncontroversial waivers against points of order. The rule also self-executes two noncontroversial changes in the bill, of which one is technical in nature.

I would like to commend the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), chairman of the Subcommittee on Transportation, as well as the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. LIVINGSTON), chairman of the full committee, and the other members of the committee for the tremendous job that they did in producing a bill that adequately funds our Nation's priorities within the constraints imposed by both the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 and the Transportation Equity Act of 1998.

Although 70 percent of the bill consists of spending mandated by the T.E.A. 21, resulting in a substantial increase in funding for highway and transit programs, the subcommittee was also able to increase funding for drug interdiction efforts and transportation safety programs.

A total of $406 million is provided for Coast Guard counter-drug activities, an increase of $73.8 million over the President's request. Funding to reduce fatalities on the Nation's roadways is increased by more than 8 percent.

Despite this balanced effort, I find it hard to believe that the administration, which signed the T.E.A. 21 bill into law, could be critical of the funding levels that are in this appropriations bill. Unfortunately, this seems to be par for the course for an administration that proposes to pay for more government spending with $9 billion in new taxes and user fees that are political nonstarters.

Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Appropriations produced a fair and balanced bill, and the Committee on Rules was equal to the task of reporting this rule. Therefore, I urge adoption of both the rule and the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, it is my intention to make a fairly brief opening statement and then to yield back all of our time in an effort to try and move this along.

Mr. Speaker, while I rise in support of this rule and this bill making appropriations for the Department of Transportation for fiscal year 1999, I am concerned that a point of order may lie against an amendment which seeks to limit expenditures of funds for a highway project funded in this bill. Mr. Speaker, should this point of order be pursued and ultimately upheld, the House will set a terrible precedent which may have ramifications far beyond this transportation appropriations.

The matter is now being negotiated, but I do want to express my concern that a major change in the rules that govern this House was included in T-21 and was never even considered by the Committee on Rules. That being said, Mr. Speaker, while the funding level of this appropriations bill is slightly below the levels requested by the President in several areas, overall, the Committee on Appropriations did a good job of providing adequate funding for most of the programs and services in the bill.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I urge adoption of the rule, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the resolution.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONTINUATION OF NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAQ—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 105-291)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed.

To the Congress of the United States:

Section 202(d) of the National Emergencies Act (50 U.S.C. 1622(d)) provides for the automatic termination of a national emergency unless, prior to the anniversary date of its declaration, the President publishes in the Federal Register and transmits to the Congress a notice stating that the emergency is to continue in effect beyond the anniversary date. In accordance with this provision, I have sent the enclosed notice, stating that the Iraqi emergency is to continue in effect beyond August 2, 1998, to the Federal Register for publication.

The crisis between the United States and Iraq that led to the declaration on August 2, 1990, of a national emergency has not been resolved. The Government of Iraq continues to engage in activities inimical to stability in the Middle East and hostile to United States interests in the region. Such Iraqi actions pose a continuing unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and vital foreign policy interests of the United States. For these reasons, I have determined that it is necessary to maintain in force the broad authorities necessary to apply economic pressure on the Government of Iraq.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CORPORATION OF PUBLIC BROADCASTING AND INVENTORY OF FEDERAL FUNDS DISTRIBUTED TO PUBLIC TELECOMMUNICATIONS ENTITIES FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on Commerce:

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, as amended (47 U.S.C. 396(i)), I transmit herewith the Annual Report of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) for Fiscal Year 1997 and the Inventory of the Federal Funds Distributed to Public Telecommunications Entities by Federal Departments and Agencies: Fiscal Year 1997.

Thirty years following the establishment of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the Congress can take great pride in its creation. During these 30 years, the American public has been educated, inspired, and enriched by the programs and services made possible by this investment.

The need for and the accomplishments of this national network of knowledge have never been more apparent, and as the attached 1997 annual CPB report indicates, by "Going Digital," public broadcasting will have an ever greater capacity for fulfilling its mission.

REPORT ON PROLIFERATION OF WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 105-293)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with the accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

On November 14, 1994, in light of the danger of the proliferation of nuclear, biological, and chemical weapons (weapons of mass destruction) and of the means of delivering such weapons, using my authority under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.), I declared a national emergency and issued Executive Order 12938. Because the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction continues to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States, I have renewed the national emergency declared in Executive Order 12938 annually, most recently on November 14, 1997. Pursuant to section 204(b) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (50 U.S.C. 1703(b)), I hereby report to the Congress that I have exercised my statutory authority to issue an Executive order to amend Executive Order 12938 in order to more effectively respond to the worldwide threat of weapons of mass destruction proliferation activities.

The amendment of section 4 of Executive Order 12938 strengthens the original Executive order in several significant ways.

First, the amendment broadens the type of proliferation activity that is subject to potential penalties. Executive Order 12938 covers contributions to the efforts of any foreign country, project, or entity to use, acquire, design, produce, or stockpile chemical or biological weapons (CBW). This amendment adds potential penalties for contributions to foreign programs for nuclear weapons and missiles capable of delivering weapons of mass destruction. For example, the new amendment authorizes the imposition of measures against foreign entities that materially assist Iran's missile program.

Second, the amendment lowers the requirements for imposing penalties. Executive Order 12938 required a finding that a foreign person "knowingly and materially" contributed to a foreign CBW program. The amendment removes the "knowing" requirement as a basis for determining potential penalties. Therefore, the Secretary of State need only determine that the foreign person made a "material" contribution to a weapons of mass destruction or missile program to apply the specified sanctions. At the same time, the Secretary of State will have discretion regarding the scope of sanctions so that a truly unwitting party will not be unfairly punished.

Third, the amendment expands the original Executive order to include "attempts" to contribute to foreign proliferation activities, as well as actual contributions. This will allow imposition of penalties even in cases where foreign persons make an unsuccessful effort to contribute to weapons of mass destruction and missile programs or where authorities block a transaction before it is consummated.

Fourth, the amendment expressly expands the range of potential penalties to include the prohibition of United States Government assistance to the foreign person, as well as United States Government procurement and imports into the United States, which were specified by the original Executive order. Moreover, section 4(b) broadens the scope of the United States Government procurement limitations to include a bar on the procurement of technology, as well as goods or services from any foreign person described in section 4(a). Section 4(d) broadens the scope of import limitations to include a bar on imports of any technology or services produced or provided by any foreign person described in section 4(a).

Finally, this amendment gives the United States Government greater flexibility and discretion in deciding how and to what extent to impose penalties against foreign persons that assist proliferation programs. This provision authorizes the Secretary of State, who will act in consultation with the heads of other interested agencies, to determine the extent to which these measures should be imposed against entities contributing to foreign weapons of mass destruction or missile programs. The Secretary of State will act to further the national security and foreign policy interests of the United States, including principally our nonproliferation objectives. Prior to imposing measures pursuant to this provision, the Secretary of State will take into account the likely effectiveness of such measures in furthering the interests of the United States and the costs and benefits of such measures. This approach provides the necessary flexibility to tailor our responses to specific situations.

I have authorized these actions in view of the danger posed to the national security and foreign policy of the United States by the continuing proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery. I am enclosing a copy of the Executive order that I have issued exercising these authorities.

William J. Clinton.

RECOGNIZING THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE INTEGRATION OF THE ARMED FORCES

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on National Security be discharged from further consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 294) recognizing the 50th Anniversary of the integration of the Armed Forces, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LaHood). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I will not object, but I would ask the gentleman from Indiana to explain the concurrent resolution.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SKELTON. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to mark an important historical event for the Armed Forces, and indeed, for our Nation. On July 26, 1948, just over 50 years ago, President Truman signed Executive Order 9981 ordering the racial integration of the Armed Forces.

When we think about that in the context of the way things are done today, unlike this election year of 1948, it was a presidential election year, and President Truman was running for his first full term of office. Undeterred by those who today would have counseled him to wait until after the election to make such a controversial decision at that time for the integration of the Armed Forces, he acted in what I believe to be a responsible manner, and he did the right thing.

Some may think that his choice was easy, but I believe that the choice at the time was not easy, and it was a courageous decision. It is not easy to make a decision that may profoundly affect the military readiness over the objections of the military leaders of that day. Yet, Harry Truman did just that. Today we acknowledge the overwhelming correctness of that decision.

While President Truman took the first step, our military executed its orders with discipline and purpose. Sure there have been missteps, and yes, there are still areas that could be improved. Most important, however, is that many of America's fine young men and women were finally able to take their rightful place in the Armed Forces, and it helped transform our society.

As we all know, thousands of young African Americans, both men and women, have joined the Armed Forces. They have not only joined but have succeeded in staying in the military, and in higher numbers than their majority counterparts, and are rising to the highest ranks in the military. In fact, today African Americans alone make up 20 percent of the Armed Forces.

The many extraordinary examples of success obviously are far too numerous to cover adequately in these short remarks, but they include General Colin Powell; the Army four-star General Johnny Wilson; the Navy's first of many black admirals, Rear Admiral Samuel Gravely, Junior; and yes, here recently we honored, tragically, the deceased hero, the Capitol police officer, J.J. Chestnut, who served 20 years in the Air Force and was a Vietnam veteran.

I believe that Officer Chestnut and many others are individuals who have served with honor and went on and, in turn, left the service and made great contributions to their communities and this country.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, under my reservation of objection, first I wish to compliment the gentlewoman from California (Ms. Maxine Waters) for her foresight in offering this resolution.

I think it is a very, very appropriate one, particularly realizing that I am from Missouri, and that this past weekend, Mr. Speaker, I had the honor of speaking at the commissioning of the U.S.S. Harry S. Truman in Norfolk, Virginia. So I think it is entirely appropriate that I commemorate 50 years of racial integration in the armed services.

It was President Harry Truman, a fellow Missourian, who took the courageous and historic action in signing Executive Order 9981. President Truman had seen many examples of sacrifice by soldiers and airmen which proved that segregation was incompatible with the values of our Nation: the Tuskegee airmen, who never lost a bomber they accompanied, showed the high quality of black pilots; the heroism of Dory Miller, who manned a machine gun, in violation of the Navy's then segregationist policies, to defend Pearl Harbor against the Japanese invasion. For his brave actions, he was awarded a Navy cross for two confirmed kills on Japanese aircraft.

While integration of our military has not been without difficulty, this executive order was a giant step forward in the quality of our force. Take a good look at it today. It works, and it works well.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

Ms. McKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I, too, would like to join my colleagues in commending what I call America's Congresswoman, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. MAXINE WATERS), for shepherding this legislation through the process onto the floor of the House tonight.

As this body recognizes the 50th anniversary of the integration of the Armed Forces, we must remember the historic role that President Truman's executive order played, not only in opening the military to African Americans, but in advancing the March for civil rights for all outside the military. His signature paved the way for today's Army.

Today 27 percent of the Army is black. These proud men and women comprise 12 percent of the officers and 30 percent of the enlisted soldiers. Eight percent of all generals are black. Prior to Truman's executive order, successful African American soldiers were recognized as exceptional, as distinct.

In 1939, the government established a segregated program at the Tuskegee Institute to train blacks as civilian pilots. These young men became known as the Tuskegee Airmen, and became successful World War II pilots. These brave and accomplished flyers never lost a bomber that they accompanied.

Truman's executive order provided African Americans with the opportunity to be more than just the exception. They were the backbone of our enlisted soldiers, and they are our leaders. They are the heroes, like the Tuskegee Airmen, and they are role models for American society, both black and white.

General Colin Powell in the U.S. Army, Lieutenant General Benjamin O. Davis in the U.S. Air Force, and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs, Togo West, in today's society our young people cannot have too many honorable role models to help instill in them discipline, confidence, and self-respect.

As we honor the integration of the military, we must not forget the steps it took to get us here. The road has not been easy, and we still have a long way to go. The military must still guard against extremists and racist attacks within its ranks, like the tragic incident at Fort Bragg where two black civilians were gunned down by Lieutenant Burmeister.

We must be wary of differential treatments for blacks and whites in legal proceedings. While some white officers are allowed to retire quietly, other black enlisted personnel are sent to courts-martial.

Let me tell Members about a recent case that has come to my attention. This case is of Sgt. Aidens. Sgt. Aidens became the target of an investigation after he refused to lie that he knew about the misconduct of another black serviceman.

Coincidentally, Sgt. Aidens just last night was found to be guilty of using crack cocaine. The evidence used to find him guilty was a pubic hair sample taken by army investigators. Most of America is not aware of this form of drug testing because it is not proven, it is controversial, and gives false positives for African Americans. However, pubic hair testing has been used in military courts as evidence when accompanied with an urinalysis. Yet, in Sgt. Aiden's case, the Army did not give him a urinalysis. If Sgt. Aidens' verdict is upheld, I am very concerned for every African American in our Armed Forces.

A recent article by Charles Moskos lays out some lessons that we can learn on race in the Army. He suggests, one, we focus on black opportunity channels; two, be ruthless against discrimination; three, affirmative action must be linked to standards; four, a level playing field is not enough. We need to recognize the disadvantages that minorities have and compensate those with additional help.

I hope when we recognize the next 50 years of integration of our Armed Forces, that we look at each shortcoming and racist act not only as a battle lost, but a serious chipping away at the war of what it means to be an American and what America means to the world.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 294

Whereas on July 26, 1948, President Truman issued Executive Order 9981 ordering the integration of the Armed Forces;

Whereas the President stated in the executive order that it was "essential that there be maintained in the armed services of the United States the highest standards of democracy, with equality of treatment and opportunity for all those who serve in our country's defense";

Whereas in the executive order the President declared that "there shall be equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the armed services without regard to race, color, religion or national origin";

Whereas, soon after the President issued the executive order, United States forces in Korea were integrated, leading the way to a fully integrated army;

Whereas the Armed Forces have used the implementation and enforcement of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 as additional tools to eliminate discrimination among their military and civilian personnel;

Whereas in 1998 minorities serve in senior leadership positions throughout the Armed Forces, as officers, as senior non-commissioned officers, and as civilian leaders;

Whereas the Armed Forces have demonstrated a continuing commitment to ensuring the equality of treatment and opportunity for all military and civilian personnel of the Armed Forces; and

Whereas the efforts of the Armed Forces to ensure the equality of treatment and opportunity for their personnel have contributed significantly to the advancement of equality of treatment and opportunity for all Americans: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That the Congress—

(1) commends the Armed Forces for their efforts, leadership, and success in providing equality of treatment and opportunity for their military and civilian personnel without regard to race, color, religion, or national origin; and

(2) recognizes the Department of Defense's celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the integration of the Armed Forces.

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) PROCESS.—Except as provided in subsection (b), and consistent with paragraphs (2), (3), and (4), in order for a State to receive an allotment under section 127 or 132, the Governor of the State shall designate local workforce investment areas within the State—

(i) through consultation with the State board; and

(ii) after consultation with chief elected officials and after consideration of comments received through the public comment process as described in section 112(b)(9).

(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In making the designation of local areas, the Governor shall take into consideration the following:

(i) Geographic areas served by local educational agencies and intermediate educational agencies.

(ii) Geographic areas served by postsecondary educational institutions and area vocational education schools.

(iii) The extent to which such local areas are consistent with labor market areas.

(iv) The distance that individuals will need to travel to receive services provided in such local areas.

(v) The resources of such local areas that are available to effectively administer the activities carried out under this subtitle.

(2) AUTOMATIC DESIGNATION.—The Governor shall approve any request for designation as a local area—

(A) from any unit of general local government with a population of 500,000 or more;

(B) of the area served by a rural concentrated employment program grant recipient of demonstrated effectiveness that served as a service delivery area or substate area under the Job Training Partnership Act, if the grant recipient has submitted the request; and

(C) of an area that served as a service delivery area under section 101(a)(4)(A)(ii) of the Job Training Partnership Act (as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act) in a State that has a population of not more than 1,100,000 and a population density greater than 900 persons per square mile.

(3) TEMPORARY AND SUBSEQUENT DESIGNATION.—

(A) CRITERIA.—Notwithstanding paragraph (2)(A), the Governor shall approve any request, made not later than the date of submission of the initial State plan under this subtitle, for temporary designation as a local area from any unit of general local government (including a combination of such units) with a population of 200,000 or more that was a service delivery area under the Job Training Partnership Act on the day before the date of enactment of this Act if the Governor determines that the area—

(i) performed successfully, in each of the last 2 years prior to the request for which data are available, in the delivery of services to participants under part A of title II and title III of the Job Training Partnership Act (as in effect on such day); and

(ii) has sustained the fiscal integrity of the funds used by the area to carry out activities under such part and title.

(B) DURATION AND SUBSEQUENT DESIGNATION.—A temporary designation under this paragraph shall be for a period of not more than 2 years, after which the designation shall be extended until the end of the period covered by the State plan if the Governor determines that, during the temporary designation period, the area substantially met (as defined by the State board) the local performance measures for the local area and sustained the fiscal integrity of the funds used by the area to carry out activities under this subtitle.

(C) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary shall provide the States with technical assistance in making the determinations required by this paragraph. The Secretary shall not issue regulations governing determinations to be made under this paragraph.

(D) PERFORMED SUCCESSFULLY.—In this paragraph, the term "performed successfully" means that the area involved met or exceeded the performance standards for activities administered in the area that—

(i) are established by the Secretary for each year and modified by the adjustment methodology of the State (used to account for differences in economic conditions, participant characteristics, and combination of services provided from the combination assumed for purposes of the established standards of the Secretary); and

(4) DESIGNATION ON RECOMMENDATION OF STATE BOARD.—The Governor may approve a request from any unit of general local government (including a combination of such units) for designation (including temporary designation) as a local area if the State board determines, taking into account the factors described in clauses (i) through (v) of paragraph (1)(B), and recommends to the Governor, that such area should be so designated.

(5) APPEALS.—A unit of general local government (including a combination of such units) or grant recipient that requests but is not granted designation of an area as a local area under paragraph (2) or (3) may submit an appeal to the State board under an appeal process established in the State plan. If the appeal does not result in such a designation, the Secretary, after receiving a request for review from the unit or grant recipient and on determining that the unit or grant recipient was not accorded procedural rights under the appeal process established in the State plan or that the area meets the requirements of paragraph (2) or (3), as appropriate, may require that the area be designated as a local area under such paragraph.

(b) SMALL STATES.—The Governor of any State that was a single State service delivery area under the Job Training Partnership Act as of July 1, 1998, may designate the State as a single State local area for the purposes of this title. (3) COORDINATION OF SERVICES.—The State may require the local boards for a designated region to coordinate the provision of workforce investment activities authorized under this subtitle, including the provision of transportation and other supportive services, so that services provided through the activities may be provided across the boundaries of local areas within the designated region.

(4) INTERSTATE REGIONS.—Two or more States that contain an interstate region that is a labor market area, economic development region, or other appropriate contiguous subarea of the States may designate the area as a designated region for purposes of this subsection, and jointly exercise the State functions described in paragraphs (1) through (3).

"SEC. 8. (a)(1) For purposes of section 110, the allotment percentage for any State shall be 100 per centum less that percentage which bears the same ratio to 50 per centum as the per capita income of such State bears to the per capita income of the United States, except that—

"(A) the allotment percentage shall in no case be more than 75 per centum or less than 33⅓ per centum; and

"(B) the allotment percentage for the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands shall be 75 per centum.

"TRANSFER OF FUNDS

"SEC. 16. (a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, no funds appropriated under this Act for any program or activity may be used for any purpose other than that for which the funds were specifically authorized.

"(b) No more than 1 percent of funds appropriated for discretionary grants, contracts, or cooperative agreements authorized by this Act may be used for the purpose of providing non-Federal panels of experts to review applications for such grants, contracts, or cooperative agreements.

"STATE ADMINISTRATION

"SEC. 17. The application of any State rule or policy relating to the administration or operation of programs funded by this Act (including any rule or policy based on State interpretation of any Federal law, regulation, or guideline) shall be identified as a State imposed requirement.

"REVIEW OF APPLICATIONS

"SEC. 18. Applications for grants in excess of $100,000 in the aggregate authorized to be funded under this Act, other than grants primarily for the purpose of conducting dissemination or conferences, shall be reviewed by panels of experts which shall include a majority of non-Federal members. Non-Federal members may be provided travel, per diem, and consultant fees not to exceed the daily equivalent of the rate of pay for level 4 of the Senior Executive Service Schedule under section 5382 of title 5, United States Code.

"SEC. 19. CARRYOVER.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), and notwithstanding any other provision of law—

"(1) any funds appropriated for a fiscal year to carry out any grant program under part B of title I, section 509 (except as provided in section 509(b)), part B of title VI, part B or C of chapter 1 of title VII, or chapter 2 of title VII (except as provided in section 752(b)), including any funds reallotted under any such grant program, that are not obligated and expended by recipients prior to the beginning of the succeeding fiscal year; or

"(2) any amounts of program income, including reimbursement payments under the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 301 et seq.), received by recipients under any grant program specified in paragraph (1) that are not obligated and expended by recipients prior to the beginning of the fiscal year succeeding the fiscal year in which such amounts were received, shall remain available for obligation and expenditure by such recipients during such succeeding fiscal year.

"(b) NON-FEDERAL SHARE.—Such funds shall remain available for obligation and expenditure by a recipient as provided in subsection (a) only to the extent that the recipient complied with any Federal share requirements applicable to the program for the fiscal year for which the funds were appropriated.

"SEC. 20. CLIENT ASSISTANCE INFORMATION.

"All programs, including community rehabilitation programs, and projects, that provide services to individuals with disabilities under this Act shall advise such individuals who are applicants for or recipients of the services, or the applicants' representatives or individuals' representatives, of the availability and purposes of the client assistance program under section 112, including information on means of seeking assistance under such program.

"SEC. 21. TRADITIONALLY UNDERSERVED POPULATIONS.

"(a) FINDINGS.—With respect to the programs authorized in titles II through VII, the Congress finds as follows:

"(1) RACIAL PROFILE.—The racial profile of America is rapidly changing. While the rate of increase for white Americans is 3.2 percent, the rate of increase for racial and ethnic minorities is much higher: 38.6 percent for Latinos, 14.6 percent for African-Americans, and 40.1 percent for Asian-Americans and other ethnic groups. By the year 2000, the Nation will have 260,000,000 people, one of every three of whom will be either African-American, Latino, or Asian-American.

"(2) RATE OF DISABILITY.—Ethnic and racial minorities tend to have disabling conditions at a disproportionately high rate. The rate of work-related disability for American Indians is about one and one-half times that of the general population. African-Americans are also one and one-half times more likely to be disabled than whites and twice as likely to be significantly disabled.

"(3) INEQUITABLE TREATMENT.—Patterns of inequitable treatment of minorities have been documented in all major junctures of the vocational rehabilitation process. As compared to white Americans, a larger percentage of African-American applicants to the vocational rehabilitation system is denied acceptance. Of applicants accepted for service, a larger percentage of African-American cases is closed without being rehabilitated. Minorities are provided less training than their white counterparts. Consistently, less money is spent on minorities than on their white counterparts.

"(4) RECRUITMENT.—Recruitment efforts within vocational rehabilitation at the level of preservice training, continuing education, and in-service training must focus on bringing larger numbers of minorities into the profession in order to provide appropriate practitioner knowledge, role models, and sufficient manpower to address the clearly changing demography of vocational rehabilitation.

"(b) OUTREACH TO MINORITIES.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—For each fiscal year, the Commissioner and the Director of the National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research (referred to in this subsection as the 'Director') shall reserve 1 percent of the funds appropriated for the fiscal year for programs authorized under titles II, III, VI, and VII to carry out this subsection. The Commissioner and the Director shall use the reserved funds to carry out 1 or more of the activities described in paragraph (2) through a grant, contract, or cooperative agreement.

"(2) ACTIVITIES.—The activities carried out by the Commissioner and the Director shall include 1 or more of the following:

"(A) Making awards to minority entities and Indian tribes to carry out activities under the programs authorized under titles II, III, VI, and VII.

"(B) Making awards to minority entities and Indian tribes to conduct research, training, technical assistance, or a related activity, to improve services provided under this Act, especially services provided to individuals from minority backgrounds.

"(C) Making awards to entities described in paragraph (3) to provide outreach and technical assistance to minority entities and Indian tribes to promote their participation in activities funded under this Act, including assistance to enhance their capacity to carry out such activities.

"(3) ELIGIBILITY.—To be eligible to receive an award under paragraph (2)(C), an entity shall be a State or a public or private nonprofit agency or organization, such as an institution of higher education or an Indian tribe.

"(4) REPORT.—In each fiscal year, the Commissioner and the Director shall prepare and submit to Congress a report that describes the activities funded under this subsection for the preceding fiscal year.

"(5) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection:

"(A) HISTORICALLY BLACK COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY.—The term 'historically Black college or university' means a part B institution, as defined in section 322(2) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1061(2)).

"(B) MINORITY ENTITY.—The term 'minority entity' means an entity that is a historically Black college or university, a Hispanic-serving institution of higher education, an American Indian tribal college or university, or another institution of higher education whose minority student enrollment is at least 50 percent.

"(c) DEMONSTRATION.—In awarding grants, or entering into contracts or cooperative agreements under titles I, II, III, VI, and VII, and section 509, the Commissioner and the Director, in appropriate cases, shall require applicants to demonstrate how the applicants will address, in whole or in part, the needs of individuals with disabilities from minority backgrounds.".

SEC. 404. VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES.

Title I of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (29 U.S.C. 720 et seq.) is amended to read as follows:

"TITLE I—VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES

"PART A—GENERAL PROVISIONS

"SEC. 100. DECLARATION OF POLICY; AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

"(a) FINDINGS; PURPOSE; POLICY.—

"(1) Findings.—Congress finds that—

"(A) work—

"(i) is a valued activity, both for individuals and society; and

"(ii) fulfills the need of an individual to be productive, promotes independence, enhances self-esteem, and allows for participation in the mainstream of life in the United States;

"(B) as a group, individuals with disabilities experience staggering levels of unemployment and poverty;

"(C) individuals with disabilities, including individuals with the most significant disabilities, have demonstrated their ability to achieve gainful employment in integrated settings if appropriate services and supports are provided;

"(D) reasons for significant numbers of individuals with disabilities not working, or working at levels not commensurate with their abilities and capabilities, include—

"(i) discrimination;

"(ii) lack of accessible and available transportation;

"(iii) fear of losing health coverage under the medicare and medicaid programs carried out under titles XVIII and XIX of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq. and 1396 et seq.) or fear of losing private health insurance; and

"(iv) lack of education, training, and supports to meet job qualification standards necessary to secure, retain, regain, or advance in employment;

"(E) enforcement of title V and of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq.) holds the promise of ending discrimination for individuals with disabilities;

"(F) the provision of workforce investment activities and vocational rehabilitation services can enable individuals with disabilities, including individuals with the most significant disabilities, to pursue meaningful careers by securing gainful employment commensurate with their abilities and capabilities; and

"(G) linkages between the vocational rehabilitation programs established under this title and other components of the statewide workforce investment systems are critical to ensure effective and meaningful participation by individuals with disabilities in workforce investment activities.

"(2) Purpose.—The purpose of this title is to assist States in operating statewide comprehensive, coordinated, effective, efficient, and accountable programs of vocational rehabilitation, each of which is—

"(A) an integral part of a statewide workforce investment system; and

"(B) designed to assess, plan, develop, and provide vocational rehabilitation services for individuals with disabilities, consistent with their strengths, resources, priorities, concerns, abilities, capabilities, interests, and informed choice, so that such individuals may prepare for and engage in gainful employment.

"(3) Policy.—It is the policy of the United States that such a program shall be carried out in a manner consistent with the following principles:

"(A) Individuals with disabilities, including individuals with the most significant disabilities, are generally presumed to be capable of engaging in gainful employment and the provision of individualized vocational rehabilitation services can improve their ability to become gainfully employed.

"(B) Individuals with disabilities must be provided the opportunities to obtain gainful employment in integrated settings.

"(C) Individuals who are applicants for such programs or eligible to participate in such programs must be active and full partners in the vocational rehabilitation process, making meaningful and informed choices—

"(i) during assessments for determining eligibility and vocational rehabilitation needs; and

"(ii) in the selection of employment outcomes for the individuals, services needed to achieve the outcomes, entities providing such services, and the methods used to secure such services.

"(D) Families and other natural supports can play important roles in the success of a vocational rehabilitation program, if the individual with a disability involved requests, desires, or needs such supports.

"(E) Vocational rehabilitation counselors that are trained and prepared in accordance with State policies and procedures as described in section 101(a)(7)(B) (referred to individually in this title as a 'qualified vocational rehabilitation counselor'), other qualified rehabilitation personnel, and other qualified personnel facilitate the accomplishment of the employment outcomes and objectives of an individual.

"(F) Individuals with disabilities and the individuals' representatives are full partners in a vocational rehabilitation program and must be involved on a regular basis and in a meaningful manner with respect to policy development and implementation.

"(G) Accountability measures must facilitate the accomplishment of the goals and objectives of the program, including providing vocational rehabilitation services to, among others, individuals with the most significant disabilities.

"(b) Authorization of Appropriations.—

"(1) In general.—For the purpose of making grants to States under part B to assist States in meeting the costs of vocational rehabilitation services provided in accordance with State plans under section 101, there are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 1999 through 2003, except that the amount to be appropriated for a fiscal year shall not be less than the amount of the appropriation under this paragraph for the immediately preceding fiscal year, increased by the percentage change in the Consumer Price Index determined under subsection (c) for the immediately preceding fiscal year.

"(2) Reference.—The reference in paragraph (1) to grants to States under part B shall not be considered to refer to grants under section 112.

"(c) Consumer Price Index.—

"(1) Percentage change.—No later than November 15 of each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1979), the Secretary of Labor shall publish in the Federal Register the percentage change in the Consumer Price Index published for October of the preceding fiscal year and October of the fiscal year in which such publication is made.

"(2) Application.—

"(A) Increase.—If in any fiscal year the percentage change published under paragraph (1) indicates an increase in the Consumer Price Index, then the amount to be appropriated under subsection (b)(1) for the subsequent fiscal year shall be at least the amount appropriated under subsection (b)(1) for the fiscal year in which the publication is made under paragraph (1) increased by such percentage change.

"(B) No increase or decrease.—If in any fiscal year the percentage change published under paragraph (1) does not indicate an increase in the Consumer Price Index, then the amount to be appropriated under subsection (b)(1) for the subsequent fiscal year shall be at least the amount appropriated under subsection (b)(1) for the fiscal year in which the publication is made under paragraph (1).

"(3) Definition.—For purposes of this section, the term 'Consumer Price Index' means the Consumer Price Index for All Urban Consumers, published monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"(d) Extension.—

"(1) In general.—

"(A) Authorization or duration of program.—Unless the Congress in the regular session which ends prior to the beginning of the terminal fiscal year—

"(i) of the authorization of appropriations for the program authorized by the State grant program under part B of this title; or

"(ii) of the duration of the program authorized by the State grant program under part B of this title; has passed legislation which would have the effect of extending the authorization or duration (as the case may be) of such program, such authorization or duration is automatically extended for 1 additional year for the program authorized by this title.

"(B) Calculation.—The amount authorized to be appropriated for the additional fiscal year described in subparagraph (A) shall be an amount equal to the amount appropriated for such program for fiscal year 2003, increased by the percentage change in the Consumer Price Index determined under subsection (c) for the immediately preceding fiscal year, if the percentage change indicates an increase.

"(2) Construction.—

"(A) Passage of legislation.—For the purposes of paragraph (1)(A), Congress shall not be deemed to have passed legislation unless such legislation becomes law.

"(B) Acts or determinations of commissioner.—In any case where the Commissioner is required under an applicable statute to carry out certain acts or make certain determinations which are necessary for the continuation of the program authorized by this title, if such acts or determinations are required during the terminal year of such program, such acts and determinations shall be required during any fiscal year in which the extension described in that part of paragraph (1) that follows clause (ii) of paragraph (1)(A) is in effect.

"SEC. 101. STATE PLANS.

"(a) Plan Requirements.—

"(1) In general.—

"(A) Submission.—To be eligible to participate in programs under this title, a State shall submit to the Commissioner a State plan for vocational rehabilitation services that meets the requirements of this section, on the same date that the State submits a State plan under section 112 of the Workforce Investment Act of 1998.

"(B) Nonduplication.—The State shall not be required to submit, in the State plan for vocational rehabilitation services, policies, procedures, or descriptions required under this title that have been previously submitted to the Commissioner and that demonstrate that such State meets the requirements of this title, including any policies, procedures, or descriptions submitted under this title as in effect on the day before the effective date of the Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1998.

"(C) Duration.—The State plan shall remain in effect subject to the submission of such modifications as the State determines to be necessary or as the Commissioner may require based on a change in State policy, a change in Federal law (including regulations), an interpretation of this Act by a Federal court or the highest court of the State, or a finding by the Commissioner of State noncompliance with the requirements of this Act, until the State submits and receives approval of a new State plan.

"(2) Designated state agency; designated state unit.—

"(A) Designated state agency.—The State plan shall designate a State agency as the sole State agency to administer the plan, or to supervise the administration of the plan by a local agency, except that—

"(i) where, under State law, the State agency for individuals who are blind or another agency that provides assistance or services to adults who are blind is authorized to provide vocational rehabilitation services to individuals who are blind, that agency may be designated as the sole State agency to administer the part of the plan under which vocational rehabilitation services are provided for individuals who are blind (or to supervise the administration of such part by a local agency) and a separate State agency may be designated as the sole State agency to administer or supervise the administration of the rest of the State plan;

"(ii) the Commissioner, on the request of a State, may authorize the designated State agency to share funding and administrative responsibility with another agency of the State or with a local agency in order to permit the agencies to carry out a joint program to provide services to individuals with disabilities, and may waive compliance, with respect to vocational rehabilitation services furnished under the joint program, with the requirement of paragraph (4) that the plan be in effect in all political subdivisions of the State; and

"(iii) in the case of American Samoa, the appropriate State agency shall be the Governor of American Samoa.

"(B) DESIGNATED STATE UNIT.—The State agency designated under subparagraph (A) shall be—

"(i) a State agency primarily concerned with vocational rehabilitation, or vocational and other rehabilitation, of individuals with disabilities; or

"(ii) if not such an agency, the State agency (or each State agency if 2 are so designated) shall include a vocational rehabilitation bureau, division, or other organizational unit that—

"(I) is primarily concerned with vocational rehabilitation, or vocational and other rehabilitation, of individuals with disabilities, and is responsible for the vocational rehabilitation program of the designated State agency;

"(IV) is located at an organizational level and has an organizational status within the designated State agency comparable to that of other major organizational units of the designated State agency.

"(C) RESPONSIBILITY FOR SERVICES FOR THE BLIND.—If the State has designated only 1 State agency pursuant to subparagraph (A), the State may assign responsibility for the part of the plan under which vocational rehabilitation services are provided for individuals who are blind to an organizational unit of the designated State agency and assign responsibility for the rest of the plan to another organizational unit of the designated State agency, with the provisions of subparagraph (B) applying separately to each of the designated State units.

"(3) NON-FEDERAL SHARE.—The State plan shall provide for financial participation by the State, or if the State so elects, by the State and local agencies, to provide the amount of the non-Federal share of the cost of carrying out part B.

"(4) STATEWIDENESS.—The State plan shall provide that the plan shall be in effect in all political subdivisions of the State, except that—

"(A) in the case of any activity that, in the judgment of the Commissioner, is likely to assist in promoting the vocational rehabilitation of substantially larger numbers of individuals with disabilities or groups of individuals with disabilities, the Commissioner may waive compliance with the requirement that the plan be in effect in all political subdivisions of the State to the extent and for such period as may be provided in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, but only if the non-Federal share of the cost of the vocational rehabilitation services involved is met from funds made available by a local agency (including funds contributed to such agency by a private agency, organization, or individual); and

"(B) in a case in which earmarked funds are used toward the non-Federal share and such funds are earmarked for particular geographic areas within the State, the earmarked funds may be used in such areas if the State notifies the Commissioner that the State cannot provide the full non-Federal share without such funds.

"(5) ORDER OF SELECTION FOR VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES.—In the event that vocational rehabilitation services cannot be provided to all eligible individuals with disabilities in the State who apply for the services, the State plan shall—

"(A) show the order to be followed in selecting eligible individuals to be provided vocational rehabilitation services;

"(B) provide the justification for the order of selection;

"(C) include an assurance that, in accordance with criteria established by the State for the order of selection, individuals with the most significant disabilities will be selected first for the provision of vocational rehabilitation services; and

"(D) provide that eligible individuals, who do not meet the order of selection criteria, shall have access to services provided through the information and referral system implemented under paragraph (20).

"(6) METHODS FOR ADMINISTRATION.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The State plan shall provide for such methods of administration as are found by the Commissioner to be necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the plan.

"(B) EMPLOYMENT OF INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES.—The State plan shall provide that the designated State agency, and entities carrying out community rehabilitation programs in the State, who are in receipt of assistance under this title shall take affirmative action to employ and advance in employment qualified individuals with disabilities covered under, and on the same terms and conditions as set forth in, section 503.

"(C) FACILITIES.—The State plan shall provide that facilities used in connection with the delivery of services assisted under the State plan shall comply with the Act entitled 'An Act to insure that certain buildings financed with Federal funds are so designed and constructed as to be accessible to the physically handicapped', approved on August 12, 1968 (commonly known as the 'Architectural Barriers Act of 1968'), with section 504, and with the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990.

"(7) COMPREHENSIVE SYSTEM OF PERSONNEL DEVELOPMENT.—The State plan shall—

"(A) include a description (consistent with the purposes of this Act) of a comprehensive system of personnel development, which shall include—

"(i) a description of the procedures and activities the designated State agency will undertake to ensure an adequate supply of qualified State rehabilitation professionals and paraprofessionals for the designated State unit, including the development and maintenance of a system for determining, on an annual basis—

"(II) the number and type of personnel needed by the State, and a projection of the numbers of such personnel that will be needed in 5 years, based on projections of the number of individuals to be served, the number of such personnel who are expected to retire or leave the vocational rehabilitation field, and other relevant factors;

"(ii) where appropriate, a description of the manner in which activities will be undertaken under this section to coordinate the system of personnel development with personnel development activities under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1400 et seq.);

"(iii) a description of the development and maintenance of a system of determining, on an annual basis, information on the programs of institutions of higher education within the State that are preparing rehabilitation professionals, including—

"(c) FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH PLAN.—

"(1) WITHHOLDING PAYMENTS.—Whenever the Commissioner, after providing reasonable notice and an opportunity for a hearing to the State agency administering or supervising the administration of the State plan approved under section 101, finds that—

"(3) DISBURSAL OF WITHHELD FUNDS.—The Commissioner may, in accordance with regulations the Secretary shall prescribe, disburse any funds withheld from a State under paragraph (1) to any public or nonprofit private organization or agency within such State or to any political subdivision of such State submitting a plan meeting the requirements of section 101(a). The Commissioner may not make any payment under this paragraph unless the entity to which such payment is made has provided assurances to the Commissioner that such entity will contribute, for purposes of carrying out such plan, the same amount as the State would have been obligated to contribute if the State received such payment.

"(d) REVIEW.—

"(1) PETITION.—Any State that is dissatisfied with a final determination of the Commissioner under section 101(b) or subsection (c) may file a petition for judicial review of such determination in the United States Court of Appeals for the circuit in which the State is located. Such a petition may be filed only within the 30-day period beginning on the date that notice of such final determination was received by the State. The clerk of the court shall transmit a copy of the petition to the Commissioner or to any officer designated by the Commissioner for that purpose. In accordance with section 2112 of title 28, United States Code, the Commissioner shall file with the court a record of the proceeding on which the Commissioner based the determination being appealed by the State. Until a record is so filed, the Commissioner may modify or set aside any determination made under such proceedings.

"(2) SUBMISSIONS AND DETERMINATIONS.—If, in an action under this subsection to review a final determination of the Commissioner under section 101(b) or subsection (c), the petitioner or the Commissioner applies to the court for leave to have additional oral submissions or written presentations made respecting such determination, the court may, for good cause shown, order the Commissioner to provide within 30 days an additional opportunity to make such submissions and presentations. Within such period, the Commissioner may revise any findings of fact, modify or set aside the determination being reviewed, or make a new determination by reason of the additional submissions and presentations, and shall file such modified or new determination, and any revised findings of fact, with the return of such submissions and presentations. The court shall thereafter review such new or modified determination.

"(3) STANDARDS OF REVIEW.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Upon the filing of a petition under paragraph (1) for judicial review of a determination, the court shall have jurisdiction—

"SEC. 108. EXPENDITURE OF CERTAIN AMOUNTS.

"(a) EXPENDITURE.—Amounts described in subsection (b) may not be expended by a State for any purpose other than carrying out programs for which the State receives financial assistance under this title, under part B of title VI, or under title VII.

"SEC. 109. TRAINING OF EMPLOYERS WITH RESPECT TO AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT OF 1990.

"A State may expend payments received under section 111—

"(2) to inform employers of the existence of the program and the availability of the services of the program.

"PART B—BASIC VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES

"STATE ALLOTMENTS

"SEC. 110. (a)(1) Subject to the provisions of subsection (c), for each fiscal year beginning before October 1, 1978, each State shall be entitled to an allotment of an amount bearing the same ratio to the amount authorized to be appropriated under section 100(b)(1) for allotment under this section as the product of—

"(A) the population of the State; and

"(B) the square of its allotment percentage, bears to the sum of the corresponding products for all the States.

"(2)(A) For each fiscal year beginning on or after October 1, 1978, each State shall be entitled to an allotment in an amount equal to the amount such State received under paragraph (1) for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, and an additional amount determined pursuant to subparagraph (B) of this paragraph.

"(B) For each fiscal year beginning on or after October 1, 1978, each State shall be entitled to an allotment, from any amount authorized to be appropriated for such fiscal year under section 100(b)(1) for allotment under this section in excess of the amount appropriated under section 100(b)(1)(A) for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1978, in an amount equal to the sum of—

"(i) an amount bearing the same ratio to 50 percent of such excess amount as the product of the population of the State and the square of its allotment percentage bears to the sum of the corresponding products for all the States; and

"(ii) an amount bearing the same ratio to 50 percent of such excess amount as the product of the population of the State and its allotment percentage bears to the sum of the corresponding products for all the States.

"(3) The sum of the payment to any State (other than Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands) under this subsection for any fiscal year which is less than one-third of 1 percent of the amount appropriated under section 100(b)(1), or $3,000,000, whichever is greater, shall be increased to that amount, the total of the increases thereby required being derived by proportionately reducing the allotment to each of the remaining such States under this subsection, but with such adjustments as may be necessary to prevent the sum of the allotments made under this subsection to any such remaining State from being thereby reduced to less than that amount.

"(b)(1) Not later than forty-five days prior to the end of the fiscal year, the Commissioner shall determine, after reasonable opportunity for the submission to the Commissioner of comments by the State agency administering or supervising the program established under this title, that any payment of an allotment to a State under section 111(a) for any fiscal year will not be utilized by such State in carrying out the purposes of this title.

"(2) As soon as practicable but not later than the end of the fiscal year, the Commissioner shall make such amount available for carrying out the purposes of this title to one or more other States to the extent the Commissioner determines such other State will be able to use such additional amount during that fiscal year or the subsequent fiscal year for carrying out such purposes. The Commissioner shall make such amount available only if such other State will be able to make sufficient payments from non-Federal sources to pay for the non-Federal share of the cost of vocational rehabilitation services under the State plan for the fiscal year for which the amount was appropriated.

"(3) For the purposes of this part, any amount made available to a State for any fiscal year pursuant to this subsection shall be regarded as an increase of such State's allotment (as determined under the preceding provisions of this section) for such year.

"(c)(1) For fiscal year 1987 and for each subsequent fiscal year, the Commissioner shall reserve from the amount appropriated under section 100(b)(1) for allotment under this section a sum, determined under paragraph (2), to carry out the purposes of part C.

"(2) The sum referred to in paragraph (1) shall be, as determined by the Secretary—

"(A) not less than three-quarters of 1 percent and not more than 1.5 percent of the amount referred to in paragraph (1), for fiscal year 1999; and

"(B) not less than 1 percent and not more than 1.5 percent of the amount referred to in paragraph (1), for each of fiscal years 2000 through 2003.

"PAYMENTS TO STATES

"SEC. 111. (a)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), from each State's allotment under this part for any fiscal year, the Commissioner shall pay to a State an amount equal to the Federal share of the cost of vocational rehabilitation services under the plan for that State approved under section 101, including expenditures for the administration of the State plan.

"(2)(A) The total of payments under paragraph (1) to a State for a fiscal year may not exceed its allotment under subsection (a) of section 110 for such year.

"(B) For fiscal year 1994 and each fiscal year thereafter, the amount otherwise payable to a State for a fiscal year under this section shall be reduced by the amount by which expenditures from non-Federal sources under the State plan under this title for the previous fiscal year are less than the total of such expenditures for the second fiscal year preceding the previous fiscal year.

"(C) The Commissioner may waive or modify any requirement or limitation under subparagraph (B) or section 101(a)(17) if the Commissioner determines that a waiver or modification is an equitable response to exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances affecting the State.

"(3)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the amount of a payment under this section with respect to any construction project in any State shall be equal to the same percentage of the cost of such project as the Federal share that is applicable in the case of rehabilitation facilities (as defined in section 645(g) of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 291o(a))), in such State.

"(B) If the Federal share with respect to rehabilitation facilities in such State is determined pursuant to section 645(b)(2) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 291o(b)(2)), the percentage of the cost for purposes of this section shall be determined in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner designed to achieve as nearly as practicable results comparable to the results obtained under such section.

"(b) The method of computing and paying amounts pursuant to subsection (a) shall be as follows:

"(1) The Commissioner shall, prior to the beginning of each calendar quarter or other period prescribed by the Commissioner, estimate the amount to be paid to each State under the provisions of such subsection for such period, such estimate to be based on such records of the State and information furnished by it, and such other investigation as the Commissioner may find necessary.

"(2) The Commissioner shall pay, from the allotment available therefor, the amount so estimated by the Commissioner for such period, reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum (not previously adjusted under this paragraph) by which the Commissioner finds that the estimate of the amount to be paid the State for any prior period under such subsection was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such prior period under such subsection. Such payment shall be made prior to audit or settlement by the General Accounting Office, shall be made through the disbursing facilities of the Treasury Department, and shall be made in such installments as the Commissioner may determine.

"CLIENT ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

"SEC. 112. (a) From funds appropriated under subsection (h), the Secretary shall, in accordance with this section, make grants to States to establish and carry out client assistance programs to provide assistance in informing and advising all clients and client applicants of all available benefits under this Act, and, upon request of such clients or client applicants, to assist and advocate for such clients or applicants in their relationships with projects, programs, and services provided under this Act, including assistance and advocacy in pursuing legal, administrative, or other appropriate remedies to ensure the protection of the rights of such individuals under this Act and to facilitate access to the services funded under this Act through individual and systemic advocacy. The client assistance program shall provide information on the available services and benefits under this Act and title I of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 12111 et seq.) to individuals with disabilities in the State, especially with regard to individuals with disabilities who have traditionally been unserved or underserved by vocational rehabilitation programs. In providing assistance and advocacy under this subsection with respect to services under this title, a client assistance program may provide the assistance and advocacy with respect to services that are directly related to facilitating the employment of the individual.

"(b) No State may receive payments from its allotment under this Act in any fiscal year unless the State has in effect not later than October 1, 1984, a client assistance program which—

"(1) has the authority to pursue legal, administrative, and other appropriate remedies to ensure the protection of rights of individuals with disabilities who are receiving treatments, services, or rehabilitation under this Act within the State; and

"(2) meets the requirements of designation under subsection (c).

"(c)(1)(A) The Governor shall designate a public or private agency to conduct the client assistance program under this section. Except as provided in the last sentence of this subparagraph, the Governor shall designate an agency which is independent of any agency which provides treatment, services, or rehabilitation to individuals under this Act. If there is an agency in the State which has, or had, prior to the date of enactment of the Rehabilitation Amendments of 1984, served as a client assistance agency under this section and which received Federal financial assistance under this Act, the Governor may, in the initial designation, designate an agency which provides treatment, services, or rehabilitation to individuals with disabilities under this Act.

"(B)(i) The Governor may not redesignate the agency designated under subparagraph (A) without good cause and unless—

"(I) the Governor has given the agency 30 days notice of the intention to make such redesignation, including specification of the good cause for such redesignation and an opportunity to respond to the assertion that good cause has been shown;

"(II) individuals with disabilities or the individuals' representatives have timely notice of the redesignation and opportunity for public comment; and

"(III) the agency has the opportunity to appeal to the Commissioner on the basis that the redesignation was not for good cause.

"(ii) If, after the date of enactment of the Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1998—

"(I) a designated State agency undergoes any change in the organizational structure of the agency that results in the creation of 1 or more new State agencies or departments or results in the merger of the designated State agency with 1 or more other State agencies or departments; and

"(II) an agency (including an office or other unit) within the designated State agency was conducting a client assistance program before the change under the last sentence of subparagraph (A), the Governor shall redesignate the agency conducting the program. In conducting the redesignation, the Governor shall designate to conduct the program an agency that is independent of any agency that provides treatment, services, or rehabilitation to individuals with disabilities under this Act.

"(2) In carrying out the provisions of this section, the Governor shall consult with the director of the State vocational rehabilitation agency, the head of the developmental disability protection and advocacy agency, and with representatives of professional and consumer organizations serving individuals with disabilities in the State.

"(3) The agency designated under this subsection shall be accountable for the proper use of funds made available to the agency.

"(d) The agency designated under subsection (c) of this section may not bring any class action in carrying out its responsibilities under this section.

"(e)(1)(A) The Secretary shall allot the sums appropriated for each fiscal year under this section among the States on the basis of relative population of each State, except that no State shall receive less than $50,000.

"(B) The Secretary shall allot $30,000 each to American Samoa, Guam, the Virgin Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

"(C) For the purpose of this paragraph, the term 'State' does not include American Samoa, Guam, the Virgin Islands, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

"(D)(i) In any fiscal year that the funds appropriated for such fiscal year exceed $7,500,000, the minimum allotment shall be $100,000 for States and $45,000 for territories.

"(ii) For any fiscal year in which the total amount appropriated under subsection (h) exceeds the total amount appropriated under such subsection for the preceding fiscal year, the Secretary shall increase each of the minimum allotments under clause (i) by a percentage that shall not exceed the percentage increase in the total amount appropriated under such subsection between the preceding fiscal year and the fiscal year involved.

"(2) The amount of an allotment to a State for a fiscal year which the Secretary determines will not be required by the State during the period for which it is available for the purpose for which allotted shall be available for reallotment by the Secretary at appropriate times to other States with respect to which such a determination has not been made, in proportion to the original allotments of such States for such fiscal year, but with such proportionate amount for any of such other States being reduced to the extent it exceeds the sum the Secretary estimates such State needs and will be able to use during such period, and the total of such reduction shall be similarly reallotted among the States whose proportionate amounts were not so reduced. Any such amount so reallotted to a State for a fiscal year shall be deemed to be a part of its allotment for such fiscal year.

"(3) Except as specifically prohibited by or as otherwise provided in State law, the Secretary shall pay to the agency designated under subsection (c) the amount specified in the application approved under subsection (f).

"(f) No grant may be made under this section unless the State submits an application to the Secretary at such time, in such manner, and containing or accompanied by such information as the Secretary deems necessary to meet the requirements of this section.

"(g) The Secretary shall prescribe regulations applicable to the client assistance program which shall include the following requirements:

"(1) No employees of such programs shall, while so employed, serve as staff or consultants of any rehabilitation project, program, or facility receiving assistance under this Act in the State.

"(2) Each program shall be afforded reasonable access to policymaking and administrative personnel in the State and local rehabilitation programs, projects, or facilities.

"(3)(A) Each program shall contain provisions designed to assure that to the maximum extent possible alternative means of dispute resolution are available for use at the discretion of an applicant or client of the program prior to resorting to litigation or formal adjudication to resolve a dispute arising under this section.

"(B) In subparagraph (A), the term 'alternative means of dispute resolution' means any procedure, including good faith negotiation, conciliation, facilitation, mediation, factfinding, and arbitration, and any combination of procedures, that is used in lieu of litigation in a court or formal adjudication in an administrative forum, to resolve a dispute arising under this section.

"(4) For purposes of any periodic audit, report, or evaluation of the performance of a client assistance program under this section, the Secretary shall not require such a program to disclose the identity of, or any other personally identifiable information related to, any individual requesting assistance under such program.

"(h) There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for fiscal years 1999 through 2003 to carry out the provisions of this section.

"PART C—AMERICAN INDIAN VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES

"VOCATIONAL REHABILITATION SERVICES GRANTS

"SEC. 121. (a) The Commissioner, in accordance with the provisions of this part, may make grants to the governing bodies of Indian tribes located on Federal and State reservations (and consortia of such governing bodies) to pay 90 percent of the costs of vocational rehabilitation services for American Indians who are individuals with disabilities residing on or near such reservations. The non-Federal share of such costs may be in cash or in kind, fairly valued, and the Commissioner may waive such non-Federal share requirement in order to carry out the purposes of this Act.

"(b)(1) No grant may be made under this part for any fiscal year unless an application therefor has been submitted to and approved by the Commissioner. The Commissioner may not approve an application unless the application—

"(A) is made at such time, in such manner, and contains such information as the Commissioner may require;

"(B) contains assurances that the rehabilitation services provided under this part to American Indians who are individuals with disabilities residing on or near a reservation in a State shall be, to the maximum extent feasible, comparable to rehabilitation services provided under this title to other individuals with disabilities residing in the State and that, where appropriate, may include services traditionally used by Indian tribes; and

"(C) contains assurances that the application was developed in consultation with the designated State unit of the State.

"(2) The provisions of sections 5, 6, 7, and 102(a) of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act shall be applicable to any application submitted under this part. For purposes of this paragraph, any reference in any such provision to the Secretary of Education or to the Secretary of the Interior shall be considered to be a reference to the Commissioner.

"(3) Any application approved under this part shall be effective for not more than 60 months, except as determined otherwise by the Commissioner pursuant to prescribed regulations. The State shall continue to provide vocational rehabilitation services under its State plan to American Indians residing on or near a reservation whenever such State includes any such American Indians in its State population under section 110(a)(1).

"(4) In making grants under this part, the Secretary shall give priority consideration to applications for the continuation of programs which have been funded under this part.

"(2) SELECTION.—In selecting from among applicants for a grant under this section for a new center for independent living, the Commissioner—

"(ii) GRANTS.—The director or the Commissioner, as appropriate, shall award such grants, from the amount of funds so allotted for the initial fiscal year, to eligible agencies in the State for the planning, conduct, administration, and evaluation of centers for independent living that comply with the standards and assurances set forth in section 725.

"(c) EXISTING ELIGIBLE AGENCIES.—In the administration of the provisions of this section, the director of the designated State unit shall award grants under this section to any eligible agency that has been awarded a grant under this part by September 30, 1997, unless the director makes a finding that the agency involved fails to comply with the standards and assurances set forth in section 725.

"(d) NEW CENTERS FOR INDEPENDENT LIVING.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—If there is no center for independent living serving a region of the State or the region is unserved or underserved, and the increase in the allotment of the State is sufficient to support an additional center for independent living in the State, the director of the designated State unit may award a grant under this section from among eligible agencies, consistent with the provisions of the State plan under section 704 setting forth the design of the State for establishing a statewide network of centers for independent living.

"(2) SELECTION.—In selecting from among eligible agencies in awarding a grant under this part for a new center for independent living—

"(A) the director of the designated State unit and the chairperson of, or other individual designated by, the Statewide Independent Living Council acting on behalf of and at the direction of the Council, shall jointly appoint a peer review committee that shall rank applications in accordance with the standards and assurances set forth in section 725 and criteria jointly established by such director and such chairperson or individual;

"(C) the director of the designated State unit shall award the grant on the basis of the recommendations of the peer review committee if the actions of the committee are consistent with Federal and State law.

"(3) CURRENT CENTERS.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), a center for independent living that receives assistance under part B for a fiscal year shall be eligible for a grant for the subsequent fiscal year under this subsection.

"(e) ORDER OF PRIORITIES.—Unless the director of the designated State unit and the chairperson of the Council or other individual designated by the Council acting on behalf of and at the direction of the Council jointly agree on another order of priority, the director shall be guided by the following order of priorities in allocating funds among centers for independent living within a State, to the extent funds are available:

"(2) ENFORCEMENT.—The director of the designated State unit shall terminate all funds under this section to such center 90 days after—

"(A) the date of such notification; or

"(B) in the case of a center that requests an appeal under subsection (i), the date of any final decision under subsection (i), unless the center submits a plan to achieve compliance within 90 days and such plan is approved by the director, or if appealed, by the Commissioner.

"(h) ONSITE COMPLIANCE REVIEW.—The director of the designated State unit shall annually conduct onsite compliance reviews of at least 15 percent of the centers for independent living that receive funding under this section in the State. Each team that conducts onsite compliance review of centers for independent living shall include at least one person who is not an employee of the designated State agency, who has experience in the operation of centers for independent living, and who is jointly selected by the director of the designated State unit and the chairperson of or other individual designated by the Council acting on behalf of and at the direction of the Council. A copy of this review shall be provided to the Commissioner.

"(i) ADVERSE ACTIONS.—If the director of the designated State unit proposes to take a significant adverse action against a center for independent living, the center may seek mediation and conciliation to be provided by an individual or individuals who are free of conflicts of interest identified by the chairperson of or other individual designated by the Council. If the issue is not resolved through the mediation and conciliation, the center may appeal the proposed adverse action to the Commissioner for a final decision.

STATE PROVISIONS

State workforce investment boards

The House bill requires States to establish a collaborative process consisting of the Governor, representatives of the State legislature, and representatives appointed by the Governor, with: business; local elected officials; local education agencies; postsecondary institutions; organizations representing participants (including community-based organizations); service providers; parents; employers; State Education Agency; State agencies responsible for vocational rehabilitation; welfare; vocational, adult and postsecondary education; such other agency officials as the Governor may designate (including economic development); and the Veterans' Employment and Training Service, to develop a single State plan for the three block grants, for programs authorized under the Wagner-Peyser Act, and a performance measurement system for the three block grant. The collaborative process would also be used to carry out other duties including designation of local workforce development areas, development of criteria for appointment of local workforce development boards, and development of criteria for the Statewide full-service employment and training delivery system.

The Senate amendment establishes a Statewide partnership with composition similar to the House provision except: (1) it adds individuals with experience relating to youth activities; it expands the illustrative list of additional State agencies to include the Employment Service and others; refers to representatives of "labor organizations" rather than "employees", and (2) it does not include representatives of local educational agencies, postsecondary institutions, organizations representing participants, service providers, parents, or the State agency responsible for welfare or veterans. In addition, the Senate requires that the chair of the partnership be a representative of business.

The Conference agreement establishes a State Workforce Investment Board composed of the Governor; members of the State legislature; a majority of representatives of business; chief elected officials; representatives of individuals with experience relating to youth activities; representatives of individuals with experience and expertise in the delivery of workforce investment activities (including chief executive officers of community colleges and community-based organizations); and officials of the lead State agency with responsibility for programs, services, and activities carried out by one-stop partners. The Conference agreement adds a conflict of interest provision which prohibits members of the State board from voting on matters regarding the provision of services by such member, matters that would provide direct financial benefit to such member or their immediate family, and other activities considered in conflict of interest by the Governor. Additionally, the Conference agreement contains a sunshine provision that requires information regarding activities of the State board, the plan prior to submission, its membership, and minutes of its formal meetings, to be made available to the public.

State plan

The House bill requires State to submit a 3-year plan that describes the statewide system as well as activities under the Wagner-Peyser Act and the Adult Education Act. The State plan must include long-term goals for the workforce development system and benchmarks for achieving those goals and ensuring continuous improvement.

With respect to approval of the State plan, the House bill provides that the State plan be approved unless the appropriate Secretary makes a written determination within 90 days of receipt that the plan is inconsistent with a specific provision of the Act.

The Senate amendment contains provisions similar to the House bill, except that the plan does not include Adult Education or reference to long-term goals. The Senate amendment includes similar plan controls regarding the identification and description of the State workforce system, descriptions and assurance on criteria for appointments, processes for public comment, and data and reporting.

With respect to approval of the State plan, the Senate amendment provides that the State plan be approved unless the appropriate Secretary makes a written determination within 60 days of receipt that the plan is: (1) inconsistent with the provisions of the title; (2) in the case of the Wagner-Peyser portion of the plan, does not meet the plan approval standard under that Act; or (3) the State and the Secretary have not reached agreement on the expected levels of performance.

The Conference agreement requires States to submit a plan that outlines a 5-year strategy for the statewide workforce investment system, including activities under Wagner-Peyser. The contents of the State plan follow the House and Senate provisions, specifically with respect to a description of the State board, performance accountability, state workforce and economic development information, and identification of local areas. Additionally, States are given the authority to require regional planning by workforce development areas in a single labor market area, economic development region or other appropriate contiguous sub-area of the state.

With respect to approval of the State plan, the Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment except to provide that State plans are considered approved unless the Secretary makes a written determination within 90 days of receipt of the State plan that the plan is inconsistent with the provisions of the title.

LOCAL PROVISIONS

Local workforce investment areas

The House bill requires that States desiring to receive a grant under this Act, designate local geographic areas, called workforce development areas, for the purpose of distributing funds. The House bill allows Governors to determine where geographic lines are drawn to form local workforce areas and guarantees automatic designation of single local units of government with populations of 500,000 or more who apply for designation.

The Senate amendment follows the House bill, with the exceptions that units of government with populations of 500,000 or more may request designation only with the agreement of the political subdivisions within the county with populations of 200,000 or more. Additionally, single units of general local government with populations of 200,000 or more that were previously Service Delivery Areas under the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) are given an automatic right to request designation as local areas. Such areas may appeal a denial of designation to the Secretary, who may grant the designation if the local area has demonstrated effectiveness and meets certain other criteria.

The Conference agreement requires States to designate local workforce areas through the process described in the State plan, and after consultation which chief elected officials. In making such designations, the Governor must take into consideration several factors such as labor market areas. The Conference agreement also requires the Governor to approve a request for designation from any single unit of general local government with a population of 500,000 or more. Additionally, Governors are required to approve a request for temporary designation, as a local area, from any unit, or combination of units, of local governments with a population of 200,000 or more that was a service delivery area under JTPA and performed successfully and has sustained fiscal integrity. Such temporary designation is limited to 2 years, after which the designation is to be extended until the end of the duration of the State plan if, for the period of the temporary designation, the Governor determines the area substantially met (as defined by the State board) the local performance measures for the area and sustained the fiscal integrity of the program. A process for appeal to the Secretary of Labor is outlined. Additionally, the Governor may approve any request from any unit, or combination of units, of local government, based upon a recommendation of the State board.

Local workforce investment boards

The House bill establishes local workforce development boards which are comprised of a majority of representatives of business; representatives of local educational entities; representatives of community-based organizations, representatives of employees (which may include labor); and other representatives of the public (which may include program participants, parents, individuals with disabilities, older workers, veterans, or organizations serving such individuals). Boards may also include representatives of local welfare agencies, economic development agencies, and the local employment services system.

With respect to functions of local workforce investment boards, the House bill includes development of the local plan, selection of one-stop providers, identification of training providers, budgeting, program oversight, designation of administrative entity, and negotiation of local benchmarks. Additionally, local boards are authorized to act as the fiscal agent to receive and disburse funds, or may designate an alternate administrative entity to serve as the fiscal agent.

The Senate amendment establishes local workforce investment partnerships which are comprised of a majority of representatives of business; chief officers of postsecondary, adult and vocational education; chief officers of labor organizations; and chief officers of economic development agencies. Boards may also include chief officers from one-stop partners and other individuals or entities.

With respect to functions of local workforce investment boards, the Senate amendment adds to the House provisions: (1) promotion of the participation of private sector employment and the use of intermediaries to assist employers in meeting hiring needs; (2) coordination of the workforce investment activities with economic development strategies; and (3) assistance in the development of the labor market information system as functions of the local partnership. The Senate amendment does not include the designation of an administrative entity as a function of the local workforce investment board. Additionally, although the chief local elected official is the fiscal agent for funds allocated to the local area, the fiscal agent is required to disburse funds for workforce investment activities at the direction of the local partnerships.

In addition, the Senate amendment establishes a youth partnership in each local area to work, with the approval of the local partnership, on planning, awarding and oversight of grants for the youth programs. The youth partnerships are required to include parents as well as representatives of the local partnership, youth service agencies, public housing authorities, youth organizations, business, and Job Corps.

The Conference agreement establishes local workforce investment boards whose members are appointed by the chief elected officials and which are comprised of a majority of representatives of business; representatives of local educational entities; representatives of labor organizations; representatives of community-based organizations; representatives of economic development agencies; and representatives of each of the one-stop partners. Boards may also include others as determined by the local elected official. The Conference agreement includes language to require the actions of the Board to be available to the public and includes conflict of interest language for members of the Board.

In the Conference agreement, Governors may require regional planning, sharing of employment statistics, arrangements of the delivery of service, and performance measurements across labor market areas, regardless of workforce investment area designation, in order to ensure maximum efficiency in the delivery of employment and training services.

With respect to functions of local workforce investment boards, the Conference agreement generally follows the House and Senate provisions to include: development of the local plan; designation, certification and oversight of one-stop operators; the provision of grants for youth activities; identification of eligible providers of intensive and training services; development and entry into memorandums of understanding with one-stop partners; development of a budget; negotiation of local performance measures; program oversight and assistance in development of a statewide employment statistics system; and coordination of employer linkages with workforce investment activities and promotion of the participation of private employers with the statewide workforce investment system.

With respect to youth partnerships, the Conference agreement establishes a "youth council" similar to the youth partnership established by the Senate amendment. The youth council would operate as a subgroup within each local workforce investment board and would be responsible for the selection and oversight of local youth programs.

Local plan

The House bill requires the local workforce development board and the local elected official to develop a 3-year local strategic plan to be submitted to the Governor for approval, describing the employment and job skills needs of the local area, the employment and training activities to be funded, local performance measures, and the local full service employment and training delivery system. The House bill also includes specific provisions relating to involving others in development of disadvantaged youth programs.

The Senate amendment requires the local workforce investment partnership, in partnership with the local elected official, to develop a local plan similar to that in the House bill, to be submitted to the Governor for approval.

The Conference agreement follows the House and Senate provisions with the exception to allow for development of a 5-year local plan. The submitted local plan is required to include an identification of the workforce investment and job skill needs of the local area; a description of the one-stop delivery system; the local levels of performance; the type and availability of adult and dislocated worker employment and training activities; a description of how the local board will coordinate statewide rapid response activities; a description of available local youth activities; a description of the process for providing for public comment; identification of the local fiscal agent; and other such information required by the Governor.

WORKFORCE INVESTMENT ACTIVITIES PROVIDERS

Establishment of one-stop delivery systems

The House bill requires local workforce development areas to establish a full service employment and training delivery system to provide both individuals and employers access to services through a network of eligible providers. Services are available to participants regardless of where they initially enter the full-service system. The design of the full service system is determined by States and local communities, and requires that there be at least one physical location in each local workforce development area where participants can receive all of the core services, and through which they may access more intensive employment and training services. Any entity located in a local area may be designated by the local board to provide services. Such entities may include institutions of higher education; local employment services offices established under the Wagner-Peyser Act; private, nonprofit organizations (including community-based organizations); private for-profit entities; agencies of local government; and other organizations of demonstrated effectiveness (which may include local chambers of commerce).

The Senate amendment requires States to establish at least one one-stop customer service center in each local area where the activities of the local participating entities must be accessible to all individuals seeking assistance. One-stop partners are designated by the local partnership and local chief elected official. Each one-stop partner must enter into an operating agreement with the local partnership and the one-stop operator. One-stop operators are selected by the local partnership and the chief elected official and may be public or private entities. One-stop centers administer the individual training accounts and provide core services. Entities eligible to be designated as providers of services are similar to those in the House bill except that nontraditional public secondary schools and area vocational education schools are eligible for designation.

The Conference agreement requires there be established a one-stop delivery system in each local workforce investment area. Such local systems shall provide core services, and access to intensive services, training and related services. Programs carried out by one-stop partners are required to make available to participants, through such system, the core services applicable to such programs administered by the one-stop partner or additional partners. The local board, chief elected official, and Governor are encouraged to retain existing one-stop delivery systems where such systems have been established and are effectively and efficiently meeting the workforce investment needs of the local area, and are performing to the satisfaction of the local board, chief elected official and the Governor. Additionally, the Conference agreement prohibits the designation or certification of elementary and secondary schools as one-stop operators.

Identification of eligible providers of training services

The House bill requires eligible providers of adult or dislocated worker services to submit specified performance-based information relating to outcomes of their participants, such as completion rates, and placement. Any eligible provider may lose eligibility if they fail to meet performance criteria established by the Governor. Additionally providers of on-the-job training and apprenticeship programs registered with the National Apprenticeship Act are exempt from certain requirements.

The Senate amendment is similar to the House bill, but does not include an exemption for registered apprenticeship programs from certain requirements.

In the Conference agreement local boards would be authorized to identify providers of training services at the local level based upon minimum criteria established by the Governor. To be eligible, providers submit an application to the local workforce investment board which includes performance and cost information. The local workforce investment board submits the list of such providers to the State, which may remove a provider in the event such provider fails to meet minimum levels of performance. Otherwise, such provider is considered an eligible provider. A participant with an Individual Training Account (ITA) may attend any provider on the State list. A program operated under title IV, and apprenticeship programs (registered with the National Apprenticeship Act), are automatically eligible for the first year, and may remain on such State list unless they fail to meet the specified performance levels.

Identification of eligible providers of youth activities.

The House bill authorizes the local workforce investment board to identify eligible providers of youth activities. Adult mentoring is required as an element of youth programs.

The Senate amendment authorizes the youth partnership to identify providers of youth activities.

The Conference agreement authorizes the local youth council, working through the local workforce investment board, to competitively award grants or contract to eligible youth providers.

YOUTH ACTIVITIES

Authorization/State allotments

The House bill reserves .25 percent for outlying areas. The remaining 99.75 percent is allotted to States under a formula based on ⅓ unemployment individuals in areas of substantial unemployment (greater than 6.5 percent), ⅓ excess number of unemployed individuals (greater than 4.5 percent), and ⅓ disadvantaged youth. No State is allowed to receive less than 90 percent or more than 130 percent of the amount they received in the preceding fiscal year. A minimum allotment of .25 percent applies for small states.

The Senate amendment contains a trigger when appropriations exceed $1 billion. If the funding level is less than $1 billion, the first .25 percent is reserved for outlying areas. Of the remaining 99.75 percent, the first $15 million is reserved for Native American youth activities. The remaining funds are then allotted to States under a formula based on ⅓ unemployed individuals in areas of substantial unemployment, ⅓ excess number of unemployed individuals, and ⅓ economically disadvantaged youth. If the funding level is in excess of $1 billion, before any amounts are reserved or allotted to States, up to $250 million is assigned for Youth Opportunity grants, $10 million for migrant youth activities, and $10 million for youth academies. The remainder is then allotted per the above specifications. No State is allowed to receive less than 90 percent or more than 130 percent of the amount they received in the preceding fiscal year. A minimum allotment of .40 percent applies for small states.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment with the exception that, from funding dedicated for Youth Opportunity grants ($250 million in grants for high-poverty areas when State block grant funding exceeds $1 billion), 4 percent is guaranteed for migrant youth programs. Additionally, the Conference agreement holds all States harmless at 100 percent of their FY 1998 funding allotments. A small State minimum of .3 percent would apply, as long as States receive their FY 1998 allotted levels. For new funds in excess of the FY 1998 funding levels, a .4 percent small State minimum would apply. However, "small States" are limited to those defined as "small States" under JTPA.

Within State allocations

The House bill reserves 25 percent of youth funds at the State level, 15 percent of which is for State youth activities with the remaining 10 percent to be used to make matching grants for school dropouts. The remaining 75 percent of State grant funds would be driven to the local level. Of that amount 70 percent, or more, would be disbursed based on a formula of ⅓ unemployed, ⅓ excess unemployed, and ⅓ economically disadvantaged adults. The remaining 30 percent, or less, would be disbursed by a method determined through the State collaborative process.

The Senate amendment sends 85 percent of youth State grant funds to the local level in one of two ways as determined by the State. Either all 85 percent of the funds are driven to the local level through a formula based on ⅓ unemployed individuals in areas of substantial unemployment, ⅓ excess number of unemployed individuals, ⅓ disadvantaged adults (min. 90%); or States can choose to send 70 percent or more of those funds through the above formula with up to the remaining 30 percent being disbursed through a formula incorporating other factors relating to excess poverty and employment. This optional formula would be developed through the Statewide partnership and approved by the Secretary. The remaining 15 percent is reserved for Statewide activities. States may reserve not more than 15 percent from each of the three funding streams for statewide activities, with no more than 5 percent of that amount being used for administration. Funds from all three funding streams reserved for statewide activities and administration would be pooled at the state level, with statewide activities benefiting adults, dislocated workers, and youth.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment except that consideration of rural, urban and suburban areas are included in the factors relating to excess poverty and employment used in the alternative formula.

Use of funds

The House bill requires programs providing youth activities to include summer employment linked directly to academic and occupational learning; postsecondary educational or training opportunities; an objective assessment of the academic and skill levels and service needs of each participant; service strategies that identify the employment goal; adult mentoring; the integration of academic, occupational and work-based learning opportunities; comprehensive guidance and counseling; and the involvement of employers and parents in the design and implementation of such programs.

The Senate amendment requires youth activities to include a summer jobs program; tutoring and instruction leading to the completion of secondary school; dropout prevention; and alternative secondary school for out-of-school youth in addition to employment skills training.

The Conference agreement program requirements for youth activities follow the House bill and Senate amendment. Program elements shall consist of tutoring, study skills training, and instruction leading to completion of secondary school (including dropout prevention strategies) alternative secondary school services; summer employment opportunities directly linked to academic and occupational learning; paid and unpaid work experiences as appropriate (including internships and job shadowing); occupational skill training; leadership development opportunities; supportive services; adult mentoring; follow-up services; and comprehensive guidance and counseling (which may include drug and alcohol abuse counseling and referral). Additionally, at least 30 percent of youth funds must be used to provide services to out-of-school youth.

Youth opportunity grants

The House bill authorizes, as a demonstration activity, projects that assist in providing comprehensive services to increase the employment rates of out-of-school youth residing in targeted high-poverty areas within Empowerment Zones and Enterprise Communities. In addition, the House bill reserves 10 percent of youth funds at the State level to be used for out-of-school youth projects in high-poverty areas.

The Senate amendment reserves amounts appropriated for youth in excess of $1 billion (up to $250 million) for Youth Opportunity grants, which the Secretary may provide to assist youth in high-poverty areas located in Empowerment Zones/Enterprise Communities, high-poverty areas located on Indian reservations, or other high-poverty areas designated by the States.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

ADULT AND DISLOCATED WORKER EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING ACTIVITIES

Authorization/State allotments

The House bill establishes a single delivery system for all adults and dislocated workers while maintaining separate funding streams for each. For the Adult funding, .25 percent is reserved for outlying areas. The remaining 99.75 percent is allotted to States under a formula based on ⅓ unemployed individuals in areas of substantial unemployment, ⅓ excess number of unemployed individuals and ⅓ economically disadvantaged adults. No State is allowed to receive less than 90 percent or more than 130 percent of the amount they received in the preceding fiscal year. A minimum allotment of .25 percent applies for small states.

For dislocated workers, the House bill allots 80 percent to States, first reserving .25 percent for outlying areas, under a formula based on ⅓ unemployed individuals in areas of substantial unemployment, ⅓ excess number of unemployment individuals, and ⅓ long-term unemployment. No State is allowed to receive less than 90 percent or more than 130 percent of the amount they received in the preceding fiscal year. A minimum allotment of .25 percent applies for small states. The Department of Labor reserves the remaining 20 percent for skill upgrading and emergency grants.

The Senate amendment reserves .25 percent for outlying areas for adult activities. The remaining 99.75 percent is disbursed to States under a formula based on ⅓ unemployed individuals in areas of substantial unemployment, ⅓ excess number of unemployed individuals, and ⅓ disadvantaged adults. No State is allowed to receive less than 90 percent or more than 130 percent of the amount they received in the preceding fiscal year. A minimum allotment of .40 percent applies for small states.

For dislocated workers, States receive 80 percent of funds disbursed under a formula based on ⅓ unemployed individuals in areas of substantial unemployment, ⅓ excess unemployed individuals and ⅓ long-term (15 weeks or more) unemployment. The Department of Labor is allowed to reserve 20 percent of the amount available for allotment to States for outlying areas, dislocated worker demonstration projects, emergency grants, and dislocated worker activities technical assistance.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment except that the Conference agreement holds all States harmless at 100 percent of their FY 1998 funding allotments. A small State minimum of .3 percent would apply, as long as States receive their FY 1998 allotted levels. For new funds in excess of the FY 1998 funding levels, a .4 percent small State minimum would apply. However, "small States" are limited to those defined as "small States" under JTPA.

Within State allocations

The House bill separately allocates funds to local workforce development areas for both adult and dislocated worker funding streams based upon State-determined formulas. Under the Adult funding stream, 15 percent of funds would be held at the State level for adult activities only. The remaining 85 percent of funds would go to the local level. Of that amount, 70 percent or more would be disbursed based on a formula based on ⅓ unemployed, ⅓ excess unemployed and ⅓ economically disadvantaged adults. The remaining 30 percent, or less, would be disbursed by a method determined through the State collaborative process. The House bill includes a cap of 10 percent for local administration. Additionally, 20 percent of funds may be transferred between the adult and dislocated workers streams with approval of the Governor.

For dislocated workers, the House bill allows the State to reserve up to 30 percent for dislocated worker activities. The remaining 70 percent, or more, would be driven to the local level. Of that amount, 70 percent would be disbursed based on a formula of ⅓ unemployed, ⅓ excess unemployed, and ⅓ economically disadvantaged adults. The remaining 30 percent, or less, would be disbursed by a method determined through the State collaborative process.

The Senate amendment sends 85 percent of adult State grant funds to the local level in one of two ways that the State determines. Either all 85 percent of the funds are driven to the local level through a formula based on ⅓ unemployed individuals in areas of substantial unemployment (greater than 6.5 percent), ⅓ excess number of unemployed individuals, and ⅓ disadvantaged adults (min. 90%); or States can choose to send 70 percent, or more, of those funds through the above formula with up to the remaining 30 percent being disbursed through a formula incorporating other factors relating to excess proverty and employment. This optional formula would be developed through the Statewide partnership and approved by the Secretary. The remaining 15 percent is reserved for Statewide activities.

For dislocated workers, the Senate amendments sends 60 percent of State grant funds to the local level under a formula determined by the Governor to be based on: (1) insured unemployment data, (2) unemployment concentrations, (3) plant closings and mass layoff data, (4) declining industries data, (5) farmer-rancher economic hardship data, and (6) long-term unemployment data. Twenty-five percent of the State grant is to be used for rapid response activities. The remaining 15 percent is reserved for Statewide activities. The Senate amendment allows a 20 percent transfer, at the local level, between the Adult and Dislocated Worker funding streams.

Additionally, the Senate amendment allows States to reserve not more than 15 percent from each of the three funding streams (adult, dislocated and youth) for statewide activities, with no more than 5 percent of that amount being used for administration. Funds from all three funding streams reserved for statewide activities and administrative would be pooled at the State level, with Statewide activities benefiting adults, dislocated workers and youth.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment except that consideration of rural, urban and suburban areas is included in the factors relating to excess poverty and employment used in the alternative formula.

Use of funds

In the House bill, services available to adults and dislocated workers and the local level include core services and training services. Training services include basic skills training; occupational skills training; on-the-job training; customized training; programs that combine workplace training with related instruction, which may include cooperative education programs; private sector operated training programs; skill upgrading and retraining; entrepreneurial training; employability training; and customized training conducted with a commitment by an employer to employ an individual upon successful completion of the training. Additionally, participants unable to obtain employment through the core services may receive intensive services. (Intensive services include specialized assessments; individuals counseling and career planning; case management; and follow-up services.)

In the Senate amendment, services available to adults and dislocated workers at the local level include employment skills training; on-the-job training; job readiness training; adult education when combined with one of the other training activities; and other services deemed appropriate by the local partnership. Additionally, core services are provided through the one-stop customer service system. The Senate amendment provides no distinction for intensive services.

The Conference agreement generally follows the House bill including distinguishing intensive services from other types of services provided.

Rapid response activities

The House bill requires rapid response assistance to be provided by the State through an entity designated by the State. The House bill generally follows current law with respect to the activities under rapid response.

The Senate amendment generally follows the House bill with respect to rapid response.

The Conference agreement follows House and Senate provisions.

Individual training accounts

The House bill requires, for adult training, the use of career grants, which are defined as a voucher or credit, through which a participant chooses training among qualified providers. The House bill specifies four exceptions where training may be provided by contract in lieu of career grants: (1) on-the-job training; (2) where there are an insufficient number of qualified providers; (3) where qualified providers are unable to provide effective services to special populations; or (4) where training is to be provided by community-based organizations. Even where there are exceptions, it is required that participants be provided customer choice to the extent possible.

The Senate amendment contains provisions similar to the House bill regarding requirements for customer choice, except the term "Individual Training Account" is used in lieu of career grant. The two exceptions allow the use of contracting for training services are (1) on-the-job training; and (2) where the Governor issues a written waiver based on evidence that there are no available private or public providers.

The Conference agreement includes Individual Training Accounts (ITAs). The Conference agreement makes an exception to the use of Individual Training Accounts for on-the-job training; customized training; training services not provided by an eligible provider within the local workforce investment area; and training services offered by community-based organizations or other private organizations that serve "special participant populations", defined as those who face multiple barriers to employment (including individuals with substantial language or cultural barriers, offenders, or homeless).

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Performance accountability system

The House bill establishes indicators of performance for all adult, dislocated workers, and youth programs to be applied to States as well as local areas. There are six core indicators relating to adult and dislocated worker programs, and four core indicators relating to the youth program. The Secretary of Labor is required to negotiate the expected levels of performance for each indicator with each State. States then negotiate expected levels of performance with each local area. Negotiations are to take into account special economic and demographic factors. Technical assistance, sanctions, and incentive funds are tied to actual performance.

The Senate amendment is similar to current law and establishes four core indicators of performance that apply to States and local areas. Indicators of performance apply separately to dislocated workers, economically disadvantaged adults, and youth. Additionally, the Senate amendment specifies performance-related information that is to be reported annually.

The Conference agreement generally follows the House bill and Senate amendment. The Conference agreement establishes four core indicators of performance relating to adults and dislocated workers and three core indicators of performance relating to activities for eligible youth. The process for negotiating expected levels of performance is similar to the process outlined in the House bill. States failing to meet expected performance levels after one year may request technical assistance or assistance in the development of a performance improvement plan. For States failing to meet expected performance levels for two consecutive years, the Secretary may reduce the amount of that State's grant by up to 5 percent. Funds resulting from such a reduction are to be used to provide financial incentives for States exceeding expected levels of performance.

JOB CORPS

The House bill retains Job Corps as a national program, but raises the minimum age to 16. The Secretary is required to consult with States and localities prior to establishing procedures for selecting center operators. As part of the selection process, applicants would need to pass a background check. Selection would be based, in part, on previous performance. The House bill outlines some procedures regarding the closure of centers, as well as provisions regarding the "zero tolerance" policy.

The Senate amendment strengthens linkages among Job Corps centers and the State workforce development systems and the local communities in which they are located. Assures that applicants are assigned to Job Corps centers nearest to where they reside, with certain exceptions. The Senate amendment also assures that Job Corps students would learn occupational skills in demand in their "home" labor market areas. Job Corps Center performance standards would be established for placement, retention, earning and skill gains of graduates, and students would be provided with follow-up counseling for up to 12 months after graduation.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment.

NATIONAL PROGRAMS

Native American programs

The House bill generally follows current law and authorizes programs for Native Americans which can include comprehensive workforce and career development activities and supplemental services.

The Senate amendment generally follows the House bill, with the exception that it maintains the Native American Employment and Training Council from current law.

The Conference agreement generally follows the House and Senate provisions.

Migrant and seasonal farmworker programs

The House bill authorizes a program for migrant and seasonal farmworkers from current law which is authorized to provide comprehensive workforce and career development activities and related services which may include employment, training, educational assistance, literacy assistance, an English literacy program, worker safety training, housing, supportive services, and the continuation of the case management database.

The Senate amendment generally follows the House bill except that it authorizes additional activities, includes dropout prevention activities, follow-up services for employed individuals, self-employment and related business enterprise development education, and technical assistance relating to capacity enhancement. The Senate amendment does not include the provision of housing as an authorized activity.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with the exception that the provision of housing remains as an authorized activity.

Veterans

The House bill retains the current law which authorizes the Secretary of Labor to conduct programs to meet the needs of "Vietnam era veterans" as well as veterans with service-connected disabilities, and veterans who are recently separated from military service.

The Senate amendment broadens the eligibility provision to add veterans with significant barriers to employment and veterans who served on active duty during war or campaign for which badges have been authorized.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Demonstration, pilot, multiservice, research, multistate projects and evaluations

The House bill contains provisions relating to technical assistance, national partnership grants, research, pilots and demonstration grants, and evaluations, that are similar to current law.

The Senate amendment requires the Secretary to develop a strategic plan for setting priorities for demonstrations, pilots, multiservice, research, multistate projects. Requires grants and contracts, under this section, to be awarded through a peer review process for awards over $100,000. Dislocated worker projects are separately authorized; not more than 10 percent of dislocated worker funds reserved for the national emergency grants may be used for such projects.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment with the exception that the peer review process applies only to applications for awards in excess of $500,000.

National emergency grants

The House bill makes National Emergency Grants available to provide assistance to dislocated workers.

The Senate amendment expands eligibility for services under the Emergency Grants to include, in addition to dislocated workers, members of the armed forces and certain defense employees that are eligible for services under the current Defense Diversification Program.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

Civil rights/Labor standards

The House bill generally incorporates the current law provisions for nondiscrimination; and provisions relating to wages, benefits, health and safety, non-displacement, and grievance procedures.

The Senate amendment also generally incorporates the current law provisions but adds title IX exemptions to the prohibition on sex discrimination and modifies the religious facility exemption consistent with the National and Community Service Act regulations. The Senate amendment also similarly incorporates many of the labor standards from current law.

The Conference agreement generally follows the House and Senate provisions.

Waivers

The House bill includes authority for the Secretary to waive any statutory or regulatory requirements of the adult and youth training provisions of the Act and Wagner-Peyser, with exceptions for labor standards, nondiscrimination, and related provisions.

The Senate amendment clarifies that waivers previously granted to States may continue to be in effect under this Act for the duration of the waiver. Additionally, the Senate amendment includes provisions similar to the House bill with respect to general waivers of statutory or regulatory requirements. The Senate amendment also authorizes workforce flexibility plans to allow States to submit to the Secretary plans under which the State may provide waivers to local areas.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment except for striking all references to "partnership".

Drug testing provision

The House bill has no provision.

The Senate amendment requires each eligible provider of training services to administer a drug test (1) on a random basis to individuals who apply to participate in training services, and (2) to participants in training where there is a reasonable suspicion of drug use. Each applicant must agree to submit to such tests and be dismissed from participation if they fail the test.

The Conference agreement strikes the Senate provision and replaces it with language to clarify that States shall not be prohibited from testing job training participants for the use of controlled substances. The Conference agreement stipulates that States may sanction individuals who test positive, as follows: 1) a six month ban from the program for the first positive test; and 2) similar to the Senate amendment, a 2-year ban from the program for subsequent positive tests. Additionally, if States use funds from this Act for such testing, the Conference agreement stipulates that such funds must come from State administrative expenses, which are limited to 5 percent of the total State training allotment.

REPEALERS

The House bill repeals Parts F, G, H, I, and J of title IV of the Job Training Partnership Act; title V of the Job Training Partnership Act; the National Literacy Act of 1991; and sections 303, 304, 305, and 306 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

The Senate amendment repeals the Adult Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1201); Section 204 of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 (8 U.S.C. 1255a note); title II of Public Law 95–250 (92 Stat. 172); the Displaced Homemakers Self-Sufficiency Assistance Act (29 U.S.C. 2301 et seq.); Section 211 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 (40 U.S.C. App. 211); subtitle C of title VII of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11441 et seq.) except section 738 of such title (42 U.S.C. 11448); subchapter I of chapter 421 of title 49, United States Code; the Job Training Partnership Act (29 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.); title VII of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11421 et seq.), except subtitle B and section 738 of such title (42 U.S.C. 11431 et seq. and 11448).

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment.

TITLE II—ADULT EDUCATION AND FAMILY LITERACY PROGRAMS

Title

The House bill names this Act the "Adult Education and Family Literacy Act".

The Senate amendment names this Act the "Adult Education and Literacy Act".

The Conference agreement adopts the House title.

Purpose

The purpose of the House bill is to assist the States to provide educational skills for adults necessary for employment and self-sufficiency, as well as the skills necessary for the educational development of their children.

The purpose of the Senate amendment is to assist the States to provide education and literacy services to adults to enable them to become literate, complete a secondary education, and obtain the education skills necessary for the educational development of their children.

The Conference agreement blends the purposes in the House and Senate bills. It provides that the purpose is to assist adults to become literate and obtain the knowledge and skills necessary for employment and self-sufficiency, assist adults who are parents to obtain the educational skills necessary to become full partners in the educational development of their children and assist adults in the completion of a secondary school education.

Allocation of funds to eligible agencies

The House bill provides an initial allotment of $100,000 for each outlying area and $250,000 for each eligible agency. The additional allotment would be distributed on the basis of a population age 16 through 60, who are without a high school diploma or the equivalent, who are not currently required to be enrolled in school, and who are not currently enrolled in secondary school. No eligible agency allotment would be less than 90 percent of its allotment in the preceding year.

The Senate amendment provides for initial allotments identical to those in the House bill. Remaining funds are to be distributed on the basis of population age 16 and over, who are without a high school diploma, or the equivalent, who are not currently required to be enrolled in school, and who are not currently enrolled in secondary school.

The Conference agreement adopts the House provisions.

Eligible recipients

The House bill specifies those entities eligible to receive grants from the eligible agency. Grants are to be made on a competitive basis and all eligible entities are to have direct and equitable access to funds.

The Senate amendment also specifies those entities eligible to receive grants from the eligible agency and includes language regarding direct and equitable access.

The Conference agreement blends the two lists and specifies the following as entities eligible to receive grants from the eligible agency: a local educational agency; a community-based organization of demonstrated effectiveness; an institution of higher education; volunteer literacy organizations of demonstrated effectiveness; a public or private nonprofit agency; other nonprofit institutions which have an ability to provide literacy services to adults and families; a library; public housing authorities; and a consortium of such agencies; organizations or institutions. The agreement adopts the House language requiring grants to be made on a competitive basis and includes language regarding direct and equitable access to eligible providers, including the use of the same announcement and application process.

Use of funds by eligible agency

The House bill provides that the eligible agency responsible for the administration of adult education and literacy programs would be authorized to spend funds directly for both program administration and other permissible activities. Other uses of eligible agency funds would include: professional development programs; technical assistance; State or regional literacy resource centers; monitoring and evaluation; incentives for coordination and performance awards, curriculum development; other Statewide activities for adult education and literacy; and support services such as transportation and child care. The House bill would require eligible agencies to use not less than 85 percent of available funds for local grants and allows them to reserve not more than 15 percent for State level activities, of which no more than 5 percent or $50,000 could be used for administrative expenses.

The Senate amendment provides that the eligible agency responsible for the administration of adult education and literacy programs which be authorized to spend funds directly for program administration, State leadership activities, and programs for corrections education and other institutionalized persons. State leadership activities would include: professional development, curriculum development, monitoring and evaluation, development of performance measures, integration of literacy instruction with occupational skill training, developing linkages with postsecondary institutions, State or regional literacy resource centers, and other Statewide activities for adult education and literacy. The Senate would require eligible agencies to use not less than 80 percent of available funds for local grants and allows States to use not more than 20 percent for State leadership activities, of which no more than 5 percent of $80,000 could be used for administrative expenses. Of the 80 percent reserved for local grants, the Senate amendment requires that eligible agencies make available not more than 10 percent of the funds reserved for grants to local providers for programs for corrections education and other institutionalized individuals.

The Conference agreement blends the two lists of activities and would include: the establishment or operation of professional development programs to improve the quality of instruction; the provision of technical assistance to eligible providers; the provision of technology assistance, including staff training, to eligible providers; support of State or regional networks of literacy resource centers; monitoring and evaluation of the quality of and the improvement in, activities and services authorized under this section; developing and disseminating curricula; integration of literacy instruction and occupational skill training and promoting linkages with employers; linkages with postsecondary institutions; incentives for coordination and performance awards; other activities of Statewide significance, and coordination with existing support services designed to increase enrollment in, and successful completion of, adult education and literacy activities. It requires eligible agencies to collaborate where possible and avoid duplicating efforts in order to maximize the impact of activities carried out under this Act. The agreement would require eligible agencies to use not less than 82.5 percent of available funds for local grants, and allow eligible agencies to use not more than 12.5 percent for State leadership activities and not more than 5 percent or $65,000 for administrative expenses. The agreement adopts the Senate reservation for corrections education but modifies the program description to encourage dollars to be spent on criminal offenders who will be released within five years and to change the reference to bilingual programs to English literacy programs.

Priorities and preferences

The House bill requires eligible agencies to consider a variety of factors in awarding grants to local providers.

The Senate amendment sets forth a list of priorities and preferences eligible agencies are to consider in funding local adult education and literacy activities.

The Conference agreement merges the two provisions and requires the following factors to be considered when awarding grants to provide: whether or not they are based on sound research; the past effectiveness of the provider in improving the literacy skills of adults and families; the commitment of the provider to serve those most in need of services; whether or not the program is of sufficient intensity and duration for participants to achieve substantial learning gains, and whether the program effectively employs technology, provides learning in real-life contexts, is staffed by well trained personnel, is coordinated with other available resources, maintains a high-quality information management system, funds communities that have a demonstrated need for English literacy programs, and establishes measurable goals for client outcomes.

Use of funds by eligible recipients

The House bill requires eligible recipients receiving a grant to conduct one of the following activities: adult education and literacy services, including services provided on a work site; family services, and English literacy programs. It limits to 5 percent the amount of the grant available for planning, administration, personnel development and interagency coordination.

The Senate amendment requires grants and contracts to eligible recipients to be used for programs or services that meet the purposes of the Adult Education and Literacy Act, such as adult education and literacy services and English literacy programs. It limits to 5 percent the amount recipients could use for planning, administration, personnel development and interagency coordination.

The Conference agreement adopts the House language but modifies it slightly to specifically reference workplace literacy services. Adoption of the House language would, for the first time, specifically allow the use of funds for family literacy programs.

Eligible agency fiscal requirements

The House bill requires eligible agencies to use their federal grants to supplement and not supplant other public funds spent for adult education and literacy activities. It requires the fiscal effort per student or the aggregate expenditures for adult education and literacy activities within the State to be maintained at a level not less than 90 percent of the previous year. Grants to eligible agencies would be reduced in proportion to the amount the eligible agency failed to meet this requirement. One quarter of the federal grant to each eligible agency would be required to be matched with non-federal funds used for adult education and literacy activities.

The Senate amendment contains similar supplement, not supplant language. It requires aggregate expenditures for adult education and literacy to be maintained at a level not less than 90 percent of the previous year but would not permit grants to any eligible agency failing to reach that level. The Senate amendment requires eligible agencies to provide an amount equal to 25 percent of the total amount of funds expended for adult education in the State from non-federal sources. The Senate amendment allows that eligible agency's share to be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated.

The Conference agreement adopts the House language on maintenance of effort but amends it to prevent an eligible agency reduction from bringing the per capita expenditure below the national average. The House recedes to the Senate language on supplement not supplant and the State share.

Eligible agency plan requirements

The House bill requires the eligible agency plan to include assurances for the coordination of adult education and job training programs within the State, describe the assessment to determine adult education needs, the use of funds, and an evaluation of program effectiveness. It would also provide assurances concerning direct and equitable access to all eligible recipients and an assurance regarding fiscal requirements of the program. Finally, it requires an assurance that at least one grant will be awarded to providers who offer flexible schedules and necessary support services to enable individuals to participate in adult education and literacy activities.

The Senate amendment would require eligible agencies to submit plans for a 3-year period. Such plans are to include an assessment to determine adult education needs and descriptions of the use of funds, evaluation procedures, the method of selecting local recipients, the measures to be taken to coordinate and avoid duplication of services among various federal education, training and human services programs, a description of the process to be used for public participation and comment with respect to the eligible agency plan and a description of how the eligible agency will develop program strategies for populations such as low-income students, individuals with disabilities, single parents, etc. Each plan would have to provide assurances regarding the fiscal requirements of the program.

The Conference agreement blends the provisions of the House and Senate bills. It adopts language requiring the submission of a 5-year plan. Plan components would include an assessment to determine adult education needs, a description of the use of funds, evaluation procedures, a description of how the eligible agency will develop program strategies for populations such as low-income students, individuals with disabilities, single parents, etc., assurances for the coordination of adult education and job training programs within the State. It adopts House language requiring an assurance that at least one grant will be awarded to providers who offer flexible schedules and necessary support services to enable individuals to participate in adult education and literacy activities except that it is amended to require that an effort be made to coordinate funds for support services prior to paying for them with adult education dollars.

It would also provide assurances concerning direct and equitable access to all eligible recipients and an assurance regarding fiscal requirements of the program. The eligible agency plan would also be required to describe the process used for public participation and comment consistent with the Senate amendment.

Use of phonics

The House bill contains numerous references to the use of instructional practices using phonemic awareness and systematic phonics.

The Senate amendment does not contain similar references.

The Conference agreement adopts the House language but amends such references to include fluency and reading comprehension as well.

National Institute for Literacy

The House bill continues the National Institute for Literacy for purposes of providing national literacy leadership, coordinating literacy services, and serving as a national resource for adult education and family literacy by disseminating information and supporting more effective services. Activities are similar to current law but place an emphasis on support for a national electronic database of information and for a network of State or regional adult literacy resource centers. The administrative structure would remain the same, except that the name of the National Institute Board would be changed to the National Institute for Literacy Advisory Board. The House bill requires the Secretary to reserve 1.5 percent of the amount appropriated, but not more than $6,500,000, for the Institute.

The Senate amendment contains provisions similar to those in the House bill but does not cap funding for the Institute.

The Conference agreement would continue the National Institute for Literacy based on provisions in the House and Senate bills. There are few changes from current law. The Conferees are especially interested in the Institute taking a leadership role in improving reading instruction for youth and adults based on recent research supported by the National Institute for Health and identified by the National Academy of Sciences. The agreement requires the Secretary to reserve 1.5 percent of the amount appropriated, but not more than $8,000,000, for the Institute.

National activities—Department of Education

The House bill would authorize the Secretary to carry out national activities to enhance the quality of adult education and family literacy nationwide, including technical assistance to States for developing and using performance measures, research on adult education methods and effectiveness, evaluation and assessment, and demonstration programs. The House bill would reserve 1.5 percent of the amount appropriated, but not more than $6,500,000 to establish and carry out national leadership and evaluation activities.

The Senate amendment would authorize the Secretary to carry out national leadership and evaluation activities to enhance the quality of adult education and literacy nationwide, including research, demonstration, dissemination, evaluations and assessments, capacity building at the State and local levels, data collection, professional development and technical assistance. The Senate amendment would reserve 1.5 percent of the amount appropriated for national leadership and evaluation activities, but does not cap the amount available.

The Conference agreement blends the House and Senate National leadership activities. Authorized activities would include: technical assistance, dissemination of information on successful practices, improving the quality of adult education and literacy activities, research, demonstration programs, carrying out an independent evaluation and assessment of adult education and literacy activities, support efforts aimed at capacity building, collecting data and other activities to enhance the quality of adult education and literacy nationwide. The agreement requires the Secretary to reserve 1.5 percent of the amount appropriated, but not more than $8,000,000, for national leadership and evaluation activities.

Accountability

The House will requires eligible agencies receiving funds under the Adult Education title to identify, in their plan, indicators and related levels of performance to be used to measure the State's progress in meeting the State's long-term goals. Upon submission of the plan, the Secretary of Education is authorized to negotiate with each eligible agency, the expected levels of performance to be achieved.

The core indicators of performance for adult education and family literacy programs to include measures of achievement in the areas of reading, writing, language acquisition, problem solving, etc.; receipt of a high school diploma or its equivalent; entry into a postsecondary school, job retraining program, employment or career advancement; attainment of the literacy skills and knowledge individuals need to be productive and responsible citizens and become more actively involved with the education of their children, and such other measures as the eligible agency may wish to collect.

Eligible agencies that exceed the benchmarks or demonstrate continuing progress toward meeting them are eligible to receive incentive grant funds.

The Senate amendment contains a similar list of performance measures, including demonstrated improvements in literacy skill levels; attainment of secondary school diplomas or their equivalent, and placement in, retention in, or completion of postsecondary education, training, or unsubsidized employment.

The Conference agreement follows the House bill, although it uses the term "performance measures" instead of "benchmarks." It merges the two lists of specific indicators, except that language referring to the literacy skills and knowledge individuals need to be productive and responsible citizens is dropped and "measures of the success of family literacy programs" is listed among the other measures eligible agencies may wish to collect.

TITLE III—WORKFORCE INVESTMENT-RELATED ACTIVITIES

WAGNER-PEYSER ACT

Amendments to Wagner-Peyser

The House bill retains a separate authorization and funding stream for Wagner-Peyser. It requires public labor exchange activities to be part of the one-stop system, integrates the Wagner-Peyser plan into the State Workforce Development plan, and amends several sections of the Wagner-Peyser Act.

The Senate amendment also retains a separate authorization and funding stream for Wagner-Peyser and integrates the labor exchange activities and plan into the workforce development system.

The Conference agreement generally follows the House bill and Senate amendment. The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with respect to function of the Secretary and approval of the plan.

Employment statistics

The House bill retains the current labor market information provisions under JTPA.

The Senate amendment streamlines current provisions related to labor market statistics (LMI), strengthening the role of States and localities, and makes such information beneficial to individuals seeking employment.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment except it renames the section as "Employment Statistics".

21st Century Workforce Commission

The House bill contains no provision.

The Senate amendment establishes the 21st Century Workforce Commission to conduct a study of all matters relating to the information technology workforce in the United States. Composed of 21 members, the Commission is required to submit to the President and Congress their report within 6 months of their first meeting, and terminate within 90 days of that submission.

The Conference Agreement generally follows the Senate amendment with modifications to limit the number of Commission members to 15 (8 business, 1 labor, 2 State and local officials, 3 education, and 1 representing the research community in the field of information technology). The Secretaries of Education and Labor would be exofficio members of the Commission.

Prohibitions

The House bills includes provisions that no provisions under this Act may be construed to exercise any direction, supervision, or control over the curriculum, program of instruction, administration, or personnel of any educational institution, school, or school system. The House bill further includes a provision clarifying that nothing in this Act shall be construed to provide a local workforce investment board with the authority to mandate curricula for schools.

The Senate agreement includes a prohibition that none of the funds under the Act may be used for activities authorized under the School to Work Opportunities Act. The Senate bill also includes a provision clarifying that no funds under this Act may be use to provide an activity for eligible youth who are not school dropouts if participation in the activity would interfere with or replace the regular academic requirements of the youth.

The Conference agreement generally contains both the House and Senate provisions. Specifically the Conference agreement includes language that "None of the funds made available under this Act may be used to provide funding under the School-to-Work Opportunities Act of 1994 or to carry out, through programs funded under this Act, activities that were funded under the School-to-Work Opportunities Act of 1994, unless the programs funded under this Act serve only those participants eligible to participate in the programs under this Act."

TITLE IV—REHABILITATION ACT AMENDMENTS OF 1998

General Provisions

The House bill addresses several definitions including administrative costs, employment outcome, and public safety officer.

The Senate amendment addresses each definition considered by the House and several more definitions including: assessment for determining eligibility and vocational rehabilitation needs, construction, extended services, federal share, independent living core services and independent living services, individual with a disability, individual with a most significant disability, individual's representative/applicant's representative, local workforce investment board, the term "requires vocational rehabilitation services", significant disability, statewide workforce investment board, supported employment, supported employment services, underemployed, and workforce investment activities.

The Conference agreement accents the Senate amendment on a majority of definitions with the following few exceptions or qualifications: 1) "administrative costs" will be the definition in the current Department of Education regulations; 2) "construction" remains unchanged from current law; 3) "individual's representative/applicant's representative" does not include the descriptor 'advocate'; 4) the term "requires vocational rehabilitation services" is deleted; and 5) the definition of the term "underemployed" is eliminated. Those definitions relating back to other titles of the Workforce Investment Act mirror the meanings and definitions given them in those titles.

Reports on Program Outcomes and Evaluations

The House bill requires that the annual report on vocational rehabilitation include data on the administrative costs for the Title I program.

The Senate amendment expands the performance and accountability information that is collected and reported on the vocational rehabilitation programs. The Senate amendment also requires the Commissioner to conduct studies and make analyses to identify exemplary practices in vocational rehabilitation. These studies would focus on subjects such as informed client choice, customer satisfaction, job placement and retention, assistive technology, and integrated employment.

The Conference agreement includes the requirement for reporting administrative costs contained in the House bill as well as the additional reporting requirement in the Senate amendment. The Conferees urge the Commissioner to direct current evaluation activities on identifying what works well, rather than continuing to seek to define, or in many cases, redefine, the chronic problems connected to the employment of individuals with disabilities.

Vocational Rehabilitation Services

Statewideness

The House bill clarifies that the requirement for the State plan to be in effect in all political subdivisions of the State does not apply to cases in which private earmarked funds are used as state matching funds for particular geographic regions of the State, and is permitted without a waiver by the Commissioner.

The Senate amendment makes no change to current law.

The Conference agreement follows the clarifications in the House bill. These clarifications are necessary in light of recent Department of Education interpretations of these statutory provisions that are contrary to the legislative intent. The Conference agreement provides that earmarking of private funds for service delivery in particular geographic areas of the State is permitted without a waiver of the State's statewideness obligations by the Commissioner if State funds are unavailable for the Federal match. This exception to the statewideness requirements in section 101 (a)(4)(B) is intended to allow States to use funds earmarked for a particular geographic location within the State as part of the State's non-Federal share under title I without obtaining a waiver of Statewideness from the Commissioner.

In making these changes, the Conferees reaffirm the original purposes of the statewideness provisions and the earmarked funds exception of Title I. The statewideness provision is intended to ensure that, in general, State efforts are not purposely skewed to particular areas of a State, without approval from the Department of Education.

Information for Individuals Not Covered Under the State's Order of Selection Criteria

The House bill makes no change to current law.

The Senate amendment requires that all individuals eligible for vocational rehabilitation services, including those who do not receive services because the State is under an order of selection, receive at least information and referral services regarding access to the State workforce development system and other information to help the individual prepare for, secure, retain, or regain a job. A State may also provide additional counseling and guidance services.

The Conference agreement deletes the allowable State activities (but maintains the authority to provide additional counseling and guidance services), expands the required information and referral services to include guidance, and specifies what a proper referral must be. The Conferees intend to alleviate the backlog of eligible individuals who do not receive services from the State vocational rehabilitation program because they do not meet the State's order of selection criteria. Many of these individuals do not receive services from the State workforce system and are inappropriately referred back to the State vocational rehabilitation program because they have a disability. The Conferees expect that through the changes made throughout the Conference agreement in integrating the State workforce system, States will serve individuals with disabilities throughout the entire State workforce system, not only through State vocational rehabilitation program.

Comprehensive System of Personnel Training

The House bill modifies the requirements in current law for a comprehensive personnel development system.

The Senate amendment adopts the majority of changes in the House bill and adds several additional requirements.

The Conference agreement maintains the requirements contained in current law. The Conferees believe that there is a continued need for a comprehensive system of personnel development, which was included in the Rehabilitation Amendments of 1992, in order to ensure that individuals with disabilities receive assistance from qualified vocational rehabilitation personnel.

Interagency agreements

The House bill makes no changes to current law.

The Senate amendment requires a State's Governor to ensure that the State's vocational rehabilitation agency enters into interagency agreements with appropriate public entities, including the State's workforce investment system, to provide vocational rehabilitation services more efficiently and comprehensibly, to ensure cooperation among agencies which provide vocational rehabilitation services, and to ensure no duplication of services. While the Senate amendment does not detail what the agreements must contain or with whom they must be made, it does include requirements that the agreements contain a dispute resolution process and methods for defining financial responsibility.

The Conference agreement modifies the Senate amendment by 1) allowing the State's vocational rehabilitation chief administrator to consult with the Governor regarding the agreements and 2) specifying certain entities with which the State vocational rehabilitation agency must establish agreements. These entities include public institutions of higher education. The Conferees recognize that colleges and universities already have a responsibility to provide certain services under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). The Conferees encourage State vocational rehabilitation agencies and public institutions of higher education, in developing interagency agreements, to consider the requirements of the ADA and other laws as well as agreements that may currently be in place. However, State vocational rehabilitation agencies should not interpret these "interagency agreement" provisions as shifting the obligation for paying for specific vocational rehabilitation services to colleges and universities. State vocational rehabilitation agencies still have that responsibility. Moreover, public institutions of higher education, as parties in interagency agreements, must agree to the terms of the interagency agreements, including the services that they are expected to provide.

Cooperative agreements with other components of State workforce investment system

The House bill makes no changes to current law.

The Senate amendment provides for cooperative agreements with other parts of a

State's workforce investment system to allow for activities such as: staff training and technical assistance regarding vocational rehabilitation services and eligibility, common customer service procedures such as intake and human services hot lines, common dispute resolution procedures, and electronic links to share employment statistics and employment opportunities.

The Conference agreement mirrors the Senate amendment. The Conferees do not intend that this provision be confused with the provision outlining "Interagency Agreements." Interagency agreements are designed to assure cooperation not only among agencies within a State's workforce investment system, but more importantly outside the system. Interagency agreements also have specific provisions regarding the payment of services among these agencies. This section is designed to make the State vocational rehabilitation system more compatible with the State's workforce system and to underscore the links between the two systems.

Coordination with education officials

The House bill changed references in the area of transition services for students with disabilities from Individualized Written Rehabilitation Plan (IWRP) to Individualized Education Program (IEP) so that transition services may be provided under an IEP without requiring the development of a separate IWRP, or Individual Plan for Employment (IPE) as it is referred to in the House bill.

The Senate amendment requires the State plan to contain plans, policies and procedures for coordination between the vocational rehabilitation agency and local and State education officials in facilitating the transition of students with disabilities from secondary school to the workforce through vocational rehabilitation services.

The Conference agreement blends the House and Senate provisions. First, the Conference agreement specifically allows transition planning to be provided under an IEP without requiring the development of a separate IPE. Second, the Conferees also reaffirm the intent of the transition services provisions in the 1992 Vocational Rehabilitation Amendments, which according to the Senate report, was not "to shift the responsibility of service delivery from education to rehabilitation during the transition years" but rather to define the role of the rehabilitation system as "primarily one of planning for the student's years after leaving school." The Conference agreement encourages State vocational rehabilitation agencies to assist schools in identifying transition services in the development of the IEP (including participation in IEP meetings), and to participate in the cost of transition services for any student with a disability so long as those students have been determined eligible to receive vocational rehabilitation services. The nature of these services and the roles and responsibilities of each party are to be determined at the State or local level. However, State vocational rehabilitation agencies should not interpret the "interagency agreement" provisions as shifting the obligation for paying for specific transition services normally provided by those agencies to local school districts. State vocational rehabilitation agencies still have that responsibility. Further, school districts are parties in interagency agreements, and must agree to the terms of the interagency agreements and the services that they are expected to provide.

The Conferees intend for transition services to cover a wide range of activities that facilitate the transition of secondary school students with disabilities from school to post-school activities.

Presumption of eligibility for recipients of SSDI and SSI

The House bill makes no changes to current law.

The Senate amendment adds new language making individuals who receive SSI or SSDI benefits to be automatically eligible for vocational rehabilitation services.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. However, the Conferees do not intend to create any sort of entitlement to vocational rehabilitation services for individuals receiving SSI or SSDI benefits. To actually receive services, a person must have a disability and require vocational rehabilitation services to prepare for, secure, retain, or regain employment. The "presumption of eligibility" is only the first step in the overall evaluation of whether or not an individual with a disability will receive vocational rehabilitation services. People receiving SSI or SSDI have already met a much stricter standard as to whether they have a disability. Therefore there is no need to reestablish their eligibility in that regard for vocational rehabilitation. SSI and SSDI recipients must still, however, demonstrate their desire to work in order to receive vocational rehabilitation services. Moreover, the decision on whether an individual actually receives vocational rehabilitation services is based on the availability of funds in accordance with the State's order of selection criteria.

Individual plans

The House bill renames the Individualized Written Rehabilitation Plan (IWRP) as the Individual Plan for Employment (IPE). The bill enhances client control by requiring that clients have the opportunity to exercise informed choice in the development and implementation of their plans by selecting employment goals, services, providers, and methods to procure services, as well as providing for extended services.

The Senate amendment renames the IWRP as the Individual Rehabilitation Employment Plan (IREP), and follows the House bill in providing for informed client choice and extended services. The Senate amendment also establishes mandatory procedures and components for individual plans.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, except for adopting the House term of Individual Plan for Employment. The Conference agreement reflects the need to provide greater choice and involvement of vocational rehabilitation clients in developing their service plans. The Conferees expect that these changes will fundamentally change the role of the client-counselor relationship, and that in many cases counselors will serve more as facilitators of plan development.

Improved and enhanced consumer choice

The House bill strongly emphasize improved and enhanced consumer choice, especially through new language regarding the vocational rehabilitation consumer's role in his or her Individual Employment Plan.

The Senate amendment also emphasizes improved and enhanced consumer choice and requires assurances that vocational rehabilitation consumers or their appropriate representative be provided information and support services to assist the consumers in exercising informed choice throughout the rehabilitation process.

The Conference agreement adopts these views and expands the role of vocational rehabilitation consumers in the decisions regarding their job training. The Conferees believe that a consumer-driven program is most effective in getting people jobs. Therefore, the Conferees endorse increased independence for individuals with disabilities to informed choice.

State Rehabilitation Council

The House bill makes no changes to current law.

The Senate amendment expands the membership of the Council, increases the responsibilities of the Council, and adds additional functions. The Senate amendment also makes several changes to better integrate and coordinate vocational rehabilitation services in the State Workforce system.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment. In doing so, the Conferees preserve the Council's advisory functions. The Conference agreement adds additional function that follow the Senate amendment in requiring that the Council and State agency jointly develop, agree to, and review State goals and priorities.

American Indian vocational rehabilitation services

The House bill makes no changes to current law.

The Senate amendment gives the Rehabilitation Services Administration the flexibility to make decisions about the duration of individual grants, but also allows for long-term grants that will contribute to the stability and effectiveness of services.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment and adds language giving tribal vocational rehabilitation agencies the authority to provide vocational rehabilitation services to Native Americans who reside either on or near reservations. However, the Conferees do not intend this authority to require tribal vocational rehabilitation agencies to serve Native Americans not living on a reservation. It merely allows the agencies to do so if they choose.

RESEARCH AND TRAINING

Research and training improvements

The House bill eliminates the references to the compensation rate for the Director of the National Institute for Disability and Rehabilitation Research (NIDRR), and eliminates provisions related to the Deputy Director.

The Senate amendment follows the House bill regarding the appointment of the Director but retains references to the Deputy Director; eliminates provisions that requires the awarding of funds for pediatric rehabilitation and other areas, adds provisions that allow research grants to be made for research programs on the effectiveness of medical practices and on quality assurance in rehabilitation technology, and makes other improvements in focusing research funds on critical areas.

The Conference agreement follows the House bill regarding the appointment of the Director and Deputy Director of NIDRR. The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment regarding the elimination of provisions requiring funding for specific projects and in allowing for grants in designated emerging research areas. The Conferees intend that information and findings from work funded by the Institute be effectively disseminated so that it is more accessible to the public, including individuals with disabilities. The Conferees also recognize that individuals with disabilities lack access to uniform, useful information about assistive technology devices and services. The Conferees urge NIDRR to assume a leadership role in promoting the identification, use, and acceptance of uniform information about common devices and services that permit individuals with disabilities to make informed decisions about such devices and services. However, the Conferees believe that it would be inappropriate for NIDRR to contemplate or set standards for such devices and services.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT AND SPECIAL PROJECTS AND DEMONSTRATIONS

Transfer and elimination of programs

The House bill eliminates 22 programs by repealing sections 303 through 306 in Title III of current law and repealing authorized but unfunded programs in Title VIII.

The Senate amendment also repeals sections 303 to 306 in Title III, as well as the currently funded Reader Services and Interpreter Services programs, and all programs in Title VIII.

The Conference agreement consolidates into Title III the currently funded programs authorized under Title VIII. It also retains the currently funded Reader Services and Interpreter Services programs in Title III, and transfers the Grants for Demonstration Projects to Increase Choice, Braille Training Projects and Parent Information and Training Programs from Title VIII to Title III. Title VIII is repealed completely. Many of these programs were authorized for more than twenty years yet were never funded. The changes in the Conference agreement streamline the training and demonstration projects by consolidating them into a single section with flexible authority to address changing and emerging needs.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON DISABILITY

Duties and administration of the National Council on Disability

The House bill makes no changes to current law regarding the National Council on Disability, other than extending the authorization for the Council.

The Senate amendment expands the membership of the Council, modifies the duties of the Council, and makes other changes related to the administration of the Council.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment, but strikes the expansion of duties at the international level.

RIGHTS AND ADVOCACY

Electronic and information technology regulations

The House bill requires that the Director of the Office of Management and Budget establish procedures for each federal agency to provide written certification by September 30 of each year that is in compliance with the accessibility guidelines, and to oversee agencies in complying with the requirements. The House bill, however, makes no changes to the guidelines for electronic and information technology accessibility.

The Senate amendment makes significant changes to current law in the areas of accessibility and electronic and information technology standards. These changes include requiring Federal agencies to procure, maintain, and use electronic and information technology that provides individuals with disabilities with comparable access to what is available to individuals without disabilities. The Senate amendment also requires that the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board with issuing electronic and information technology standards, establishes reporting requirements for Federal agencies, establishes, complaint procedures, and clarifies individual rights of action relative to section 505 of the Act.

The Conference agreement follows the Senate amendment with several changes. The Conference agreement clarifies provisions in order to be consistent with the Clinger-Cohen Act of 1996, clarifies procedures relating to the extent of the Federal government's responsibilities in providing public access to information, and modifies the procedures for filing complaints.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR INDIVIDUALS WITH DISABILITIES

Expanding employment opportunities

The House bill makes no changes to current law.

The Senate amendment emphasizes expanded employment opportunities for individuals with disabilities by authoring funding for two new types of projects: projects in telecommuting and projects in self-employment.

The Conference agreement deletes the authority related to the new projects in the Senate amendment, reflecting the Conferees' intention to streamline and consolidate programs in the Rehabilitation Act. However, the Conferees agree and fully intend that telecommuting and self-employment be viable employment outcomes for recipients of vocational rehabilitation services who want such opportunities. These amendments are supported by amendments to Title I of the Act.

INDEPENDENT LIVING SERVICES AND CENTERS FOR INDEPENDENT LIVING

State Independent Living Councils

The House bill makes no changes to current law.

The Senate amendment adds at least one representatives of the directors of projects serving American Indians with disabilities to the State Independent Living Councils and clarifies the means by which the minimum allotments are adjusted for inflation, and other technical changes.

The Conference agreement adopts the Senate amendments.

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Unified plan

The House bill contains no provision.

The Senate amendment allows States to submit a unified plan to the Secretary to fulfill the State plan requirements of training activities for adults, dislocated workers and youth; adult education; and secondary and postsecondary vocational education.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment with the exception that the State legislature must approve the inclusion of secondary vocational education in the unified plan.

Incentive grants

The House bill authorizes the Secretary of Labor to award incentive grants to States that: (1) exceed levels of performance; (2) demonstrate continuing progress towards exceeding benchmarks; and (3) demonstrate significant progress in the coordination and integration of programs.

The Senate amendment authorizes the Secretary of Labor to award incentive grants to States that exceed the expected levels of performance for performance measures established under the workforce development and adult education titles and vocational education. Special consideration is to be given to States achieving the highest level of performance related to employment retention and earnings. Funds are to be used for innovative projects.

The Conference agreement generally follows the Senate amendment except that States must apply for such incentive grants, and are only eligible to receive incentive grants if they consult with their State legislature in development of their application. The application must have the approval of the Governor, the State agency responsible for adult education, and the State agency responsible for vocational education. Grant funds would be required to be spent to carry out innovative training, adult education, or vocational education programs consistent with the requirements of this Act and the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act accordingly. Applications would be developed with the assistance of the State board.

Authorization of appropriations/Effective date/Transition

The House bill authorizes such sums for five years (FY 1999–FY 2003). The House bill takes effect July 1, 1998. The Secretaries are authorized to take such steps as they determine appropriate to provide for an orderly transition from authorities amended or repealed by the Act.

The Senate amendment authorizes such sums for six years (FY 1999–FY 2004). In general, the Senate amendment takes effect July 1, 1999 (except for the 21st Century Workforce Commission authority which takes effect upon enactment). The Secretary of Labor is authorized to take steps to provide for the orderly transition to the authority of the bill. Additionally, the Governor may use funds made available under any provision of law repealed by the bill to implement the bill prior to its effective date.

The Conference agreement takes effect upon the date of enactment, unless otherwise set forth in the Act and authorizes such sums for five years (FY 1999–FY 2003). The Conference agreement generally follows the House bill and Senate amendment with respect to transition.

REPORT REGARDING ONGOING EFFORTS TO MEET GOALS TOWARD IMPLEMENTATION OF DAYTON ACCORDS—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 105–292)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

Pursuant to section 7 of Public Law 105-174, I am providing this report to inform the Congress of ongoing efforts to meet the goals set forth therein.

With my certification to the Congress of March 3, 1998, I outlined ten conditions—or benchmarks—under which Dayton implementation can continue without the support of a major NATO-led military force. Section 7 of Public Law 105-174 urges that we seek concurrence among NATO allies on: (1) the benchmarks set forth with the March 3 certification; (2) estimated target dates for achieving those benchmarks; and (3) a process for NATO to review progress toward achieving those benchmarks. NATO has agreed to move ahead in all these areas.

First, NATO agreed to benchmarks parallel to ours on May 28 as part of its approval of the Stabilization Force (SFOR) military plan (OPLAN 10407). Furthermore, the OPLAN requires SFOR to develop detailed criteria for each of these benchmarks, to be approved by the North Atlantic Council, which will provide a more specific basis to evaluate progress. SFOR will develop the benchmark criteria in coordination with appropriate international civilian agencies.

Second, with regard to timelines, the United States proposed that NATO military authorities provide an estimate of the time likely to be required for implementation of the military and civilian aspects of the Dayton Agreement based on the benchmark criteria. Allies agreed to this approach on June 10. As SACEUR General Wes Clark testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee June 4, the development and approval of the criteria and estimated target dates should take 2 to 3 months.

Third, with regard to a review process, NATO will continue the 6-month review process that began with the deployment of the Implementation Force (IFOR) in December 1995, incorporating the benchmarks and detailed criteria. The reviews will include an assessment of the security situation, an assessment of compliance by the parties with the Dayton Agreement, an assessment of progress against the benchmark criteria being developed by SFOR, recommendations on any changes in the level of support to civilian agencies, and recommendations on any other changes to the mission and tasks of the force.

While not required under Public Law 105-174, we have sought to further utilize this framework of benchmarks and criteria for Dayton implementation among civilian implementation agencies. The Steering Board of the Peace Implementation Council (PIC) adopted the same framework in its Luxembourg declaration of June 9, 1998. The declaration, which serves as the civilian implementation agenda for the next 6 months, now includes language that corresponds to the benchmarks in the March 3 certification to the Congress and in the SFOR OPLAN. In addition, the PIC Steering Board called on the High Representative to submit a report on the progress made in meeting these goals by mid-September, which will be considered in the NATO 6-month review process.

The benchmark framework, now approved by military and civilian implementers, is clearly a better approach than setting a fixed, arbitrary end date to the mission. This process will produce a clear picture of where intensive efforts will be required to achieve our goal: a self-sustaining peace process in Bosnia and Herzegovina for which a major international military force will no longer be necessary. Experience demonstrates that arbitrary deadlines can prove impossible to meet and tend to encourage those who would wait us out or undermine our credibility. Realistic target dates, combined with concerted use of incentives, leverage and pressure with all the parties, should maintain the sense of urgency necessary to move steadily toward an enduring peace. While the benchmark process will be useful as a tool both to promote and review the pace of Dayton implementation, the estimated target dates established will be notional, and their attainment dependent upon a complex set of interdependent factors.

We will provide a supplemental report once NATO has agreed upon detailed criteria and estimated target dates. The continuing 6-month reviews of the status of implementation will provide a useful opportunity to continue to consult with Congress. These reviews, and any updates to the estimated timelines for implementation, will be provided in subsequent reports submitted pursuant to Public Law 105-174. I look forward to continuing to work with the Congress in pursuing U.S. foreign policy goals in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA FISCAL YEAR 1999 BUDGET REQUEST ACT—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES (H. DOC. NO. 105-294)

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, together with accompanying papers, without objection, referred to the Committee on Appropriations and ordered to be printed.

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with section 202(c) of the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Act of 1995, I am transmitting the District of Columbia's Fiscal Year 1999 Budget Request Act.

This proposed Fiscal Year 1999 Budget represents the major programmatic objectives of the Mayor, the Council of the District of Columbia, and the District of Columbia Financial Responsibility and Management Assistance Authority. It also meets the financial stability and management improvement objectives of the National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act of 1997. For Fiscal Year 1999, the District estimates revenues of $5.230 billion and total expenditures of $5.189 billion resulting in a $41 million budget surplus.

My transmittal of the District of Columbia's budget, as required by law, does not represent an endorsement of its contents.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, July 28, 1998.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 4328, and that I may include tabular and extraneous material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1999

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 510 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 4328.

□ 2303

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 4328) making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes, with Mr. GILLMOR in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO), each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF).

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I will not read the whole statement, but just about two paragraphs to make a couple of points. This is the first transportation appropriations bill since the enactment of the Transportation Equity Act, TEA21, which has made significant effects on the way the committee operates.

For example, TEA21 amended the Budget Enforcement Act to provide two additional spending categories or "firewalls," the highway category and the transit category. These firewalls make it virtually impossible for the committee to make drawdown adjustments to those funding levels in the appropriation process over the next 5 years.

As such, these firewalls create a new mandatory appropriations within the discretionary caps which has undermined the committee's flexibility to fund other equally important programs.

The bill reflects the first attempt to produce a balanced bill in this new environment. The committee was allocated a 7.4 percent increase, or $2.8 billion in outlays for the coming year. However, the increases for the highway and transit programs guaranteed by TEA21 fully consumed the 7.4 percent increase provided to the subcommittee. As a result, the other agencies must compete for the leftover funding, which is essentially at a hard freeze.

Within these constraints, the bill continues to place the highest priority on safety programs and drug interdiction of the Coast Guard. But, as a result of the lack of flexibility available to the committee, and after meeting the highway and transit guarantees, sufficient funding is not available for many critical and important programs of the Coast Guard, FAA, and even NHTSA. While the highway and transit programs are feasting at a banquet, these other agencies are left to scramble for the crumbs.

One other point I want to make, I have told the Commandant of the Coast Guard that should the committee receive any additional allocation, perhaps Defense allocation later on, that we will make every effort to supplement the current funding provided in the bill.

Today the Committee on Appropriations brings to the floor the ninth appropriations bill for fiscal year 1999. H.R. 4328, the fiscal year 1999 Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations bill, totals $46.9 billion. This figure includes all obligation authority (that is to say, new budget authority, guaranteed obligations contained in the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century, limitations on obligations, and exempt obligations). This is an increase of $4.7 billion over the fiscal year 1998 level and $3.9 billion more than the budget request.

This is the first transportation appropriations bill since the enactment of the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA21). TEA21 has had significant effects on the way in which this Committee operates and it has diminished the flexibility available to the Committee. For example, TEA21 amended the Budget Enforcement Act to provide two new additional spending categories or "firewalls"—the highway category and the transit category. These firewalls make it virtually impossible for the Appropriations Committee to make downward adjustments to these funding levels in the appropriations process over the next five years. As such, these firewalls created new mandatory appropriations within the discretionary caps. This has undermined the Committee's flexibility to fund other equally important programs.

This bill reflects the best attempt to produce a balanced bill in this new environment. The subcommittee was allocated a 7.4 percent increase or $2.8 billion in outlays for the coming year. However, the increases for highways and transit programs guaranteed TEA21 fully consume the 7.4 percent increase provided to the Subcommittee. As a result, the other agencies must compete for leftover funding, which is essentially at a hard freeze. Within these constraints, the bill continues to place the highest priority on the department's safety programs and drug interdiction activities of the Coast Guard. But, as a result of lack of flexibility available to this Committee and after meeting the highway and transit guarantees, sufficient funding is not available for many critical and important programs of the Coast Guard, the FAA, and even NHTSA. While the highway and transit programs are feasting at a banquet, these agencies are left to scramble for the crumbs.

Were it not for the firewalls, a portion of the generous 7.4 percent increase or $2.8 billion could have been allocated to improvements in aviation or maritime safety, and more could have done to fight the menace of illegal drug trafficking, while still providing significant increases in highways and transit programs. the bill shies away from funding new authorizations contained in TEA21. The bill also does not contain funding above the guaranteed amounts for the highway and transit programs, as other critical programs, including safety and drug interdiction activities, would have had to have been cut in order to fund the new authorizations and any increases above the guarantee.

Selected major recommendations of the bill include the following:

(1) $7.7 billion for the FAA, an increase of $275 over the 1998 level;

(2) $1.8 for the AIP program, an increase of $100 million;

(3) $2.7 billion for the Coast Guard's operating expenses, including $446 million for drug interdiction activities (an increase of 11 percent);

(4) $609 million for Amtrak, essentially the same level as the Administration's request;

(5) $461 million for NHTSA, the fully authorized level, including $100 million for motor carrier safety grants that are transferred from FHWA;

(6) $25.5 billion for federal-aid highways, as is guaranteed by TEA21; and

(7) $5.4 billion for transit programs, the same level as guaranteed by TEA21.

Returning to the Coast Guard, the bill provides $2.7 billion, essentially a hard freeze. Within these funds, the Committee has increased funds allocated to fight the war on drugs to $446 million, an increase of eleven percent. The previous commandant and many members of the House advocated this increase. Unfortunately, given the tight budgetary caps this year and the firewalls imposed on the Committee, the Committee was unable to provide resources above the overall Coast Guard budget request without unacceptably harming critical safety programs of other DOT agencies. Clearly, the funding levels contained in this bill will require the Coast Guard to prioritize its activities and missions.

I have told the Commandant that should additional budgetary resources be made available to this subcommittee later in the year, the Committee would endeavor to supplement the funding currently provided in the bill.

In addition, the Committee is very concerned about the Coast Guard's ability to address all of its missions adequately in future years, given budget constraints and the effect of the surface transportation firewalls. Although the service has performed admirably over the past four years in reforming and reorganizing itself into a more efficient organization, it is possible that there will still be insufficient funding over the next ten years to enable the Coast Guard to maintain today's level of service. To address this concern, the bill provides $1,000,000 specifically for the establishment of a blue-ribbon panel to study the future capital needs, roles, and missions of the Coast Guard. This panel is to include the secretary of transportation, and current and former commandants of the Coast Guard, and shall address and make recommendations on the best roles and missions of the Coast Guard over the next twenty years, and the capital budget requirements to meet those needs.

With respect to funding for Amtrak, the bill provides $609 million, nearly the same level of funding as requested by the President. In addition to this appropriation, the Taxpayer Relief Act makes available $1.1 billion to Amtrak in fiscal year 1999. Together this is an historic level of funding for the troubled corporation. With the adoption of the new authorization for Amtrak and the availability of the tax credits, the Committee would hope to be optimistic about Amtrak's future. However, the Committee is not convinced that Amtrak's fiscal year 1999 budget proposal provides for the long-term viability and solvency of the Corporation.

To gain a better understanding of Amtrak's financial condition, the Committee contacted the Department of Transportation's Inspector General, the General Accounting Office, and a diverse group of non-federal railroad experts. This group was asked to comment on whether Amtrak continues to operate in a fragile state, as many testified, or if the recent legislative actions have placed the Corporation on a more stable footing. There was a wide divergence of opinions, but everyone expressed some degree of concern about Amtrak's long-term viability. At this point in the record, I would like to insert the responses provided to the Committee. In summary, it appears that the internal changes Amtrak has made, and the external changes provided in the authorization Act and TRA, do not guarantee Amtrak's viability or even disperse the storm clouds which have been looming on Amtrak's horizon for many years.

With respect to bus and new start projects, the Subcommittee received requests totaling nearly $2.8 billion for new start projects and $1.7 billion for bus projects, for which TEA21 allocated $902.8 million and $200 million, respectively. As a result, it was extremely difficult to accommodate all the requests. Here, again, TEA21 significantly affected the way the Subcommittee operated this year. First, TEA21 vastly inflated expectations, authorizing over 170 new start projects, while providing $902.8 million for new starts in fiscal year 1999. After funding the fourteen full funding grant agreements (which, incidentally TEA21 completely ignores) only $224.8 million is available to fund these 170 projects. Moreover, TEA21 imposes a new limitation, which requires that no more than eight percent of funding provided for new starts (or about $70 million) can be allocated for projects that are in preliminary engineering and design (of which there are over 150 such projects in fiscal year 1999). Similarly, with respect to bus earmarks, TEA21 earmarked 150 bus projects, totaling nearly $240 million, more than one-half of the funding made available for buses. This action further reduced the flexibility of the Subcommittee to accommodate all the requests made of the Subcommittee for bus projects.

The Committee has worked closely with the minority and the gentleman from Minnesota, Mr. SABO, to produce a bill that has broad bipartisan support. The bill was reported out of Subcommittee and Full Committee without significant change or amendment. I know of no significant controversy or problems with this bill. Moreover, I am confident that the President would sign this bill if it were presented to him in its current form. I urge its immediate adoption.

Mr. Chairman, I submit the following for the RECORD:

HON. FRANK WOLF,
Chairman, Housing Committee on Appropriations, Subcommittee on Transportation, Washington DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: In your letter of April 28, 1998 you asked me to offer my views on the long term viability of Amtrak and to comment on materials presented at your March 11, 1998 hearings on Amtrak. In a subsequent conversation with Ms. Stephanie Gupta of your staff, she explained that you were aware that I am no longer working with GAO's Transportation Group but that you were interested in my views based on the fact that I have been involved in research on Amtrak and intercity railroad passenger issues since Amtrak was created. My doctoral thesis addressed the economics of intercity rail passenger operations and subsequent studies I conducted for the National Transportation Policy Study Commission, the Northeast Corridor Improvement Project, and the State of Wisconsin assessed Amtrak's potential for contributing to the solution of energy, environmental, and safety problems. Therefore, although I later served as a consultant to the GAO on Amtrak issues and directed some of GAO's studies of Amtrak after I joined that organization, the views expressed here are solely my own and should in no way be considered as representing those of the General Accounting Office.

OVERALL OBSERVATIONS

Perhaps the most striking thing about Amtrak's (and FRA's) testimony is how familiar it all sounds. If one goes back to the testimonies of Tom Downs in the 90s, Graham Claytor in the 80s, or Paul Reistrup in the 70s the refrain is the same. If I may paraphrase:

"Amtrak is turning the corner and is making significant progress through its actions and will be achieving major productivity gains (if it is able to negotiate work rule changes, replace infrastructure, etc). As a result, the Corporation is now well-positioned to reduce its need for federal support."

But the corner never quite gets turned. Amtrak registers progress for a while, but then "events" always seem to overtake it. It can be many things: deferred maintenance of way or delays in modernizing the rolling stock and locomotive fleet cause service deterioration, or the economy sours and ridership forecasts fail to materialize, or wage increases can no longer be postponed—something always happens to reverse or forestall the gains and the Corporation's future again is in peril

Let me begin by saying two things in Amtrak's defense. First, it has presented a more realistic assessment of its current situation and of the risks it faces than it has in the past. The Corporation clearly recognizes the conflicting goals it is being asked to pursue. On page 2 of its Legislative Report and Federal Grant Request Amtrak acknowledges:

If the Corporation focuses too heavily on immediate returns, it risks undermining the ability to deploy its assets in a way that provides a national route system. However, without a balanced approach to infrastructure/capital investment, Amtrak will certainly not achieve operating self-sufficiency by 2002, and may not generate sufficient cash to survive.

In short, Amtrak is saying that it cannot operate a national system of passenger trains and achieve operating self-sufficiency—at least not without substantial federal support to use for capital and capital-related expenses.

Second, it is not as though successive Amtrak managements have not made serious attempts to become more efficient. Indeed, as far as passenger train services are concerned, Amtrak might well be the most efficient system in the world—at least by such standard productivity measures as revenue per employee or passenger miles per employee. In many other nations, rail passenger services are government operations and are highly subsidized. While the quality of service abroad, in terms of speed, on-time performance, or on-board amenities, is typically very high—these come at a price. Pressures are building to make these systems more efficient, but they are generally well behind Amtrak.

Thus, while Amtrak has received something on the order of $20 billion in public support over its history, it has periodically made serious attempts (often at congressional prodding) to find ways to cut costs and operate more efficiently.[1] In the past, it has restructured its route system (within the now removed confines of maintaining a defined basic network of intercity routes), secured labor concessions often well beyond those gained by the nation's freight railroads, and reorganized its operations more along the lines of a private company with "profit centers" in order to decentralize decision making responsibility. However, future opportunities to find ways to hold the line against mounting losses might be more difficult to come by without a more dramatic rethinking of Amtrak's role in the nation's transportation system.

There are three areas where I believe the Congress should have reason for concern—the failure to register meaningful increases in ridership, substantial increases in labor costs, and the problems inherent in an aging rolling stock and locomotive fleet.

RIDERSHIP

In 1972, Amtrak's first full year of operation, it carried 16.2 million passengers who travelled 3 billion passenger miles. Although deficits mounted rapidly in the early years, Amtrak was successful in reversing the long term decline in patronage. By 1977 ridership had risen nearly 20 percent to 19.2 million passengers and passenger miles of travel had grown by more than 40 percent to 4.3 billion. Twenty years later, Amtrak still carries only about 20 million passengers annually, although average trip length has increased. During this same 20-year period airline traffic has more than doubled and interstate highway traffic nearly so. Amtrak hopes to carry a record 22 million passengers this year, but this relatively meager improvement is being recorded in the midst of a very prosperous economy. The demand for travel services, whether it be for business or pleasure, is highly sensitive to economic conditions. Amtrak has failed to register significant ridership gains even in these "best of times."

Amtrak has increased revenues by increasing fares. Two-thirds of the increase in passenger related revenues came from an increase in ticket yields (fares) while one third came from increased traffic. Amtrak's yields are now higher than airline yields and have been growing more rapidly in recent years. While it is true that in the markets where Amtrak and airlines compete head-to-head, airline yields are typically higher, Amtrak's competitive position will deteriorate if whatever price advantage it holds shrinks. The bottom line is that fare increases might not be as available a strategy as it has been—at least not with respect to traffic that is interested in transportation. The "cruise market" is one where Amtrak might have more leeway for fare increases, but I have always believed that this business has always been underdeveloped by Amtrak.

Amtrak hopes for significant traffic growth following the introduction of high speed (or at least higher speed) service between Boston and New York City. Amtrak has developed more realistic ridership projections over time, but still projects that it will capture a share on the air/rail travel market akin to what it carries between New York and Washington. I would expect that its ridership will grow after the significant reduction in travel times, but I have always been skeptical about whether it will increase ridership so that it replicates the NYC–DC experience. The Metroliners came at a time when rail still maintained a significant market share. Whether the time savings that will be achieved on the north end of the NEC will generate traffic volumes comparable to the southern end remains to be seen. But, Amtrak is a national system. Outside the Northeast Corridor Amtrak continues to experience large operating losses. Amtrak West has registered better ridership and revenue increases, but there is some concern that these gains have been costly to acquire.

While I applaud Amtrak's overall candor, I am somewhat struck by the new CEO's view that Amtrak needs "to know much more about the travel market demand and our role in the marketplace." After nearly 30 years of operations and a mountain of studies, I would have thought Amtrak gained some knowledge about market demand and the nature of its ridership. Still, those of us who argued for devoting resources to more sophisticated demand estimation methodologies can feel somewhat vindicated. I do have some concern, however, with Amtrak's use of the "attractiveness of high speed trains themselves" as an element in its HSR projections.

LABOR COSTS

For quite some time Amtrak has had labor agreements with its unions that are more favorable than those of the major freight railroads. Amtrak recently signed a new agreement with the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees that it hopes will set the pattern for bargaining with its other 12 unions. Finally, Amtrak notes that for many of its positions, its employees are paid less than those doing comparable tasks on the commuter lines. On this score, I believe that freight railroad employees around the nation, not commuter line employees in high cost Metropolitan areas are the relevant comparison group. Amtrak's labor costs are roughly the same as those working in the freight industry. Labor costs are Amtrak's largest expense and these costs are rising.

Amtrak projects a near quarter billion dollar increase in labor costs over the life of the agreement. About 20 percent of this is to be offset by work rule changes and productivity improvements. The result says Amtrak is an incremental annual cost increase of less than $40 million on a billion dollar annual payroll over the 5-year life of the contract. However, 2 of the 5 years have already past, so the payout is over the remaining three years.

While some of the numbers are there, I have difficulty figuring out just what the contracts imply for Amtrak's future. First, Amtrak focuses on the "incremental cost" above and beyond the COLA's and GWI. But these are substantial. Second, I can not tell what the annual impact might be if these contracts were extended to 2001 and beyond. The data on page 123, Amtrak's submission of the results of extrapolating the BMWE contract suggest that wages will increase $150 million in 2000 adding the new costs to the existing COLAs. This does not strike me as insignificant. Amtrak expects nearly $30 million savings mostly from work rule changes, but whether these projections will likely be realized I can not judge without more information.

The bottom line is that labor costs are rising and, if ridership and revenue growth fail to fully materialize (either because the economy turns down and/or competition from others modes intensifies) Amtrak's financial condition will become even more precarious.

AGE OF EQUIPMENT

Amtrak inherited an aged fleet of locomotives and passenger cars. The average diesel locomotive was 19 years old and none of the electrics were less than 29 years old—together they averaged 22 years. The average passenger car was more than 20 years old and some were nearly 35 years old. These were best cars available from the railroads that formerly ran the intercity passenger trains. Amtrak was remarkably successful in updating the fleets, especially the locomotive fleet. In 1981, the average locomotive was just 7 years old. The passenger car fleet also was gradually replaced so that by 1981 the average age of the rolling stock was about 14 years. New equipment is more reliable, more attractive, and less costly to maintain. Unfortunately, the gains of the first decade have been lost and Amtrak's fleets are again aging. Locomotives are now 12 years old on average and rolling stock about 20 years old.

Some of the equipment that pulls up the average age is reserve equipment, not in regular operations. Amtrak has a schedule for new car and locomotive deliveries that it submitted in response to your post-hearing questions. However, even as new equipment is brought on line each year, all the other equipment gets one year older. I would like to see a table combining acquisitions and retirements and the impact on average ages of the locomotive and passenger car fleets.

CONCLUSION

The monies made available through the TRA combined with increased flexibility in how the funds are spent ensures that in the near term the struggle will not become a crisis. But, Amtrak continues to face an uncertain future. Further fare hikes to increase revenues might be limited by air fare competition, low gasoline prices, and a slowing economy. Its labor cost situation might be as best it can do given the nature of the operation, but it will add to the problem of eliminating the need for federal operating subsidy.

I hope these observations are helpful as you consider the future of the nation's intercity rail passenger system.

Sincerely,

FRANCIS P. MULVEY.

Subject: Intercity Passenger Rail: Prospects for Amtrak's Financial Viability

Hon. FRANK R. WOLF,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Transportation and Related Agencies, Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Since it began operations in 1971, the National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) has never been profitable and has received about $21 billion in federal subsidies for operating and capital expenses. Amtrak currently provides intercity passenger rail service along 40 routes that cover about 22,800 miles in 44 states and Washington, D.C. Because of your continuing concerns about the financial stability of Amtrak, you asked us, along with others, to provide our comments on Amtrak's long-term financial viability. Specifically, as agreed with your office, we examined (1) Amtrak's current financial status and (2) the outlook for its long-term financial viability. Our comments are primarily based on our recent work examining Amtrak's financial condition.[1]

[1] Including federal operating and capital subsidies, NEC improvements, and state and local support.

In summary, during the last 3 fiscal years, Amtrak reduced its annual net loss by only $72 million—from $834 million in fiscal year 1994 to $762 million in fiscal year 1997.[2] Amtrak projects that its net loss will grow to $845 million this fiscal year, resulting in a cash-flow deficit of up to $200 million and contributing to substantial deficits in the next 2 years. In response, Amtrak's Board of Directors approved a revised strategic business plan in March 1998 that would use about $800 million of anticipated federal capital appropriations over the next 5 years for maintenance expenses, which traditionally have been treated as operating expenses. According to Amtrak, the flexibility to use appropriated capital funds to pay for maintenance would provide it with stability over the next several year, thereby averting a possible bankruptcy. However, using these federal funds for maintenance expenses will correspondingly reduce the funding available for Amtrak's proposed capital improvements that are needed to enhance its long-term viability. Amtrak recently initiated a market-based analysis of its route system that is important for its long-term viability because Amtrak's current route system will continue to incur substantial annual net losses. Amtrak remains heavily dependent on federal funding to pay its operating and capital expenses and will remain so for the foreseeable future.

Background

In December 1994, at the direction of the administration, Amtrak established the goal of eliminating its need for federal operating subsidies—except for federal contributions to retirement payments for railroad employees—by fiscal year 2002 and established a "glidepath" of decreasing federal operating subsidies for each intervening year.[3] The Congress, in the Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act of 1997, stated that federal financial assistance to cover operating losses incurred by Amtrak should be eliminated by 2002. In addition, the act requires the newly established Amtrak Reform council to develop an action plan for a "restructured and rationalized national intercity passenger rail system" if it determines, at any time after December 1999, that Amtrak is not achieving its financial goals or that it would require operating subsidies after December 2002. Under such circumstances, Amtrak would be required to develop and submit to the Congress an action plan to liquidate the railroad.

The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 makes a total of $2.2 billion available to Amtrak in fiscal years 1998 and 1999 to acquire capital improvements and to pay, among other things, certain equipment maintenance expenses.[4] Amtrak has stated that it will use funds from the Taxpayer Relief Act for those high rate-of-return capital investments that over time would strengthen its long-term financial viability, improve productivity and efficiency, and reduce its reliance on federal operating subsidies.

AMTRAK'S Current Financial Status

Despite efforts to increase revenues and reduce costs, Amtrak is in a very precarious financial condition. Amtrak has reduced its annual net loss from $834 million in fiscal year 1994 to $762 million in fiscal year 1997. In March 1998, Amtrak's Board of Directors approved a revised strategic business plan for fiscal years 1998 through 2003 that projects that its net loss will grow to $845 million in fiscal year 1998—$83 million more than in fiscal year 1997. Amtrak's projected net loss is larger in fiscal year 1998 because (1) its agreement with the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees in November 1997 would add about $35 million in expenses in fiscal year 1998 if its terms were extended to all of Amtrak's unions and (2) its estimated net revenue from its express service for transporting high-value, time-sensitive merchandise was recently reduced from $59 million to $11 million in fiscal year 1998. In addition, fiscal year 1997 revenues included $69 million from the one-time sale of telecommunications rights-of-way and real estate in the Northeast Corridor.

Amtrak has a serious cash-flow problem because its revenues and federal operating subsidies do not cover its expenses. While Amtrak borrowed $75 million to meet its operating expenses in fiscal year 1997 and initially planned to borrow $100 million in fiscal year 1998, its March 1998 revised plan projects a cash-flow deficit of up to $200 million in this fiscal year, which could exceed its $170 million line of credit. To cover its cash-flow deficit, Amtrak plans to use $100 million from its short-term lines of credit and temporarily use up to $100 million in funds from the Taxpayer Relief Act in fiscal year 1998 for certain equipment maintenance expenses.

AMTRAK'S Long-Term Financial Viability

Amtrak's ability to remain financially viable is influenced by three factors—the federal subsidies it receives, its ability to increase revenues and control costs, and the business decisions it makes regarding its route system. Current prospects for Amtrak's long-term viability are uncertain unless the corporation reduces its net losses by increasing revenues and controlling costs. As currently structured, Amtrak will continue to require federal capital and operating support in fiscal year 2002 and well into the future.

RELIANCE ON FEDERAL SUBSIDIES

Amtrak is unlikely ever to be free of the need for federal capital subsidies because of the capital-intensive nature of railroads. Amtrak's March 1998 strategic business plan shows that Amtrak will also depend heavily upon federal subsidies for operating expenses through fiscal year 2003, and, therefore, will not achieve its goal of eliminating the need for federal support for operating expenses by fiscal year 2002.

An immediate issue affecting Amtrak's long-term viability is the amount and use of federal support for fiscal year 1999. The administration proposes a capital appropriation of 621.5 million but no operating appropriation. The budget justification also proposes that, similar to Federal Transit Administration grantees, Amtrak be allowed to use appropriated capital funds to pay expenses for preventive maintenance that Amtrak has traditionally treated as operating expenses.[5] Amtrak's March 1998 strategic business plan proposes to spend $1.8 billion (65 percent) of the Administration's proposed $2.8 billion in capital appropriations for maintenance expenses between fiscal years 1999 and 2003 to reduce its net losses and cash-flow deficits. As a result, Amtrak would spend $800 million (15 percent) less for capital improvements over the next 5 years than it had previously planned under its glidepath approach.

According to Amtrak, the flexibility to use appropriated capital funds to pay for maintenance would provide it with stability over the next several years, thereby averting a possible bankruptcy. However, spending capital funds on maintenance would decrease the amount of money available for capital improvements and equipment overhauls that will be necessary to increase revenues and reduce costs. Such investments are essential to Amtrak's long-term viability.

AMTRAK'S ABILITY TO INCREASE REVENUE AND REDUCE COSTS

Amtrak's ability to increase its revenues and reduce costs also will influence its long-term viability. However, while the corporation has made some progress in increasing its revenues and controlling costs over the past 3 fiscal years, it did not achieve its budget goals in fiscal years 1996 and 1997. Furthermore, since 1990, Amtrak's revenues, considered in constant dollars, have been relatively flat.

Amtrak's plans for increasing revenues have depended largely on expanding its express service for transporting high-value, time-sensitive merchandise and introducing high-speed rail service in the Northeast Corridor. However Amtrak's revised strategic business plan reduced its projections of profits from its express merchandise service from about $75 million annually to $21 million in fiscal year 1999 and $27 million annually through fiscal year 2003. On May 28, 1998, the Surface Transportation Board granted Amtrak's application to transport express merchandise over the Union Pacific Railroad Company's and the Southern Pacific Transportation Company's track, provided that Amtrak ,offers "a premium transportation service at premium rates—expedited, regularly scheduled train service provided at prices which are generally higher than freight service—that is provided as an adjunct to Amtrak's passenger service." Amtrak expects that express merchandise service will improve the financial performance of certain of its long-distance routes.[6]

Amtrak projects that fully implementing high-speed rail service on the Northeast Corridor by the end of fiscal year 2000 will significantly increase net revenues for the routes between Washington, DC, and Boston and will foster the growth of other routes along the Northeast Corridor. Amtrak projects that high-speed rail service will provide profits of $93 million in fiscal year 2000 and $219 million in fiscal year 2003. If achieved, these additional net revenues would eliminate almost all of the Northeast Corridor Strategic Business Unit's net loss. However, even with these net revenues, Amtrak expects that its systemwide net loss will decline by only $158 million—from $845 million in fiscal year 1998 to $687 million in fiscal year 2003.

Two bright spots for Amtrak are its commuter operations and increased contributions by states for intercity passenger rail services that have particularly benefited their residents. Amtrak's profits from operating commuter trains grew from $18 million in fiscal year 1995 to $38 million in fiscal year 1997. Similarly, operating support from the states for Amtrak's intercity passenger service more than doubled between fiscal years 1994 and 19997. In fiscal year 1997, 12 states provided a total of amount $70 million to subsidize service on 17 Amtrak routes.

Amtrak's long-term financial viability will be affected by its ability to control costs as well as increase revenues. However, Amtrak's record in controlling costs indicates that achieving future goals for cost reductions may be difficult. Amtrak did not meet its cost-reduction goals for fiscal years 1996 and 1997. Furthermore, while revenues from Amtrak's core intercity passenger services grew by about 4 percent in fiscal year 1997 (including a 7-percent increase in passenger revenues),[7] expenses for these services its debt—primarily incurred to modernize its fleet of locomotives and passenger cars—will rise from $76 million in fiscal year 1997 to $97 million in fiscal year 1999.

[1] Footnotes at end of report.

Amtrak also will face challenges in controlling future costs because labor costs will increase significantly. Amtrak estimates that extending the terms of its November 1997 agreement with the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees to all of its unions will increase costs between $60 million and $70 million a year between fiscal years 1999 and 2003.[8] In addition, Amtrak and Federal Railroad Administration officials told us that reforms contained in the Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act of 1997 will provide little, if any, immediate effect on Amtrak's financial performance and that their long-term benefits are unclear.[9] Specifically, the act (1) Repealed a statutory ban on contracting out work that would result in employee layoffs, except for food and beverage service and (2) eliminated, effective May 31, 1996, statutory and contractual arrangements to protect labor that provided up to 6 years' compensation and benefits for employees who loose their jobs because of specific covered actions, such as the discontinuance of service on a route or the closure of a maintenance facility. In the long term, repealing the ban on contracting out work may provide Amtrak with important flexibility in labor negotiations and cost control. Amtrak and its unions are addressing labor protection arrangements in collective bargaining negotiations. While Amtrak currently does not have plans to close any of its 40 routes, eliminating these arrangements could become important if, for example, the market analysis that Amtrak recently initiated results in a decision to substantially reorganize its route system.

BUSINESS DECISIONS REGARDING AMTRAK'S ROUTE NETWORK

The business decisions Amtrak makes regarding the structure of its route system will play a crucial role in determining its long-term viability. Amtrak spends almost $2 for every dollar of revenue it earns in providing intercity passenger rail services.[10] Only the Metroliner's high-speed service between Washington, D.C., and New York City is profitable; all of Amtrak's other 39 routes operate at a loss. Fourteen of Amtrak's 40 routes lost more than $100 per passenger in fiscal year 1997. Amtrak will continue to incur large net losses if it continues to operate its current route system.

Figure 1 shows that, during fiscal year 1997, fewer than 100 passengers, on average, boarded Amtrak intercity trains and connecting buses per day in 13 states.[11] (See the enc. for the estimated daily average ridership by state in fiscal year 1997.) Amtrak officials noted that ridership in a state is not directly linked to Amtrak's profitability because other factors, including ticket prices and a train's expenses, need to be considered. Nevertheless, we believe that the relatively large number of states with relatively low ridership, along with other financial performance data, is indicative of Amtrak's financial performance problems.

Within a year, Amtrak plans to complete a market-based analysis of the role and growth potential of its national passenger rail system. This study will identify opportunities to increase Amtrak's revenues and market share by analyzing customer demand, revenues, expenses, and net contributions associated with each route in Amtrak's route system to identify service amenities, pricing changes, and route changes that may improve the corporation's ridership and revenues in the short and the long terms. Amtrak's study will also consider various service alternatives and their potential effects on revenues and expenses. In your March 11, 1998, hearing on Amtrak's fiscal year 1999 appropriation, the acting President of Amtrak testified that he was not comfortable that today's national system is "the most effective, economical market-driven system." He added that Amtrak's challenge over the next year is to try to "define and articulate a national system that works . . . within reasonable economic parameters." This market-based analysis is the third extensive study of Amtrak's route system undertaken in the past 4 years; the first two studies, completed in 1994 and 1996, focused on cutting costs.

While Amtrak management considers this market-based analysis, which will identify alternatives to the current route system, to be critical for securing its long-term viability, past experience indicates that major changes to the existing route system will be difficult to make and that the financial effects of changes will be difficult to predict. Amtrak has encountered opposition when it has proposed to cut routes because of the desire by various groups to see passenger train service continued in potentially affected communities. For example, in response to concerns raised by affected parties, Amtrak scaled back initial plans to reduce routes and services in fiscal years 1995 and 1997. During fiscal year 1995, Amtrak reduced and eliminated service on several routes, resulting in a 13-percent reduction in the total miles that Amtrak trains traveled between fiscal years 1994 and 1996 and $54 million in cost savings in fiscal year 1995. However, anticipated cost savings were not realized in fiscal year 1996. In fiscal year 1997, Amtrak closed two routes to increase the frequency of service on three other routes; to date, these adjustments have not led to financial improvements in Amtrak's bottom line.

We discussed the contents of this report with Amtrak officials, including the Vice President for Finance and Chief Financial Officer, who provided comments to improve the report's technical accuracy, which we incorporated as appropriate.

We are sending copies of this report to the acting President of Amtrak; the Secretary of Transportation; and the Director, Office of Management and Budget. We will also make copies available to others upon request.

In addition, we obtained information on Amtrak's ridership by state and for Washington, D.C.

[2] Net loss is Amtrak's total expenses—including depreciation of its equipment and infrastructure—minus total revenues. Amtrak refers to this difference as its operating loss.

[3] Amtrak revised its glidepath by requesting an additional $84 million in federal operating support for fiscal year 1999 because, in previous years, it had not received the federal operating funding that the original glidepath had assumed.

[4] Amtrak is required to pay 1 percent of the $2.3 billion made available under the act to each state that it does not serve.

[5] Preventive maintenance is designed to keep Amtrak's locomotives, passenger cars, and other equipment; facilities; and infrastructure in good operating condition.

[6] Amtrak anticipates that the three routes that lost the most money per passenger in fiscal year 1997 could generate substantial new revenues if its express merchandise service was expanded. These routes are the Sunset Limited (between Los Angeles and Orlando), the Texas Eagle (between Chicago and San Antonio or Los Angelse), and the Southwest Chief (between Chicago and Los Angeles).

[7] These include revenues from passenger ticket sales, food and beverage sales, mail and express merchandise service, as well as contributions from the states.

[8] Productivity savings negotiated with the unions are accounted for in this estimate.

[9] For a fuller discussion of these issues, see GAO/RCED–98–151.

[10] For its business operations as a whole, Amtrak spends $1.46 for every dollar it earns.

[11] Our calculations of the daily average number of passengers by state are estimates and exclude riders for whom the states in which they boarded are unknown. This unknown ridership (which primarily includes passengers who have multiride tickets that do not identify a particular origin or destination) totaled about 2.5 million in fiscal year 1997, or 6,724 passengers per day.

[2] Montana and North Dakota had train service four times a week from October 1, 1996, to May 10, 1997, when Amtrak restored daily service through Montana and North Dakota on the Empire Builder route.

[3] Tennessee had train service six times a week from October 1, 1996, to May 11, 1997, when Amtrak restored daily service through Tennessee on the City of New Orleans route.

[4] The average daily ridership computation reflects that Amtrak discontinued train service in Wyoming on May 10, 1997, when it closed the Pioneer route.

[5] Amtrak could not readily identify the states in which these passengers boarded or alighted from its trains.

Note: Amounts include passengers on Amtrak trains and connecting buses. Each state, except Arkansas, Montana, North Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, and Wyoming, had daily train service provided by one route or more operating within the state. Amtrak intercity passenger trains did not serve Alaska, Hawaii, Maine, Oklahoma, or South Dakota in fiscal year 1997.

AMTRAK, THE NATIONAL RAILROAD PASSENGER CORPORATION: CURRENT PERFORMANCE AND FUTURE PROSPECTS

(By Randolph R. Resor)

STATEMENT OF QUALIFICATIONS

My name is Randolph R. Resor. I am Vice President, Costing and Economic Analysis for ZETA-TECH Associates, Inc., a transportation consulting firm with offices at 900 Kings Highway North, Suite 208, Cherry Hill, NJ 08002.

I received a Bachelor of Arts degree in History and Economics from the University of Chicago in 1975. I attended Northwestern University's Transportation Center for a year of graduate study in transportation management, completing courses in finance, marketing, transportation planning, and economic geography.

I have spent twenty-one years in the rail transportation industry. In 1977, I began my career as a Special Assistant to the president of the Association of American Railroads, where I performed economic analysis and assisted in developing industry positions on a number of topics, including waterway user charges and railroad deregulation. After nearly two years at the AAR, I moved to the United States Railway Association. Following conveyance of the rail assets of the bankrupt railroads to Conrail, USRA had a continuing role in monitoring the use of Federal funds to improve the Conrail properties. My responsibility at USRA was the analysis of Conrail's ongoing track reconstruction program. Issues included appropriateness of the planned projects and expected operational and safety improvements resulting from track reconstruction.

Following my time at USRA, I worked in transportation consulting for two years. Projects included an oversight contract on the Northeast Corridor Improvement Program (NECIP), publication of the FRA Accident/Incident Bulletin and the rail/highway crossing accident statistics for 1980, and an assessment of intermodal cargo movement through U.S. ports.

In 1982 I accepted a position with the New York City Transit Authority (NYCTA) in New York, the agency which operates the New York City subway system. I worked at NYCTA from 1982 through 1987. My first task was the construction of a cost forecasting model, which required me to develop relationships between measures of size and output (number of trains, number of miles of track) and spending by the NYCTA. NYCTA tracks had become severely deteriorated due to lack of maintenance, and because of my specialized knowledge of the relationship between traffic levels and track maintenance costs, after developing the cost model I was assigned to prepare a plan for systemwide track reconstruction. When the plan was implemented, I was given responsibility for budgeting, planning, and scheduling each year's work program.

In 1987 I joined ZETA-TECH Associates, Inc. as Director of Costing, and became Vice President in 1992. In the past eleven years I have directed studies of the economics of heavy axle load fright cars, quantified the economic benefits of advanced train control systems for railroads, and investigated the economic potential of new technologies in areas as diverse as locomotive design, composite materials, and hot wheel bearing detectors. But a major focus of my work at ZETA-TECH has been the development and application of engineering-based methodologies for assigning track maintenance costs to particular types of rail traffic and particular parts of the railroad. Together with ZETA-TECH's president, Allan Zarembski, Ph.D., I developed the Weighted System Average Cost (WSAC) methodology for assigning costs to tracks and traffics. WSAC has been applied on six North American railroads, and was accepted in December 1995 by the Interstate Commerce Commission as the "best available" methodology for determining the incremental track maintenance cost associated with the operation of a particular type of rail service (e.g. passenger trains).

I. SUMMARY OF PURPOSE

I am submitting this statement at the request of Frank Wolf, Representative from Virginia and chairman of the Transportation Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee. The purpose of my statement is to assess the current condition and future prospects for Amtrak, the National Railroad Passenger Corporation, based on testimony and General Accounting Office (GAO) reports with which I have been provided by committee staff.

Amtrak began its operations in 1971. In nearly 30 years, the debate over Amtrak has repeatedly revisited the same issues: Lack of a dedicated funding source; inadequate capital investment; failure to exploit many obvious markets for passenger service; unreliable trains and poor service quality; high cost relative to the service levels provided.

The materials presented in testimony before the Subcommittee by the Federal Railroad Administration and Amtrak tell the same story yet one more time. Again, Amtrak is in crisis. According to FRA, over the next five years Amtrak will receive more funding than it has in any five-year period since its foundation. But again, capital funding is inadequate according to Amtrak, which claims to need double the $2.2 billion in the Taxpayer Relief Act. Over the last four years, Amtrak has attempted a painful restructuring of its operations that has produced the first major service abandonments since 1980. Annual reductions in Federal operating subsidies, along with a failure to realize budgeted economies and revenue increases, have resulted in steadily increasing negative cash flows, to the point that bankruptcy of the corporation is being seriously discussed.[1] Yet at the same time, large investments in high-speed train sets and electrification are being made along the Northeast Corridor, Western states are funding purchase of Talgo tilt-trains and other new rolling stock, and patronage, at least in some areas, is increasing. So the question remains: what is the future of Amtrak? This paper will attempt to develop an objective answer to that question.

II. AMTRAK'S CURRENT CONDITION

A. Operating results

Amtrak is pleased to boast of its increasing revenues. However, a look at Amtrak's own figures tells a somewhat different story than Amtrak chooses to present? What it shows is the following:

Revenues from passenger train operations (tickets, food and beverages, 403b services) have decreased from 70% of total revenues in 1988 to 57% in 1997.

Passenger miles reached their lowest level in ten years in 1996, and are up only slightly for 1997.

Passenger revenue (in current dollars) has been essentially flat since 1990.

The load factor has declined steadily from 53% in 1988 to a low of 46% in 1996, improving slightly to 47% in 1997.

Amtrak is also pleased to boast about the "glide path" to self-sufficiency. While it is true that Amtrak's operating subsidy was only $223 million in 1997, 42% of the 1988 level, this reduction was largely achieved by running an operating deficit. In 1988, with a $532 million operating subsidy, Amtrak ran a year-end surplus of $35 million. Thus, the net loss was only $497 million. In 1997, the year-end deficit was $70 million, and there was also a Federal contribution of $142 million for excess RRTA payments (this amount was included in the 1988 subsidy). Thus, in 1997 Amtrak actually received $444 million and ran a $70 million deficit beyond this, totaling to a net loss of $521 million. It is difficult to see this result as an improvement. Furthermore, Amtrak generated 9% fewer passenger-miles in 1997 than in 1988.

Figure 1 shows Amtrak's sources of revenue over the last ten years. Note that while total revenue has grown by 51% in current dollars, passenger revenue (income from carrying passengers on trains) has grown only 27% in the same period. Amtrak is in effect getting out of the passenger train business, generating increasing amounts of income from contract operation of commuter trains, from real estate, and (most recently) attempting to add express freight services to its trains. [Figures not reproduced.]

In terms of total cash contribution, the commuter service operating contracts generated the largest part of this non-passenger revenue. Carriage of U.S. mail was a distant second. Despite substantial investments in equipment by Amtrak during 1997, the "express" business generated very little revenue, as Amtrak notes in its legislative report. It did, however, generate a great deal of controversy. Amtrak is currently embroiled in a proceeding before the Surface Transportation Board in which Union Pacific Railroad and Conrail are challenging the corporation's right to solicit express traffic on its passenger trains. I will return to this issue at a later point in this paper.

It also must be noted that, in constant (inflation-adjusted) dollars, passenger revenues have been stable since 1989. The selective increases in "yield" that Amtrak notes have simply kept pace with inflation. The improvement in subsidy per passenger over the same period appears to result mainly from an increase in the percentage of short-distance riders (at lower fares and therefore lower subsidy). This is unsurprising, since the majority of the service reductions since 1994 have affected long-distance trains.

B. Ridership trends

Amtrak has trumpeted recent increases in West Coast Business unit patronage. However, the WCBU is the smallest of Amtrak's three Strategic Business Units (SBUs), and only the increase in 1997 (10% over 1996) was large enough to interrupt a secular downtrend in annual passenger miles that had been continuous since 1991.

Passenger miles reached a high (for the Amtrak era) of 6.365 billion in calendar 1979 (the year of the Iranian revolution), and declined thereafter through the mid 1980s. Since then, there has been some growth. However, the most recent peak was in 1991, when Amtrak generated 6.2 billion passenger miles. This number equaled the passenger miles generated by the private railroads in 1970, the last full year of private operation of passenger trains. Passenger miles have declined continuously since (except for 1997).

The number of passengers carried by Amtrak also peaked in 1979 (the year of the Iranian revolution) at 21.5 million. This level of ridership was not reached again until 1988, and was exceeded only in 1990, 1991, and 1993. With the 1995 restructuring, the number of passengers returned to the levels of the late 1970s.[3]

The point of this discussion is that an examination of Amtrak ridership trends reveals no clear trend. Ridership has been stable, with minor increases and decreases, for nearly twenty years. Adjustments to the size of the network appear only to shift ridership from one area to another. Increases on one route or in one market appear to be balanced, in general, by decreases elsewhere. Figure 2 shows trends since 1970.

C. Restructuring and revenue initiatives

Amtrak's attempts at restructuring appear to have failed to achieve the economies claimed for them. Ridership has declined from its 1991 high, and revenues have only kept pace with inflation despite large increases in prices in some markets (as an example, a round-trip Metroliner coach ticket from Philadelphia to Washington cost $96 in 1993. The current price is $156). In fact, there is considerable anecdotal evidence that Amtrak may have exhausted opportunities to increase passenger fares. On the Northeast Corridor, Metroliner fares now equal or exceed prices charged by competing airlines. Elsewhere, the cost of air travel also restrains opportunities for increases. A round-trip from Philadelphia to Jacksonville, FL in an Amtrak sleeping car now exceeds the weekday, unrestricted air fare by about $200.

By its actions, Amtrak appears to have recognized the limited opportunities for increasing fare yield. Instead, the company has pursued real estate development, U.S. Mail contracts, and the movement of "express" traffic. As noted earlier, Amtrak in 1997 realized only 57% of its total revenue from passenger fares, as against 70% in 1998.

The difficulty with Amtrak's apparent strategy is that, to date, it seems to have borne no fruit. The expansion of express traffic, promised in Amtrak's business plan to yield as much as $70 million in incremental annual revenue, is tied up in a Surface Transportation Board proceeding. There may be some additional opportunities in the management of commuter rail operations or in additional mail contracts. However, the volume of mail and express now being carried by Amtrak has already caused the corporation to lengthen schedules (to allow for the extra switching needed, and to allow time for loading and unloading).

The bottom line is that the United States now has less passenger service than in 1988, for about the same subsidy.

III. FUTURE PROSPECTS

A. Real estate and express

Since 1988, when Washington Union Station was opened with great fanfare, Amtrak has attempted to exploit the commercial potential of real estate along the Northwest Corridor and elsewhere. However, real estate revenues have never exceeded $55 million annually, and show no clear growth trend over the last ten years. It appears unlikely that Amtrak will be able to meet its mandate of self-sufficiency through real estate development.

Mail, baggage, and express revenues have doubled, to $70 million annually, in ten years. However, the express business has been much slower to develop. In written testimony provided to the Transportation Subcommittee, George Warrington of Amtrak noted that net revenues from express traffic, forecast at $75 million to $76 million in the September 1997 Strategic Plan, have been reduced to a maximum of $27 million in 1999 and beyond. Even with a favorable STB decision, it appears doubtful that express revenues could close the revenue gap for Amtrak.

B. Payments to freight railroads

Amtrak is really two separate railroads. In the Northeastern U.S., the right-of-way is owned by Amtrak, which allows use of it (for a fee) by commuter and freight railroads. Their payments are used to defray part of the maintenance cost.

Elsewhere in the U.S., Amtrak is almost always a tenant on privately-owned freight railroads, who receive compensation for use of the track. By law, Amtrak pays only the "incremental" cost of this use (defined as the cost that would be avoided should Amtrak cease operating). This cost is very substantially less than what the private railroads typically pay each other for "trackage rights", and accounts for much of the controversy over Amtrak haulage of express traffic. Table 1 compares typical Amtrak payments with those paid by freight railroads to each other.

TABLE 1.—PAYMENTS FOR TRACKAGE RIGHTS

	Basis	Amount per car mile
Freight railroad (typical)	Car mile	$0.20 to $0.30
UP/SP Merger trackage rights to BNSF.	Ton mile	$0.18
Amtrak to freight railroads	Train mile	$0.07 to $0.20, depending on train length
Freight railroads to Amtrak for NEC use.	Car mile	$0.89
Commuter rail operators	Train mile	$1.00 to $2.00

In December of 1995, Amtrak was dealt a setback that is mentioned nowhere in the

Footnotes at end of article.

GAO reports, the Amtrak Legislative Report, or in testimony. In that month, the Interstate Commerce Commission found for Conrail in a compensation case against Amtrak. Amtrak was directed to pay nearly $3 million per year for use of Conrail trackage. This decision set the pattern for renegotiation of contracts with all private railroads over which Amtrak operated. All contracts expired in 1996. Previously, Amtrak used a formula that reduced the incremental cost of passenger train operation as total railroad traffic volume increased, and this formula had produced costs as low as $0.70 per train mile on some railroads. Following the ICC decision, Amtrak's new contracts have been averaging about $1.00 per train mile for track usage, plus incentives for on-time performance.

The net cost of these new contracts to Amtrak may be as much as $50 million per year, but still does not give the freight railroads the level of payments they would receive from providing trackage rights to each other. As long as the operation of Amtrak trains produces substantially less revenue for the freight railroads than operation of freight trains, Amtrak can expert resistance to initiatives such as the planned move into the express business. Also, the Western railroads are seriously capacity-constrained, as the UP "service meltdown" has made clear. Additions to capacity can be expensive. If these investments must be made as a result of the presence of Amtrak trains, there may be an expectation that Amtrak will pay part, or all, of the cost.

By any objective measures, Amtrak enjoys access to the freight railroad network at "below market" rates. While this may continue, so will the resistance of the freight railroads to expansion of service. Potentially, this resistance could result in increased costs of access for Amtrak in the future, especially if substantial increases in passenger train traffic are proposed.

C. The Northeast corridor

Ownership of the Northeast Corridor (the railroad from Boston to Washington, with branches from New Haven to Springfield, MA and from Philadelphia to Harrisburg, PA) was conveyed to Amtrak by Conrail in 1976 as part of the transfer of assets from the Penn Central estate and other railroads to Conrail, local governments, and commuter rail operators. In the subsequent 22 years, a total of about $2.5 billion has been spent on capital improvements of various kinds. Service on the "southend", from New York to Washington, is generally reliable and quick, with schedules of three and a half hours or less typical for most trains. The "northend" is still operated with diesel locomotives from New Haven to Boston, since the original funding of 1977 and later was insufficient to electrify the railroad. However, electrification is now finally underway, and Amtrak pins many of its hopes for the future on the increased patronage expected from the faster Boston-New York service that will result.

The NEC SBU already carries more than half of Amtrak's passengers. Completion of the northend improvements will only strengthen its position.

The Northeast Corridor (NEC) represents an unusual opportunity for Amtrak. First, it has excess capacity that might be sold to freight operations. Second, it serves the largest urban area and one of the largest ports in America (New York). Amtrak has been ambivalent about increased freight traffic on the NEC, however, despite the announced intention of Norfolk Southern (in its Conrail purchase filing) to greatly increase its freight operations in the corridor. In fact, there was until recently a marked lack of interest on Amtrak's part in even renegotiating the existing Conrail NEC access agreement.

The opportunity for Amtrak lies in more effectively exploiting the NEC for freight operations, and possibly also in a lease/purchase arrangement (possibly with states, port authorities, or an entity specifically created for the purpose) that could make badly needed capital available in return for annual lease payments. The value of the NEC may be large enough to provide the funds Amtrak says it requires.

D. The "glide path"

Amtrak has recognized that certain elements of the September 1997 Strategic Business Plan, such as the projected revenue from express service, are no longer realistic. However, it appears that the "glide path" itself may no longer be a realistic expectation. Amtrak's request to divert part of the $2.1 billion in TRA funds to operating subsidy is a virtual admission that financial self-sufficiency, at present, appears out of reach. Certainly, nothing in the trends of the last 20 years suggests that Amtrak may expect major changes in patronage or revenues short of inventing some radical new way to conduct the business of passenger railroading.

It appears that Amtrak may be caught in a sort of circular argument. Without further capital investment, Amtrak will be unable to enter new markets and compete for new business. However, Amtrak has never had the capital to do this, and has never done it. Perhaps Amtrak's boldest venture was in taking over the "Auto Train" service in 1983. However, this service (which was operated for nearly a decade, at a profit, by Auto Train) is now one of the largest loss-makers among Amtrak trains.[4] Further, its loss per passenger has increased rapidly in recent years. Prospects for changing this trend do not appear bright.

The cumulative result of 26 years of investment in Amtrak has been, essentially, stability. Amtrak's market share has fallen, ridership is stable at a time when air travel and auto travel are both increasing much faster than population growth, and capital funding is insufficient even to keep pace with accumulated depreciation. A continuation of the current state of affairs would appear to guarantee eventual liquidation of Amtrak, not financial self-sufficiency.

IV. CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

A. Conclusion

Amtrak ridership has shown no clear trend for nearly 20 years after increasing from 1971 through 1979. It is not clear that future increases may be excepted.

Amtrak's rail/air market share has declined from about 8% to only 5.5% over the same period.

Adjusted for inflation, revenues from passenger service has been flat for many years. Only non-passenger sources of income have shown increases.

The decline in subsidy is in large part the result of accounting changes and of Amtrak's decision to post deficits rather than surpluses.

The "glide path" to financial self-sufficiency does not appear realistic or feasible.

Amtrak continues to need large infusions of capital, but no more than stability has been achieved for the estimated $21 billion in government money spent during the 1971–1997 period.

The future of Amtrak clearly lies in short-distance corridors, where the losses are much smaller than for intercity trains. However, with the exception of the NEC, these corridors are owned by freight railroads, which at present have no financial incentive to cooperate with proposed increases in service.

Of the many initiatives to improve Amtrak over the past 26 years, only the Northeast Corridor Improvement Project appears to have had any lasting effect. As Amtrak notes, market penetration in the NEC is the best in America for Amtrak. Amtrak also notes that annual spending on track maintenance is far below levels at New Jersey Transit and other neighboring properties. This is largely a result of the heavy investments made between 1977 and 1985. However, track components installed during those years will eventually require renewal, and additional capital funding.

B. Recommendations

It is almost certainly counterproductive to attempt to continue Amtrak as a national passenger system. A public policy argument may be made for the importance of the NEC. It is very difficult to credibly argue for the essentially of a tri-weekly train serving Arizona and New Mexico.

The Northeast Corridor provides some potential for privatization, a lease/purchase arrangement, or some other means for generating additional investment capital.

Other local services may be supported by individual states, with the Federal role confined, perhaps, to dictating standards that would ensure compatible equipment types.

Hon. FRANK WOLF,
Chairman, Subcommittee on Transportation and Related Agencies, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN WOLF: I am writing in reply to your letter of April 28, requesting my perspective on Amtrak's long term viability. I appreciate the opportunity to voice my thoughts on this matter and commend your initiative in reaching out "beyond the Beltway" for input into your committee's deliberations. In order to place my thoughts on Amtrak's future in some context, I would like to say a few words about my own exposure to, and experience, with America's national passenger railroad.

I have had the opportunity to observe Amtrak closely through twenty-two years of using its services, of advocating for their improvement as a board member of the National Association of Railroad Passengers from 1981 to 1991, and of focusing my attention as a policy researcher on its development. The enclosed resume lists my publications in transportation policy, a number of which relate directly on Amtrak. These have appeared in journals ranging from Scientific American to The Journal of Policy Analysis and Management. I would be happy to furnish copies of any of these publications, if you would like to add them to the Subcommittee's reference collection.

The material that you forwarded from your hearing on Amtrak, along with other documents from the FRA, GAO, and Amtrak itself suggests that some aspects of Amtrak's operations and performance have changed considerably over the last few years and others have not. I would like to focus on the relationship between what has changed about Amtrak and what has not changed as my own contribution to your committee's deliberations. I believe that this, arguably idiosyncratic, measure offers important clues to Amtrak's long term viability.

I will not go into great detail on the changes in Amtrak's operations and performance that have occurred over the last five years since they are well documented in your committee's record and will likely be analyzed with greater expertise and firsthand experience by others writing to you. From my perspective, changing both the internal workings of the corporation (through decentralization into Strategic Business Units) and the external terms by which it is regulated (Amtrak Reform & Accountability Act) and subsidized (Taxpayer Relief Act) have been important steps forward toward a future in which passenger trains play a more productive role in America's intercity transportation, they do not in themselves guarantee Amtrak's viability.

The Amtrak Reform & Accountability Act creates substantial opportunities for enhancing productivity and real, but more limited, chances for raising revenues. The magnitude of these changes depends on implementing many initiatives that are only just beginning. My guess is that the full impact of these changes will become apparent in three to five years. Furthermore, that impact will depend on the interaction of re-engineered operations with renewed investment in Amtrak's physical plant. Such reinvestment occurring through the Taxpayer Relief Act will certainly pay dividends through this period, estimated by Amtrak at $180 million in additional revenue. This result is impressive, but is not sufficient to fund the cost of operating a national system of intercity passenger trains, even a more efficient and effective one. In my view, what has changed at Amtrak, and around its legislation and finances, takes the company toward viability, but not all the way there.

This is why I would suggest that what has not changed about the way passenger trains fit into America's transportation system remains a crucial component of Amtrak's long term viability. Despite the sometimes heroic efforts of individuals (both Amtrak executives and legislators) to remedy to corporation's dysfunctional place in America's transport sector, the fact remains that the intercity passenger train remains an institutional orphan among U.S. transportation modes. Indeed, the recent changes launched by legislative reform are themselves the product of compromises that fell short of bringing Amtrak "inside the tent" of the planning and finance process that now applies to all other transport modes. Instead of dedicating federal transportation revenues to intercity passengers rail in the same way that they are spent on aviation, highways, and transit, the Taxpayer Relief Act created a funding alternative by fiscal sleight of hand. Without detracting from the importance of these funds and the achievement of legislators who enacted this compromise, such fiscal gimmickry will not make Amtrak viable over the long run.

Making it possible for states to spend federal transportation dollars on intercity rail projects under the same administrative, economic, and political terms as they do for airports, highways, or urban transit holds the key to Amtrak's long run viability. Although such a reform lies well beyond the jurisdiction of your subcommittee, I remain optimistic that the current round of initiatives will make it easier to build the consensus that passenger trains belongs on the same policymaking agenda as America's other transportations modes. This will occur as Amtrak's enhanced services demonstrate the economic and social contribution that passenger trains could make across America, a contribution that can be maximized by managing passenger trains with the same framework as other transport modes. In this way, today's reform process is a necessary step on the way to long run viability for Amtrak, and I would encourage you and your colleagues to facilitate the process by appropriating the funds that have been requested by the Administration and Amtrak. Along with the TRA capital funding, they represent an essential down payment on the future American transportation system—a future in which the prohibition on spending certain kinds of public revenue for intercity passenger trains will eventually come to appear as arbitrary and inappropriate as the 18th Amendment's prohibition on the manufacture, sale and transportation of liquor.

The administrative and fiscal integration of passenger trains into America's intercity transportation system will require significant additional reforms to the way Amtrak does business. My colleague James Dunn and I sketched out some possible scenarios of how such a transformation would play out in our contribution to Transportation Research Circular number 484, "National Conference on Critical Issues for the Future of Intercity Passenger Rail." Our article is entitled "Institutional Challenges: Making Rail Revitalization Happen." You may find this analysis of interest.

I wish your subcommittee well in its deliberations.

Sincerely,

Re Amtrak's Long Term Future Financial Viability

I have carefully reviewed the testimony given before your Subcommittee this past spring concerning Amtrak's appropriations request and the analysis of Amtrak's financial condition by the GAO. I agree completely with the GAO analysis. I do not believe that Amtrak is on a path to achieve financial independence. On the contrary, the more liberal definitions of capital costs have allowed Amtrak to use capital funds for previously classified operating purposes. The long term impact of these decisions on Amtrak's future capital needs have yet to be determined.

The financial problems experienced by Amtrak are symptomatic of a larger problem when government attempts to act as a producer of goods and services. Government is an inappropriate mechanism to provide long distance rail passenger services. As long as government continues to subsidize and operate Amtrak, there will always be deficits. This is why former socialist and communist countries are in the process of transferring their State Owned Enterprises (SOE's) to the free market. It is time that the federal government does the same with Amtrak.

PRIVATIZATION SUCCESSES IN TRANSIT

Privatization of mass transit operations have taken place in many cities across the United States and around the world. These successes are indicative of the possible positive impacts that privatization of Amtrak can have. For example:[1]

Los Angeles Contracted out bus service to private operators resulting in a 60% reduction of the costs of providing service. Quality of service also has risen with the use of private contractors.

In Colorado, state legislation required Denver to contract out 20 percent of its transit service to private operators. This has resulted in a long term savings of 31.0 percent.

San Diego Contracted out 38 percent of its service with an average cost savings of 30 percent.

The city of Las Vegas contracts out its entire system. Costs per vehicle hour dropped by 33.3 percent.

Foothills Transit outside Los Angeles Contracts out its entire system to private operators. Its ridership has risen by over 50 percent, it has added 57 percent more service, its operating costs have fallen by 31 percent and its fares are 37 percent lower.

London, which operates the world's largest bus system, has privatized over half of its system. Services have expanded by 29 percent and operating costs have fallen by 30 percent.

Stockholm runs a 2,000 bus system with 900 rail cars. It contracts out two thirds of its bus service and all rail service. Operating costs have fallen 17 percent while service has been increased by 13 percent.

Metra, the commuter rail division of the RTA in the Chicago metropolitan area, contracts out most of its service to the freight railroads. Metra is the only public transit service board in the Chicago area to consistently experience ridership increases. By contrast, CTA ridership has declined by 40% over the last 10 years.

NEW APPROACH TO PUBLIC SECTOR MANAGEMENT

Amtrak today represents the old style public sector management that relies on service cuts and increased public sector subsidy. A new approach to public sector management is sweeping the world. The new approach to public sector management recognizes the inherent inefficiencies in public sector monopoly provision of services. It also recognizes that the public sector must rely to a greater extent on the competitive forces of the free market to provide services. Only through a competitive marketplace will the incentives to be efficient, to provide high levels of customer service, to give taxpayers a fair return be effective. This new management approach relies heavily on the private sector to provide services. Privatization can be achieved through competitive contracting of rail services, private sector management of entire systems, or outright sale of services to the private sector.

[1] For further information, see Pagano, Anthony M. An Analysis of Proposed CTA Service Cuts: New Public Sector Management Alternatives, Metropolitan Transportation Association, Oak Brook, IL, May 1997, and Cox, Wendell, and Love, Jean, Rescuing Transit in Chicago, Redirecting CTA to Serve Customers First, Metropolitan Transportation Association, Oak Brook, IL, March, 1998.

The new public sector management is not just confined to transit. China, Russia, many of the former Eastern Bloc countries and many South American countries are reforming and privatizing their SOE's. From transit to railroads to steel to agriculture, the new public sector management is sweeping the world.

APPROACHES TO PRIVATIZATION

There are several approaches to privatization that can yield benefits in terms of reduced government subsidy, improved efficiency of operations and increased ridership.

Asset Sales—Asset sales involve selling the assets to the private sector, which then would be charged with providing the service. Asset sales generally involve three types. One is Citizen Share-Purchase in which citizens can purchase shares of stock in the privatized enterprise through an initial public offering. This is what was done with CONRAIL with great success. A second approach is Voucher Privatization where there is universal distribution of stock to all citizens. An option is to provide additional stock to existing employees. Voucher privatization has been used in South America, Canada, the Czech Republic and other places. A third option is to sell the assets to another enterprise.

An asset sale could be very successful with the Northeast Corridor SBU. This service is currently running a slight profit according the GAO, so that an asset sale could be very successful. It would signal that government is getting out of the railroad business entirely in this part of the country.

Competitive Contracting. With competitive contracting, the ownership of the enterprise is retained by the government. The actual production is done by the private sector under contract with the government enterprise. Competitive contracting harnesses the power of the marketplace to more efficiently deliver services. A variation on competitive contracting is to contract out the entire operation to one firm which would then manage the enterprise for the government.

Competitive contracting could be utilized in the rest of the AMTRAK system, where break-even operations seem most elusive. Government would subsidize services and oversee route planning, fares and other strategic matters. New style public sector management approaches could be utilized to provide incentives for private sector contractors to increase service quality and ridership. Eventually, as ridership and operating ratios improve, much of this service could be spun off to the private sector in an asset sale as well.

Whichever approach is utilized, it imperative that the federal government begin to move away from the never ending subsidies of AMTRAK and embrace a fundamental change in the way rail passenger service is provided in the United States. Without such structural changes, AMTRAK deficits will be a continuing feature of the federal budget well into the next millennium and beyond.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION,
Washington, DC, May 28, 1998.
Hon. FRANK R. WOLF,
Chairman, Committee on Appropriations,
U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Thank you for providing the Office of the Inspector General with the opportunity to provide input on Amtrak's financial future.

The issues you asked us to address concerning Amtrak's long-term viability are similar to those raised in November 1997, when Congress passed the Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act. In the Act, Congress asked the Secretary of Transportation to contract for an independent assessment of Amtrak's financial needs through Fiscal Year 2002. I am pleased to inform the Committee that following a competitive bid process and upon appropriation of funds in the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, this contract was awarded on May 5, 1998. The Office of Inspector General is tasked with overseeing this contract, and we believe that when this assessment is completed in November 1998, we will be in a better position to comment on Amtrak's long-term viability. In the interim, we expect to have significant, preliminary results in August that we will share with you and your staff.

We believe the results of this assessment will provide the most accurate indication of Amtrak's future viability and financial requirements. However, in addressing the question of Amtrak's future viability, it may be advisable for Congress to consider providing more specific guidance on what the term "viability" actually means. When Congress mandated that Amtrak eliminate its need for operating assistance, the structure of Amtrak's Federal funding assistance was very different than what is currently being proposed. Prior to the FY 1999 budget request, Amtrak received a separate capital and operating subsidy. This year, however, Amtrak is requesting only capital assistance, with the flexibility provided through the "transit definition" of capital, to use these funds for costs traditionally considered operating costs. While technically, Amtrak will not receive an operating subsidy, this more flexible definition of capital will in effect, allow Amtrak to extract operating assistance from its capital appropriation. It is important to note that Amtrak has never anticipated eliminating its need for a Federal capital subsidy. As such, in light of the proposed change in the definition of capital, Congress may want to consider providing more specific guidance on how viability—or operating self-sufficiency—will be measured.

If I can answer any questions or be of further assistance, please contact me on 366-1959, or Raymond J. DeCarli, Deputy Inspector General, on 366-6767.

Sincerely,

RAYMOND J. DECARLI,
(For Kenneth M. Mead, Inspector General).

Mr. Chairman, I wish to recognize and thank those assciate staff members who supported the Members of this House in the preparation and passage of the fiscal year 1999 Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Bill, H.R. 4328: David Whitestone of my office, Monica Vegas Kladakis of Majority Whip DELAY's office, Connie Veillette of Mr. REGULA's office, Mike Robinson of Mr. ROGERS' office, Eric Mondero of Mr. PACKARD's office, Todd Rich of Mr. CALLAHAN's office, Joe Cramer of Mr. TIAHRT's office, Mark Zelden of Mr. ADERHOLT's office, Paul Cambon of Chairman LIVINGSTON's office, Marjorie Duske of Mr. SABO's office, Albert Jacquez and Nancy Alcalde of Mr. TORRES' office, David Oliveira of Mr. OLVER's office, Blake Gable of Mr. PASTOR's office, Dana Gresham of Mr. CRAMER's office, and Paul Carver of Mr. OBEY's office.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I congratulate the gentleman from Virginia (Chairman WOLF) on a good bill. It is a bill that deserves to be passed this evening. There are two or three rough spots that have to be worked out, in particular the Coast Guard clearly needs some additional money, but this is a good bill.

Let me in specific thank the staff that has worked very hard on this bill. From the minority staff Cheryl Smith and Marjorie Duske, the majority staff, John Blazey, Rich Efford, Stephanie Gupta, Linda Muir and David Whitestone. The committee, with their aid, has produced a very good bill.

Mr. Chairman, the evening is late. I am ready to vote, but I think we may have a couple of amendments and a couple of colloquies.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBERSTAR).

(Mr. OBERSTAR addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. GEJDENSON).

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) just to one moment go back to the statement on the Coast Guard. I hope that he will do everything he said here today to try to add funding.

Clearly, the R&D function is woefully underfunded. And I would also hope that we would give the Coast Guard some latitude within its budget to move funds around as well in this kind of very tight situation.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GEJDENSON. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman's comments. If there is any additional allocation for Defense, which many people believe there will be, we will make every effort to see that the Coast Guard participates in that and meet the gentleman's concerns.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for that.

Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment at the desk.

In any given year, the Coast Guard saves thousands of lives, assists tens of thousands of people, and prevents millions of dollars of property damage.

Their fleet of 250 cutters, 225 aircraft and over 2,000 small rescue and utility craft are, as their motto proclaims, "always ready, always there."

But instead of preparing the Coast Guard for the twenty-first century, this bill cuts crucial funding for research and development by $7 million below FY 98 and $6.3 million below the request.

Research and development is not an esoteric exercise. This work contributes directly to the work that Coast Guard personnel perform in the field every day.

This budget will stop research on:

IMPROVED SEARCH AND RESCUE

Through the R&D program, the Coast Guard has developed a system using Global Positioning System (GPS) to dramatically improve response time during search and rescue missions.

When a boat capsizes in the frigid Atlantic or in Alaska or in the rough currents off Hawaii and California, more rapid response means the difference between life and death.

FIRE PREVENTION AND SAFETY

The R&D program conducts full-scale fire tests aboard actual ships, making this a unique laboratory for exploring how fire reacts on ships. This research translates directly into improved safety.

The recent fire aboard the Ecstasy cruise ship—which had over 2,000 people onboard—demonstrates the importance of developing quick responses to these catastrophes.

The Coast Guard is also conducting research to improve fire safety on the Coast Guard cutters. This directly contributes to the safety of the men and women in uniform on those ships.

OTHER PROGRAMS

Improvements in aid to navigation, vessel management systems, even drug interdiction are all the result of the R&D program. Make no mistake about it—this cut will compromise the safety of the American people and the men and women in the Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard is the guardian of our coastline. They risk their lives everyday to protect us. We should be helping, not hindering their mission.

Research and development leads to advancements that improve the Coast Guard's everyday activities. A cut of this magnitude will seriously impair the Coast Guard's ability to perform its duties.

Let's help the Coast Guard do what they do best—protecting our waters and saving lives.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY).

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of entering into a colloquy with the gentleman from Northern Virginia (Mr. WOLF), the chairman of the subcommittee and my friend.

Mr. Chairman, I am one of the representatives of the only region in the country with two airports, governed by the High Density Rule, LaGuardia and John F. Kennedy. Since last October, the Secretary of Transportation has granted 30 slot exemptions to the High Density Rule at LaGuardia with little, if any, examination of the impacts on aviation safety, flight delays, and aircraft noise that are occurring from this increased traffic.

Numerous communities in the New York metropolitan area are very concerned about the situation, and I would like to ask for the gentleman's assistance in working with me and other Members from New York in having the FAA examine these potential adverse impacts.

Mr. Chairman, we need to have a study done of the average flight delays at the airport, whether the additional flights are making it more difficult for air traffic controllers in manage the region's air traffic, and if there is an appreciable increase in aircraft noise. This is a very serious issue, both for the traveling public and the residents on the ground.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. LOWEY. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I agree with the gentlewoman from New York (Mrs. LOWEY) and I understand the very, very legitimate concerns of the residents of New York about the increased air traffic and I will do everything I can to work with the gentlewoman and the FAA administrator to guarantee that this report is underway as soon as possible.

□ 2310

If the gentlewoman needs to, we can have a joint meeting with the FAA administrator.

Mrs. LOWEY. I thank the gentleman, and I look forward to working with him.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS).

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of a colloquy with the chairman.

Southwest Florida is one of the fastest growing areas in the Nation. Consequently, the airport serving this area, Southwest Florida International Airport, has been operating above capacity for some time. Anybody who has been there knows that. In fact, Southwest Florida International Airport has experienced an average annual growth of 9.2 percent during the past 10 years.

Because of this growth, the airport has begun an expansion project called Project Millennium which would include construction of a new terminal and runway. Project Millennium is the State of Florida's number one funded airport project, and it has also received discretionary funds from the FAA.

Southwest Florida International Airport has requested a letter of intent from the FAA to ensure long-term commitment to Project Millennium. In light of our commitment to fiscal responsibility, I am pleased to report that the airport has reduced the Federal share of the project to 24 percent of the total cost.

I would ask the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) to consider including language in the transportation appropriations conference report expressing congressional support for Southwest Florida International Airport's request for a letter of intent. I understand that Senator MACK and Senator SHELBY of the other body have reached a similar agreement regarding the inclusion of this provision in the conference report.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOSS. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Florida for making me aware of the very intense growth of the Southwest Florida area and the planned expansion of the Southwest Florida International Airport. Because of its location, it is a wonderful place to visit, I understand, particularly in the winter, not always in the summer.

The Southwest Florida International Airport is essential in maintaining Florida's balanced airport system. This project is worthy of a long-term commitment, a very long-term commitment by the FAA. I will do all I can to ensure the conference report on the transportation appropriation contains language to encourage the FAA to grant Southwest Florida International Airport's request for a letter of intent.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Chairman, I thank my colleague from Virginia for his commitment and support of Southwest Florida International Airport and invite him to participate in its use at any time during the year. It is a marvelous place.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS).

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I rise to engage with the chairman of the Subcommittee on Transportation in a colloquy.

Mr. Chairman, in an effort to construct an additional crossing of the Ocmulgee River through the City of Macon, Georgia, Federal, State and local officials have been working together for over 20 years to extend the Eisenhower Parkway, but to no avail. This additional crossing will improve access to and for hospitals, firefighting, and other public safety organizations, as well as improve the circulation of traffic into and through Macon, aiding the economic revitalization of the community and the creation of even more jobs. In addition to the economic impact and easing Macon's traffic problems, this project could be used to link middle Georgia with a multi-lane Statewide corridor connecting Macon with the cities of Augusta and Columbus.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CHAMBLISS. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, the committee appreciates the importance of the Eisenhower Parkway extension to the gentleman's district in the State of Georgia and recognizes the commitment Congress has made in the past with funding for the project.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, currently the project in Macon is virtually at a standstill as a result of bureaucratic delays, incurring additional costs to the taxpayer because of governmental agencies' inability to complete the approval process.

Mr. Chairman, will the committee agree that unnecessary delays can result in additional costs that could be avoided if project approvals were completed in a timely manner.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, the gentleman is correct. The committee's desire is for the projects to move forward consistent with all applicable rules and regulations in a timely and efficient manner, thereby avoiding additional costs associated with unsubstantiated delays.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I believe that this project in Macon and Bibb County, Georgia could serve as a model of interagency cooperation. As the gentleman is aware, Congress recently enacted legislation directing the Department of Transportation to develop and implement a coordinated environmental review process whereby all reviews will be done concurrently rather than sequentially; thus, moving the process along in an expedient manner under the national Environmental Review Act.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, upon forwarding all essential documents to the appropriate Federal agencies by the State and local offices, the committee expects the Federal Highway Administration and other Federal resource agencies to streamline and expedite the review for all projects, including this particular one, consistent with NEPA.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for the clarification of this matter, and I thank the gentleman for the leadership he provides to this committee.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from Oregon (Ms. FURSE).

Ms. FURSE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the honorable Member for yielding me the time.

I rise in strong support of H.R. 4328. I want to thank the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF), the chairman, and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO), the ranking member, and every other member of this Subcommittee on Transportation for this excellent bill.

On September 12 of this year in my district, a crowd of 25,000 people is expected to attend the grand opening celebration of the Westside Light Rail project. I am pleased that this bill before the House includes the $25.7 million for this project, an amount equal to the full funding grant agreement.

Westside Light Rail will be the crown jewel of Oregon's transportation system, and I thank the chairman and the ranking member for their help in this project.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 4328, FY 99 Transportation Appropriations. I want to thank Mr. WOLF, Mr. SABO, and every member of the Transportation Subcommittee for producing an excellent bill. I know the passage of the TEA–21 bill made the Subcommittee's work more difficult than usual, and I wanted to publicly acknowledge their efforts.

On September 12th of this year, in my district, a crowd of over 25,000 people is expected to attend the Grand Opening Celebration of the Westside Light Rail project. When I was elected to represent Oregon's First District in 1992, one of my top priorities was to ensure that the Westside Project was completed on time. I am pleased that the bill before the House today includes $25.7 million for this project, an amount equal to the full funding grant agreement.

As many people know, the Westside Light Rail project is a national model of the benefits of effective land-use planning. It is also the first transit system in North America to use low-floor cars which are fully ADA accessible, and I had the fortune of driving one of these new vehicles earlier this summer. Because I am retiring at the end of this Congress, it is reassuring to know that H.R. 4328 will allow the Westside Light Rail project to open on time in September.

I also want to thank the Chairman for two additional items in H.R. 4328. First, the bill fully funds a bus authorization that will help our local transit agency upgrade new bus lines that serve Portland's suburbs, helping them operate efficiently with the new Westside Light Rail line. In addition, at my request, the Subcommittee including language on the South-North Project which is the next building block in our region's long-term transportation plan.

I want to thank Mr. WOLF, Mr. SABO, and the entire Subcommittee for their unwavering and generous support for this project over the past six years. The citizens of my entire district owe this Subcommittee a tremendous debt of gratitude. It has been an honor to work with the Subcommittee on these issues, and I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 4328.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. LOBIONDO).

Mr. LOBIONDO. Mr. Chairman, I rise to engage the chairman in a colloquy.

As a member of the committee that authorizes U.S. Coast Guard operations, I am deeply concerned by the advanced age of the Coast Guard's vessels, aircraft and technology. This problem is beginning to hamper the Coast Guard's ability to conduct vital antidrug operations.

As the gentleman well knows, Mr. Chairman, the Coast Guard is America's first line of defense on the high seas against drug lords and cartels that are bent on putting their deadly products in the hands of our Nation's children. It is the responsibility of Congress to ensure that the Coast Guard is equipped with the most advanced equipment to perform their counterdrug mission effectively.

The Coast Guard has a modernization program called the Deepwater Capabilities Replacement project, which would overhaul all the Coast Guard's assets. Deepwater represents the 21st century Coast Guard.

The Clinton administration sought to delay Deepwater through the establishment of a Presidential Advisory Council on Coast Guard roles and missions. I would like to thank the chairman for seeing through this delaying tactic and preventing this unnecessary and expensive commission from going forward.

Instead, this bill provides for a smaller panel of former Coast Guard commandants and other officials not to exceed $1 million.

My question, Mr. Chairman, relates to this provision. Can I get an assurance from the gentleman that the establishment and activities of the blue ribbon panel will not in any way prevent the Coast Guard's Deepwater modernization program from going forward?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LOBIONDO. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, the administration's roles and missions Presidential Advisory Council would have come at a great cost to the Coast Guard's operating budget. Despite the announcement of this commission several months ago, the administration has not appointed this council.

The gentleman is correct. In disapproving the administration's plan and setting up in its place the blue ribbon panel contained in the bill, it is our intention that the Coast Guard's modernization effort, Deepwater, should not be held up pending the result of this panel.

There is nothing in the bill or report which would indicate these two efforts should be linked. We expect Deepwater to proceed independently of the blue ribbon panel. By having the former commandants look at this, there will be some historical factors, because much of what the Coast Guard has is so old that the more attention we can bring to it, I think the better it is for the Coast Guard, for search and rescue, drug interdiction and everything else.

Mr. LOBIONDO. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA).

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I would like to engage the gentleman from Virginia, the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, in a colloquy.

Mr. Chairman, Operation Respond is a nonprofit public-private partnership between railroads, motor carriers and America's emergency responders. Operation Respond allows emergency responders to determine whether or not there is hazardous material at an accident site and to get the information that they need to safely handle hazardous materials incidents. The true benefit of the Operation Respond partnership is that it saves minutes and often hours in obtaining critical action information and it brings an extra dimension to surface transportation safety. The Operation Respond Institute was created in 1992 as a cooperative effort between the Federal Railroad Administration and the Port Terminal Railroad of Houston, Texas. It is jointly funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation, rail and motor carriers, and the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health.

This is a critical time, Mr. Chairman, for the Operation Respond program. All of the major railroads now participate, and efforts are under way to expand the program in the motor carrier industry. If adequately funded, Operation Respond will expand its protection of emergency personnel and the public throughout the Nation.

Last year, the Transportation appropriations bill for fiscal year 1998 under your leadership provided $1 million under the Federal highway program and $103,000 under the Federal Railroad Administration for Operation Respond. Are there any funds, Mr. Chairman, for this important program in the Transportation appropriations bill?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. MORELLA. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, $103,000 has been appropriated for Operation Respond under the Federal Railroad Administration. No other funds have been appropriated.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, by matching the funding for Operation Respond to last year's levels, we can help this very important program achieve a realistic goal of expanding installations to an estimated 2,000 Emergency Respond dispatch centers across the country.

Mr. Chairman, emergency responders, fire, police and medical personnel, need help as never before in gauging the correct response to transportation incidents. As we know too well from the recent tragic incident in the Capitol, it is really those very first few critical minutes that the first responders must take actions to accurately assess the situation, safeguard lives and property and prepare the scene for arriving fire and medical responders. Operation Respond is a program that works, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. WOLF. You are so convincing, I just agree with you that this is a worthwhile program, and I will consider ways in which to continue to fund Operation Respond.

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Chairman, I feel very passionately about the importance of the program as the gentleman can tell.

Mr. WOLF. I can tell.

Mrs. MORELLA. I urge my colleagues to support the Transportation appropriations bill, and I look forward to working with the gentleman maybe even in conference to do more with it.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST).

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I want to thank the committee and the chairman for their efforts to increase the amount of money put into the Coast Guard budget. I especially want to thank the committee in their endeavors to try to find moneys to put into and increase the interdiction budget for the Coast Guard. The administration has lacked boldness and intensity in its effort to engage the problem of drug interdiction into this country. Mr. Chairman, I do think we need to continue to look for further resources. You have mentioned some examples a little bit earlier. I would also like to continue to pursue further funds in the conference committee. The interdiction that the Coast Guard provides for this country, I think, is very misunderstood by most Americans and many Members of Congress. We have a finite border in the United States. It is not infinite. With the collaborative efforts of the Coast Guard, Customs, DEA, military services and other agencies, it is possible, we have seen plans time and time again, we have seen examples of when these plans are put into effect that we could cut, we could interdict 80 percent of the drugs coming in by sea by the year 2007. It is possible. But we need to generate the resources in a collaborative fashion to make these predictions come true and they can come true.

I as well as all of us here believe in many types of drug treatment, public and private. We believe in educational programs. I even believe in the graphic TV commercials that are put on television. We must do everything we can to reduce drug use and drugs coming into this country. It is possible if we work together to make this happen. I applaud the committee and their efforts to do so.

I have one other comment in this bill, Mr. Chairman. There is some money taken from the fisheries program which helped bump up the money in the interdiction end of the Coast Guard process. I have a problem with that. We need more money in the interdiction program, that is true, but we have 2.25 million square miles of coastal waters that the Coast Guard needs to enforce our fisheries regulations. What do they do? They have search and rescue for fishermen, they provide enforcement so that many countries, mostly foreign, cannot use these high sea drift nets which are 25 miles long and longer. We protect the billions of dollars in the industry that this country depends upon. Fisheries is an important part of this program. It is an important part of this country. The Coast Guard not only enforces the safety aspect of this and saves people's lives at sea but they stop dead in their tracks foreign fishing vessels from encroaching on our waters.

Mr. Chairman, once again I want to thank the gentleman from Virginia for his effort in this. The Coast Guard is one of those unseen entities that we need to continue to encourage, and I look forward to working with him.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GILCHREST. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I completely agree. We want to crack down on poaching of Forrest Gump in the gulf and people are doing that.

Mr. GILCHREST. Absolutely.

Mr. WOLF. If we do have any other allocations which I hope we will at the end for defense, we plan on asking for some of that so we can beef up the Coast Guard in many of these areas, including additional funding in the area of drug interdiction.

Mr. GILCHREST. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. CAMP).

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Chairman, I would like to engage the distinguished gentleman from Virginia in a colloquy.

Is it the chairman's understanding that under current law, the Secretary of Transportation may not close a Coast Guard boat station or subunit unless the Secretary determines the remaining search and rescue capabilities can continue to maintain the safety of the public in that area?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CAMP. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. The answer to that question is yes.

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Chairman, is it the chairman's understanding that a Coast Guard station or subunit cannot be closed unless the Secretary determines the Coast Guard search and rescue standards related to search and rescue times are met?

Mr. WOLF. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. CAMP. Mr. Chairman, is it the chairman's understanding that under current law if the Coast Guard plans on closing a station, the Coast Guard must provide an opportunity for public comment and for public meetings in the area of the station with regard to the decision to close the station or subunit?

Mr. WOLF. The answer is yes.

Mr. CAMP. Is it the chairman's understanding that the Coast Guard has no immediate plans to close any boat stations?

Mr. WOLF. Somehow I want to say no, but the answer is yes.

Mr. CAMP. I thank the gentleman from Virginia for working so diligently on behalf of our Nation's infrastructure needs and clarifying these questions.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

□ 2330

Mr. WOLF (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the bill through page 40, line 9, be considered as read, printed in the RECORD and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any points of order to this portion of the bill?

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Chairman, I have three points of order against this part of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state his first point of order, and we will deal with them individually.

POINTS OF ORDER

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Chairman, I raise a point of order against page 11, line 19, beginning with "of which" through "fund" on Line 20.

This provision violates clause 2 of rule XXI because it alters the funding formula established under the airport improvement program by appropriating $2.06 billion out of the airport and airway fund for FAA operations. The correct figure should be approximately $1,970,000,000 if the formula under existing law is followed. The added funding for appropriations has the effect of changing existing law and therefore constitutes legislation on an appropriation bill in violation of House rules.

The CHAIRMAN. Does any other Member desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, we certainly did not want to have any legislation on an appropriation bill, so I concede the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded and sustained.

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Chairman, I raise a point of order against page 16, line 20 through line 24. This provisions violates clause 2 of rule XXI because it rescinds $5 million in Airport and Airway Trust Fund contract authority, not general fund appropriations for grants and aid to airports. Airport and Airway Trust Fund contract authority, while a form of direct spending, is legislative in nature, and rescinding such authority is not within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Appropriations.

This rescission constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill in violation of House rules.

The CHAIRMAN. Does any other Member desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I concede the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded and sustained.

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Chairman, I raise a point of order against page 18, line 2, beginning with "provided" through "motor carriers" on line 5.

This provision violates clause 2 of rule XXI because it transfers contract authority funds from the Federal Highway Administration to pay for the functions of the Office of Motor Carriers.

This provision changes existing law, and, therefore, constitutes legislating on an appropriation bill in violation of House rules.

The CHAIRMAN. Does any other Member desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, this would save a lot of lives, and make truck safety much better throughout the Nation and keep accidents from taking place, but I concede the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded and sustained.

Are there any amendments to this portion of the bill?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WOLF

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WOLF:

On page 11, line 19 of the bill, after "5,532,558,000,", insert the following: "of which $1,972,500,000 shall be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund".

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, the previous point of order deleted the trust fund's share of the FAA's operating expenses. I am aware that the chairman of the authorizing committee objects to a trust fund share in excess of $1.9725 billion which is the maximum authorized level according to the formula in the current law. However, the authorizing committee has written that there is no objection to a trust fund share at the authorized level. My amendment simply states that $1.9725 billion of FAA's total operating budget may be taken from the Aviation Trust Fund. That is the authorized level.

Mr. Chairman, I know of no objection to the amendment. I encourage its adoption.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment, but might I address a question to the gentleman?

Does the effect of the combination of the point of order, the gentleman's amendment now implementing that, mean that significantly less than half of the operations budget of the FAA now comes from the Airport Trust Fund?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABO. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, that is correct.

Mr. SABO. So, it is probably close to 60 percent of the operations actually comes from general revenue and not from the trust fund.

Mr. WOLF. That is correct.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WOLF

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WOLF:

On page 26, strike lines 1 through 2.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I offer a technical amendment to strike the proviso that appears on the top of page 26. The proviso inadvertently changed the payment of the tax credit to Amtrak made by the Tax Payer Relief Act. That was not the intent of the committee. The committee merely intends to ensure that the Federal funds available to the corporation in fiscal year 1999 would be available only after Amtrak developed a comprehensive capital plan for the expenditure of the tax credit as proposed by the President's budget. The Committee on Ways and Means brought this oversight to our attention, and again it was not the committee's intent to change the payment of the TRA funds in any way.

Mr. Chairman, it is technical in nature, and I urge its immediate adoption.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF).

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to this part of the bill?

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

(a) AUTHORITY TO CONVEY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Transportation may convey to Jacksonville University, located in Jackson, Florida, without consideration, all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to the property comprising the Long Branch Rear Range Light, Jacksonville, Florida.

(2) IDENTIFICATION OF PROPERTY.—The Secretary may identify, describe, and determine the property to be conveyed under this section.

(b) TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—Any conveyance of any property under this section shall be made—

(1) subject to such terms and conditions as the Commandant may consider appropriate; and

(2) subject to the condition that all right, title, and interest in and to the property conveyed shall immediately revert to the United States if the property, or any part thereof, ceases to be used by Jacksonville University.

Mr. WOLF (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the bill through page 59, line 5, be considered as read, printed in the RECORD and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any points of order to this section of the bill?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. PETRI. Mr. Chairman, I raise a point of order against section 339. This provision violates clause 2 of rule XXI because it limits contract authority for the Pennsylvania Station project. This provision changes existing law and therefore constitutes legislating on an appropriations bill in violation of House rules.

The CHAIRMAN. Do any Members wish to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I concede the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is conceded and sustained. The section is stricken.

Are there any amendments to this part of the bill?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ACKERMAN

Mr. ACKERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Ackerman:

SEC. 347. None of the funds in this Act may be obligated or expended for closing any Coast Guard station in fiscal year 1999 unless such closure has been specifically authorized by law.

Mr. ACKERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I rise to offer my amendment which would prevent the Coast Guard from closing any stations without specific congressional approval. This amendment would not allow the Coast Guard to use funds in fiscal year 1999 to close the station whose closure was not expressly authorized by the Congress.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ACKERMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I have reviewed the gentleman's amendment, and I understand the grave concerns that are posed to the public health and safety by closing the Coast Guard station specifically in the case of the Eaton Neck's Coast Guard station on Long Island. However, if the gentleman would kindly withdraw his amendment, I am confident we can find a suitable alternative to closing the Eaton Neck's Coast Guard Station. I would be willing to set up a meeting next week with the gentleman and Admiral Loy, the Commandant of the Coast Guard, to find an alternative solution to closing the Coast Guard Station at Eaton's Neck.

Mr. ACKERMAN. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, let me say that I appreciate the gentleman's attention to this matter. His word has always been as good as gold in this body. I would be glad to withdraw my amendment with his assurance and look forward to working with him on this.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Virginia?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. ACKERMAN) is withdrawn.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ANDREWS

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. ANDREWS:

At the end of the bill, insert after the last section (preceding the short title) the following new section:

SEC. . None of the funds made available in title I under the heading "OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY—AMTRAK REFORM COUNCIL" may be used for payments to outside consultants.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, a great Nation needs a great national passenger rail system, and I believe we have established one in the United States that is getting even better literally with every day, as we have read some very good news from Amtrak today.

In 1987, the Congress came up with an innovative plan for a review council that would give a fair, public, and objective evaluation of where Amtrak is going and the progress that it is making.

I believe that this bill makes an important contribution to that effort. I particularly commend the chairman for appropriating $450,000 instead of the $1.9 million which was originally requested.

I think that another way we can expand on the chairman's efforts to make sure that we get a fair and efficient evaluation of where Amtrak is going is my amendment, which would specifically say that funds under this section may not be used for outside consultants.

I believe, Mr. Chairman, that we have ample and more than adequate expertise within the members of the council and the Department of Transportation, and I believe this amendment would accomplish those objectives.

I also would like to engage the Chairman of the subcommittee in a colloquy at this time.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I would be glad to. Before I begin, let me just say we do accept the gentleman's amendment. I think it is a good amendment. I think we can work with the DOT and IG. Having said that, I would be glad to engage with him in a colloquy.

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I want to first thank the chairman for his leadership on this issue and for his support of Amtrak. In particular, I commend the chairman for his responsible action of providing only a small portion of the funds requested by the council.

Some members of the council have requested an appropriation of $1.9 million. The committee has appropriated only $450,000. This is a clear signal to the American taxpayers that Congress is active in its fight against wasteful spending.

It is my understanding that in appropriating this money, the committee expects the council to follow the dictates provided in law that their meeting should be open to the public. Is that also the chairman's understanding?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, yes, that is my understanding clearly.

Mr. ANDREWS. Reclaiming my time, it is also my understanding that the committee expects the council to spend money on travel only when absolutely necessary to fulfill its responsibilities as prescribed by Congress in the Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act. Is that also the understanding and expectation of the chairman?

I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Yes, that is my understanding.

Mr. ANDREWS. I want to just conclude my remarks by also thanking the chairman for his support of $50 million for the job access and reverse commute funding in a different part of this bill. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS), my colleague, was the leader in getting that program authorized. We appreciate the effort in getting it appropriated.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment. This amendment is an attempt to further hamstring the Amtrak Reform Council—a group of outside volunteers, a majority of whom were appointed by the congressional leadership itself. These are public-spirited citizens of both parties who get no pay, only travel reimbursement under the specific terms of the 1997 Amtrak Reform Law.

Yet this amendment tries to beat up on a volunteer watchdog group that has been allocated what in my opinion is already an inadequate appropriation—only $450,000.

Why so much attention to such a small outfit? Because the Clinton administration is deathly afraid of facts and candor where Amtrak is concerned. From the day the President signed last year's Amtrak Reform Law, there has been an unrelenting pattern of delay, sabotage, and non-feasance by the Clinton administration. Time and time again, the administration has-characteristically, simply ignored federal law.

The reform council is the one source of analysis and scrutiny that the administration cannot control: It's not part of D.O.T., its made up of outside independent leaders, and it has a broad mandate under the law to delve into all aspects of rail passenger service. What could be more frightening to an administration that adheres slavishly to a status quo that will simply guarantee an Amtrak bankruptcy?

That's where the Andrews amendment comes in. The administration wants the reform council denigrated, disenfranchised, and defunded. The President has made that clear by, among other things, not appointing either of the two presidential members of the council—A labor and management representative—although the law required him to do that seven months ago. The Andrews amendment is just the latest installment in the continuing effort to sabotage Amtrak Reform.

This amendment would forbid the reform council to hire any outside consultants to assist it in carrying out its mandate under the Reform Law.

The mandate includes evaluating Amtrak's performance and making recommendations for cost containment, productivity improvements, and financial reform. The council is also to address Amtrak's accounting methods, management efficiencies, and labor cost savings.

To do this extensive analysis, the council members necessarily must be free to obtain the services of experts on railroad operations, accounting, and indeed financial investigators. Such persons must be independent—not part of the Clinton administration's D.O.T. That has already proven itself an enemy of Amtrak reform.

I realize that the Senate bill contains a similar restriction, albeit ill-advised. The Senate provision—and I believe the present amendment—are based on a complete misunderstanding of the Reform Council's function relative to the "independent assessment" of Amtrak required under a separate provision of the reform law.

Unlike the Reform Council's broad mandate to look into virtually every aspect of Amtrak, the independent assessment is focused on one central topic—stated in section 202 of Public Law 105–134. That is "the financial requirements of Amtrak through fiscal year 2000." This assessment is to be conducted by an independent entity under contract to D.O.T.

Far from duplicating the independent assessment, the Reform Councils' activities are complementary to it. The D.O.T. contractor does not have the broad mandate to delve into the details of all aspects of Amtrak's operations and to recommend systemic changes. To put it in the simplest terms, the independent assessment is to be a snapshot of Amtrak's financial requirements for Amtrak as it is now doing business. The Reform Council's job, on the other hand is to identify what is wrong with the specific business methods of Amtrak, and to recommend changes to those methods.

This brings us to why the unwarranted restriction on the use of outside talent in this amendment is so important to the Clinton administration. The administration is in "denial" with respect to Amtrak; it does not want to be asked—or to have to answer—the tough questions about Amtrak's operations, methods, and finances. Anything that disarms the Reform Council advances the administration's goal of clinging irrationally to an untenable status quo.

If you doubt my conclusions about the reasons behind this amendment, ask yourself: why are rail labor and the administration expending this much effort to restrict an appropriation of $450,000? it can only be because of a tremendous fear of having to face financial and business reality with respect to Amtrak.

This amendment does not appear in a vacuum. We have now had eight months of consistent delay and sabotage of the Amtrak reforms that were negotiated with the administration and passed with bipartisan support last December. At every turn—the appointment of the new Amtrak Board of Directors, the resolution of labor issues mandated in the reform law, and even the appointment of the President's two selections for membership on the Reform Council itself—the administration has consistently ignored the law. Now the administration sees a chance to neutralize the reform council completely by denying it the resources of professional financial and investigative personnel.

The Amtrak Reform Law specifically directs Amtrak to grant the Reform Council full access to "all information the council requires," including proprietary matters. As the administration well knows, this will be a meaningless and theoretical right if the council cannot utilize the services of its own professionals to delve into all aspects of Amtrak.

The choice on this amendment is simple: either we stand up for the reform we enacted last year and help to make it work, or we cater to the obvious desire of the Clinton administration to avoid all of the tough questions about the future of intercity rail passenger service.

In sum, this amendment is an unwarranted and unfair assault on a bipartisan group of public-spirited citizens who are doing their level best to deal with the realities facing Amtrak—not the delusional world the administration wants to pretend it lives in. If the Clinton administration and other unrealistic fans of the Amtrak status quo would spend a fraction of the energy on actual reform of Amtrak that they have already expended in trying to beat up on a very sound $450,000 expenditure, everyone—especially Amtrak and the future of rail passenger service—would be much better served.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

The amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to the bill?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. NADLER

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia reserves a point of order.

The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. NADLER:

At the end of title III, insert the following:

SEC. 347. None of the funds made available in this Act or in the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (P.L. 105–178) may be used for improvements to the Miller Highway in New York City.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitute legislation in an appropriation bill and, therefore, violates clause 2 of rule XXII. The rule states in pertinent part no amendment to a general appropriation bill shall be in order if changing existing law. I would ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia raises a point of order. Does any Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I will await the ruling of the Chair on this point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) makes a point of order that the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York is in violation of clause 2(c) of rule XXI for legislating on an appropriation bill.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from New York seeks to deny the use of funds in the pending Act and in the authorizing law for improvements to the Miller highway.

Clause 2(c) of rule XXI provides that no amendment to a general appropriation bill shall be in order if changing existing law. A general principle of the rule prohibiting amendments to general appropriation bills that change existing law is that a limitation amendment must confine itself to funds in the pending bill. This principle is codified on page 677 of the House Rules and Manual.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I have heard enough. I concede the point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman concedes the point of order. The point of order is conceded and sustained.

Are there further amendments to this part of the bill?

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. NADLER

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I offer a second amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. NADLER:

At the end of title III, insert the following: None of the funds made available in this Act may be used for improvements to the Miller Highway in New York City, except for funds resulting from obligations pursuant to sections 1601 and 1602 of the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (P.L. 105–178).

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, once again, along with the gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE), the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE), and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. NEUMANN), with strong support from the administration, from the Pork Busters Coalition, the Council for Citizens Against Government Waste, the National Taxpayers Union, and Taxpayers for Common Sense, I rise to offer an amendment to keep valuable taxpayers' dollars from being wasted on an outrageous boondoggle in my district in New York City.

The language we seek to add to this bill, with one change necessitated by the Chair's ruling on the first amendment, is the exact same language that has been included in this bill for the last 3 years.

For 3 years, this Congress has said no, we do not believe this project is worthwhile. Nothing in the past 3 years has changed, except for one action by the other body; not the design nor the purpose of this project.

The issue is simple. Donald Trump wants the taxpayers to put up $350 million so that he can take a highway, a 13-block long highway, that was rehabilitated for close to $90 million of taxpayers' money, the ribbon cutting was less than 5 years ago, this highway has a life expectancy of 35 to 40 years before the necessity for major expenditures will arise again, and having just refinished rebuilding this highway at a cost of close to $90 million, Mr. Trump wants to take 300 to 350 million additional taxpayers' dollars and tear it down and move it a few hundred feet and change a straight highway into a curved highway.

Why? So that the residents in the new luxury apartments in the buildings he is planning to develop will have an unobstructed view of the Hudson River and The Palisades and the glorious sunsets in New Jersey.

Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the view of The Palisades in New Jersey and the Hudson River. It is a beautiful river, but I do not think that we should be spending $350 million of the taxpayers' money so that Mr. Trump will be able to charge higher prices, higher rents for these new luxury apartments and will be able to sell these new condos for higher prices.

If Mr. Trump wants better views so that he can get better prices for his apartments, let him put up the money. For him it is a pittance. Let him put up the money to move this perfectly good highway.

I would like to point out that there is no transportation purpose to this project whatsoever. No one even claims it. In fact, from a transportation point of view, it is not a good idea to take a straight highway and substitute a 180 degree curved highway.

The only purpose for this boondoggle is to line Mr. Trump's pockets.

I would like to point out that every local elected official, the State Senator, the assembly member, the council member, the two local community planning boards, 4,000 local residents whose petition signatures I have here, say to us, do not waste the money on this boondoggle. Do not pass this project.

I want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. ROYCE), the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. NEUMANN) and the Pork Busters Coalition and the Council for Citizens Against Government Waste, the National Taxpayers Union, the Taxpayers for Common Sense and the Clinton administration for the strong support they have given this amendment and the work they have done to put the brakes on this boondoggle.

Now, the second amendment which was not ruled out of order has one difference. A Senator from my State, or a Member of the other body from my State, put $6 million in the TEA–21 Act in the dead of night in the conference committee for a study of moving this highway.

This study is a boondoggle. It is $6 million to study something that is not going to happen because it would cost $350 million and this Congress is going to say, as it has before, this will not happen.

We cannot, because of the rules, take that $6 million out of the bill. So, unfortunately, we will waste maybe $6 million.

I will point out, I would like to read one paragraph from a letter written by the deputy major of the City of New York, to Donald Trump. "Dear Donald, while the administration is fully committed to the Miller Highway relocation, it is critical that the funds for the project not redirect or act as an offset for Federal or State funds for other transportation and infrastructure projects in New York City, the city's numerous pressing highway and transportation needs that have Federal financial support and the administration would not be able to support a relocation proposal that reduced Federal commitments to these other projects."

I will point out that all of the money, except for the $6 million, the other $294 million to $344 million for this project, would have to come out of the State's general formula money and the mayor obviously does not want that to happen because he intelligently understands that there are far more important things for the people of the city and State of New York than this boondoggle.

□ 2350

All this amendment, as rewritten, as modified, would do is to make sure that, other than that $6 million which, unfortunately, we cannot touch because of the Rules of the House, no funds generally obligated for transportation in New York are diverted from other projects elsewhere in the State or the city for this project.

Mr. Chairman, I again urge that this amendment be adopted.

I include for the RECORD four letters, one from the Office of Management and Budget, one from the Taxpayers for Common Sense, one from the National Taxpayers Union, and one from the Citizens Against Government Waste.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT, OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET,
Washington, DC, July 28, 1998.

Hon. JERROLD NADLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE NADLER: Thank you for your letter requesting the President to line item veto funds contained in the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA–21) for the Miller Highway project. The President has asked that I respond on his behalf.

The Administration shares your concern that funding to convert Miller Highway to an underground tunnel is not appropriate. However, on June 25, 1998, the Supreme Court declared the President's authority to utilize the line item veto to cancel specific project funding unconstitutional.

I understand that you may be offering an amendment to the Transportation Appropriations bill that would prohibit funds from being made available for the Miller Highway project, as has been enacted into law in recent years. The Administration would support such an amendment.

As you recall, the Administration expressed concern regarding the excessive funding provided for so-called "high priority" highway demonstration projects prior to the passage of TEA–21. We are particularly concerned that these projects have not received appropriate scrutiny.

Thank you again for bringing your concerns to our attention.

Sincerely,

JACOB J. LEW,
Acting Director.

TAXPAYERS FOR COMMON SENSE,
Washington, DC, July 29, 1998.

WHY SHOULD TAXPAYERS PAY FOR A PROJECT OPPOSED BY THE CONGRESSMAN WHOSE DISTRICT IT'S IN?

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE: Taxpayers for Common Sense urges you to support the Nadler-Royce-Minge-Neumann amendment to the FY99 Transportation Appropriations bill that would prohibit the use of funds to relocate the Miller Highway in New York City.

The relocation of this highway would serve no determinable transportation purpose. An independent architect estimated this project would cost as much as $350 million. Real estate developers have an interest in getting federal dollars for this project because the highway relocation would raise the value of their property.

Representative Nadler opposes this wasteful project, even though the federal money would go to his district. Many residents and area officials join him in opposing the project. In December 1994, the Miller Highway was refurbished at a cost of $80 million. Those repairs have a life expectancy of 35 to 40 years. Developers are now trying to get funding for a project to tear down and rebuild this renovated highway, at a possible cost of more than $300 million, even though the move has no apparent transportation benefit.

Taxpayers should not be forced to shell out hundreds of millions of dollars to subsidize greater profit margins for private investors. This project exemplifies the extravagance that a fiscally responsible Congress cannot tolerate. Support the Nadler-Royce-Minge-Neumann amendment and stop this wasteful expenditure of federal transportation funds.

Sincerely,

JILL LANCELOT,
Legislative Director.

NATIONAL TAXPAYERS UNION,
Alexandria, VA, July 23, 1998.

Hon. JERROLD NADLER,
House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE NADLER: The National Taxpayers Union, America's largest grassroots taxpayer organization, strongly supports your amendment to the FY 1999 Transportation Appropriations bill to stop the resurrection of a huge pork barrel project in your own district—the infamous Miller Highway.

The Department of Transportation strictly ordered all work to stop on this boondoggle in 1995. However, real estate mogul Donald Trump has persisted in seeking taxpayer funds to tear down and move the recently refurbished highway to enable him to build luxury housing. Somehow, $6 million was added to the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) during conference committee. This $6 million is only a small down payment that could mutate into a staggering $350 million in federal funds according to one independent architect.

In 1995, taxpayers spent more than $90 million to rehabilitate this very same elevated highway. This "emergency reconstruction" is projected to have a life expectancy of 35 to 40 years. Mr. Trump proposes to demolish this recent highway reconstruction and move it a few hundred feet to provide an unobstructed view of the Hudson River. Is this really a federal taxpayer priority? Absolutely not.

We applaud your effort to stop pork in your own district. New York City Councilmembers, State Senators and Assemblymembers, and two local planning groups have already said "no" to Mr. Trump. He just hasn't listened. Mr. Trump should pay for the unobstructed view of the Hudson River out of his own pocket rather than pick the pockets of millions of hard working taxpayers.

Sincerely,

JOHN BERTHOUD,
President.

COUNCIL FOR CITIZENS AGAINST GOVERNMENT WASTE,
Washington, DC, July 29, 1998.

DEAR MEMBER OF CONGRESS: Election year politics is once again affecting sound public policy. We write today to offer our strong support for the Nadler-Royce-Minge-Neumann amendment to H.R. 4328, the Transportation Appropriations Act for FY 1999. This amendment would prevent the allocation of $6 million to study the relocation of the Miller Highway on Manhattan's Upper West Side. The relocation of the elevated highway benefits one person. It would allow New York City developer Donald Trump to build luxury high-rise apartments with an unobstructed view of the waterfront thereby increasing the value of the property.

In 1994, the Miller Highway in Manhattan was renovated at a cost to the taxpayers of over $90 million, and is expected to be operable for the next 35 to 40 years. Now Mr. Trump would like to have the highway moved, at a potential cost of $350 million to the taxpayers, along with new transportation headaches for New Yorkers.

Congress has overwhelmingly refused to support this initiative in each of the last three years and should do so once again. It's an absolute outrage for the House to even be considering the appropriation of these taxpayer funds in order to boost the real estate values of a multi-millionaire. The government has already given its opinion of this boondoggle when the Department of Housing and Urban Development recently refused to provide subsidized housing loans for the project.

Do not allow election year politics to cloud your judgment. This transportation project serves no transportation purpose. Please support Nadler-Royce-Minge-Neumann.

Sincerely,

TOM SCHATZ,
President.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I am not going to take anywhere near 5 minutes, and I was not going to speak at all, but I was just taken aback by my colleague, the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER), who is standing up here talking about how he is siding with the taxpayers and he is siding with the pork busters and he is siding with the National Taxpayers Union. I find that a little amazing.

He is a very good friend. I served in the legislature with the gentleman in New York State, as I did with the gentleman from New York (Mr. SCHUMER), my good friend. But I do find that amusing, because, as the gentleman knows, he is rated by those same organizations as the biggest spender, one of the biggest spenders in the Congress. So I just find it hard to find that argument credible.

But more than that, I am from New York, but I am from way up in the Adirondack Mountains in New York, and it is about 200 miles from New York City. But we have to do what is right for our State. I believe in States' rights.

I heard the gentleman saying some people were opposed to it, but I have a memorandum here that says that the Regional Planning Board Association, the Parks Council of New York, the Municipal Arts Society, all of these are in favor of this continuing construction of this road. The General Contractors Association, it goes on and on and on, the AFL-CIO, the International Union of Operating Engineers, and including Mayor Lavine, Empire State Development Corporation, and a host of others.

But, to me, this is not pork barrel. This is what the New York State Transportation Department wants, and that is what we ought to go by. We should not be jamming little pet projects into bills like this. We ought to go by the recommendations from our State, and that is exactly what this is.

I might say that it is supported on a bipartisan basis by one of my best friends and one of the great Senators in the other body, and I am not talking about AL D'AMATO, I am talking about PAT MOYNIHAN, a great Senator. He is for this very much, and so is the other great Senator, AL D'AMATO.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SOLOMON. I yield to the gentleman from New York, although I wonder why the gentleman is standing up here siding with all of these organizations who normally side with me.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to explain that.

First of all, I offered the amendment for the first time 3 years ago, and we have adopted it 3 years running. These organizations have supported my amendment. They recognize the wisdom of it. I appreciate their recognition. The fact that one disagrees with someone on a lot of things does not mean one disagrees on everything.

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Chairman, I just want the gentleman to be consistent; and the next time we have amendments similar to this, I want the gentleman out here fighting for the National Taxpayers Association.

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to report that the Taxpayer Coalition, or the Pork Buster Coalition, in this body strongly supports this amendment. It really confirms the insidious nature of a conference committee process which has operated in secret with major legislation that is not available for scrutiny at the time of its presentation to this body.

This process must stop. It undermines the credibility of this institution.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I accept the amendment.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER), my friend and neighbor, to delete funding for a multimillion dollar, unnecessary, uncalled for highway project.

The Miller Highway project is truly an unprecedented act of raw pork. It is opposed by the Congressman whose district the project resides in. It is opposed by the entire neighborhood in which the highway is built. It serves no transportation purpose because it replaces a highway that was rebuilt 5 years ago. It only has the support of one very influential person, Donald Trump.

Now, I do not fault Donald Trump for wanting to tear down the Miller Highway so he can get better views for his luxury apartments. I do not agree with him, but I do not fault him.

I fault the Congress that put this wasteful boondoggle in the budget. I fault the Congress for building a $300 million highway to satisfy one person. We should be ashamed.

The Nadler amendment rectifies this embarrassing situation, so let us do the right thing. Let us do right by the neighborhood. Let us do right by the taxpayers. Let us clear our conscience and support the Nadler amendment.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCHUMER. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I just want to point out two points. One, this highway was not on the priority list submitted for the ISTEA act or the T.E.A. 21 act by either the city or the State. Neither the governor nor the mayor submitted it.

The second thing I would point out is that the gentleman from New York mentioned Randy Levine as having a letter in support. Randy Levine is the deputy mayor of New York, and it was the second paragraph of his letter that I read from in which he said, the administration of New York City would like this highway moved but not with the use of any funds unless they get an extra $300 million, which they have not gotten. They do not want it moved at the cost of other projects in New York, and that is what my amendment would accomplish.

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman from New York has offered to pay for this personally, and that would solve, well, it would not solve the problem. It would alleviate the problem.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. NADLER).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BARR OF GEORGIA

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BARR of Georgia:

SEC. . None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to carry out the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration proposed rule (Docket No. NHTSA-98-3945) dated June 17, 1998, which implements section 656(b) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, this language simply directs that none of the funds appropriated by this act shall be used to implement certain rules proposed by the Department of Transportation, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, on June 17, 1998, in the Federal Register, pages 33219 to 33225. It does not go beyond the scope of that, and it does not go beyond the scope of what properly may be an appropriations bill, such as the one currently before this body.

Mr. Chairman, the problem with these rules proposed by the Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is that while purporting to implement Section 656 of the Illegal Immigration and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996, they go far beyond the intent of that legislation as passed by this Congress.

The intent of that particular section of the legislation was simply to provide that there be proposed and implemented a tamper-resistent alien identification card, and to take steps to ensure that identification cards do not allow for fraudulent uses and purposes and manufactured by illegal aliens.

However, in the rule proposed by the administration, there is a very clear directive intent that would result in the development of a national identification card. The rule would do this by providing that after October 1 of the year 2000, all Federal agencies may accept as proof of identity only a driver's license or identification document that conforms strictly to certain specific and uniform requirements, and that if any State driver's license issued by any State fails in any respect to conform to such requirements, it shall not be acceptable for any Federal purpose or by any Federal agency.

The proposed rule also requires that all driver's licenses or identification cards issued by States contain a Social Security number.

Mr. Chairman, this clearly is designed to go far beyond the scope of the provisions contained in Section 656 of the aforementioned 1996 immigration law. It was not the intent of that bill or of the Congress to establish a national identification card, or to require that all States issue only drivers' licenses in a format required by the Federal Government.

This proposed amendment to the transportation appropriation bill simply would require, by its refusal to allow any funds to be used to implement the proposed rule contained in the June 17, 1998, Federal Register, it would simply force the administration to go back, reconsider its rule, and come forward with a rule that hopefully would be in conformity with the intent of section 656 of the 1996 immigration bill, and would force them to amend the current proposed rule, which goes far beyond the intent of Congress in passing that particular section in 1996.

I believe it is the clear desire of this Congress not to see a national identification card implemented, which these proposed rules, if they are not stopped at this point, will in fact result in.

With that, Mr. Chairman, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. WOLF) insist on his point of order?

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I do not, but I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment is opposed by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. LAMAR SMITH), who is apparently on his way to the floor. It deals with the immigration reform bill, which was passed by this Congress in another Congress. We know very, very little about it.

We were told that there was a colloquy that was going to take place between the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH). We just called the office of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH). He apparently is opposed to the bill, and is on his way over.

I would just say that in lieu of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) walking hopefully very fast over, I would rise in opposition to the amendment, which would prevent the Department of Transportation from implementing a regulation.

If I might say, without me going through this as a waste of time, would the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) agree to withdraw the amendment until the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) gets here, and allow us to take the amendment from the gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. ROUKEMA)? Then the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) could offer his amendment again, and then the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) would be here. The gentleman could offer it again, as a courtesy.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLF. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I strived to contact the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) on the way over here. I do have a colloquy to discuss with him.

With the assurance that we will have time soon as the gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. ROUKEMA) moves forward with her amendment, I certainly would withdraw it at this time with the gentleman's consent, and with the understanding that we would pose it immediately after the next amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw my amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The amendment is withdrawn.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MRS. ROUKEMA

Mrs. ROUKEMA. I offer an amendment, Mr. Chairman.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mrs. ROUKEMA:

Page 53, line 15, strike "is hereby authorized to" and insert "shall".

Page 53, line 18, strike the colon and all that follows through "time as" on line 20 and insert "if".

Mrs. ROUKEMA (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Chairman, I think we can very brief with this.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. ROUKEMA. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I would tell the gentlewoman, I think it is a great amendment, and I accept it.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. I thank the gentleman, Mr. Chairman.

Let me just say a few words, and also acknowledge my colleagues, the gentlemen from New Jersey, Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN and Mr. FRANKS, who really initiated this issue, and included the language in the bill that we have before us.

Mr. Chairman, this deals with the HOV lanes in the State of New Jersey, particularly along Route I–287, and the fact is that they have caused tremendous problems in terms of airplane pollution, and they certainly have caused enormous traffic jams.

So consistent with the language the gentleman has in the bill, I was concerned that, as currently drafted, it might be giving Federal bureaucrats too much discretion. For this reason, this amendment, I believe, does the same thing with the precision which was originally intended. I think the change in language gives that precision. The amendment would simply require the Secretary of Transportation to grant New Jersey this commonsense waiver for I–287 that we already have for Route 80, so New Jersey assures the Secretary that removing these lanes is in the public interest.

I think the legislative language will make a big difference for New Jersey, and it will return the decision-making process to the people of the State.

Mr. WOLF. If the gentlewoman will continue to yield, Mr. Chairman, the gentlemen from New Jersey, Mr. FRANKS and Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, have spoken to me about this. I think it is a wonderful amendment, and we accept it.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman. I really appreciate the help, and so do the people of New Jersey.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, let me indicate that the Department has some serious reservations about this provision. I expect we will adopt it tonight, but I would indicate to our friends from New Jersey, I think this is something we need to keep visiting about as we go to conference.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from New Jersey (Mrs. ROUKEMA).

The amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. BARR OF GEORGIA

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. BARR of Georgia:

At the end of the bill insert the following:

SEC. . None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to carry out the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration proposed rule (Docket No. NHTSA-98-3945) dated June 17, 1998, which implements section 656(b) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

Mr. BARR of Georgia (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Georgia?

There was no objection.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I would like to engage in a colloquy with the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), the distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, with regard to Section 656 of the Illegal Immigration and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

In this important piece of legislation there was a section which requires States to produce driver's licenses that conform to Federal specifications.

Recently, the Department of Transportation has promulgated a rule to provide the basis for a national identification card. It does this in part by directing that all Federal agencies may accept as proof of identity only a driver's license or identification document that conforms strictly to certain specific and uniform requirements; and that if a State driver's license issued by any State fails in any respect to conform to such requirements, it shall not be acceptable for any Federal purpose or by any Federal agency.

The proposed rule also requires that all drivers' licenses or identification cards contain a Social Security number. I understand this was not the intention of that provision in the 1996 law, and that the author thereof, the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), agrees that the rule proposed by the U.S. Transportation Department, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, on June 17, 1998, in the Federal Register at pages 33219 to 33225, goes far beyond the intent of Section 656 of the 1996 legislation.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is correct, the legislation we passed was designed only to address necessary steps to deal with a specific problem, such as illegal immigration in the United States. It was not the intention of the bill or the Congress to establish a national ID, or to require that all States issue only driver's licenses in a format required by the Federal Government.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Reclaiming my time, is it the chairman's reading of the proposed rule that the Department of Transportation has gone far beyond the scope of congressional intent with respect to the rules of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration issued in the Federal Register on June 17, 1998?

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) is correct. The proposed rule does go far beyond the intent and scope of section 656 of the 1996 legislation.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, would the distinguished gentleman commit to work with me, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL), and others to draft and enact legislation before the adjournment of this Congress which will prevent the establishment of a national ID card and properly limit rules and regulations issued by the administration so as to conform to the intent and purpose of section 656 of the 1996 legislation?

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would continue to yield, as the chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims and as a coauthor of the language in section 656, I will work with the gentleman, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL), and others who might be interested, to draft and enact legislation this Congress that will prevent the Department of Transportation, or any other agency or department of the executive branch, from establishing or requiring a national ID card that might result from the aforesaid rules proposed in the Federal Register on June 17, 1998.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Texas for his commitment to work on this legislation which will address this serious situation.

At this time, I will amend my amendment so that its only purpose will be to rescind the rules proposed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration in the Federal Register on June 17, 1998, at pages 33219 to 33225, 23 CFR, part 1331, entitled State-Issued Driver's Licenses and Comparable Identification Documents; Proposed Rule.

This will not hamper the legitimate purpose of the legislation proposed and adopted in 1996 as section 656 but will simply force the administration to go back and propose more limited rules consistent with the law and congressional intent.

Mr. Chairman, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I am very pleased that this subject has been brought to the House floor tonight. I am very pleased that the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) has offered this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, it does not solve the problem that we face here in the Congress and in this country, and that is the perpetual invasion of our privacy. It has been said even by the author of the immigration bill that the intent was not to have a national ID card, but if Members would read the regulations now being written by the Department of Transportation, it can be seen as nothing else.

This indeed would be a national ID card. Last week, we dealt with the subject of medical IDs and a national data bank. Fortunately, something was put into the Patient Protection Act to stymie that a little bit.

But there is an ongoing onslaught against personal privacy in this country. And in 1996, of course, when the immigration bill was passed, this authority was given. Quite frankly, even though I am quite pleased with the efforts that we have made here tonight, I think ultimately, if we are sincere about protecting the American people and guaranteeing that we do not have a national identification card, we will repeal that authority. Tonight we are not doing that, but at least we are putting a roadblock in these regulations now being written.

I do not think this is an accident. I do not think that this is something that we should be surprised about. Too often, Congress writes regulations and gives authority to certain departments and agencies of government, and then they go beyond the scope; and, too often, we do not pay much attention to it. Fortunately, under these circumstances, I think that it has been brought to the attention of the Congress and proper action has been started, so I am very pleased to be able to support this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, in the bigger picture, I think that we are going to continue to see this problem, because when a government gets very large, when a government gets very bureaucratic and when it is difficult to solve all the problems, the government naturally becomes more authoritarian and then the effort becomes how do we get the government to work efficiently? So there is a contest going on in the country today, and it is going to continue: the efficiency of government versus the privacy and the freedoms of the individual.

I do not believe that we have been sent here to protect the interests of the State. We have been sent here to uphold the Constitution and protect the liberties of the individual. So this is a perfect example of a contest going on between the bureaucracy and the encroachment of big government versus the individual liberties of other American citizens.

So I am pleased with this amendment and, hopefully, it will pass. I think we have to continue to be vigilant about privacy in our medical records and the abuse of the social security number as the national identifier. There are many, many pieces of legislation; there are 40 times we have authorized in this Congress for the social security number to be used as the identifier. It was never intended that way.

So I plead with my fellow colleagues to continue to be vigilant and watch out and protect the individual liberty and the privacy of all of us.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I am concerned that, after midnight, we raise the question here that goes not to the heart of the transportation bill before us but to questions of the implementation of the immigration bill.

I am very concerned when I hear some of my colleagues who I think very much would like to see a national ID card raise the specter that the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's rulemaking, which is pursuant to the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigration Responsibility Act of 1996, is in fact that they are concerned about that, when they are raising the rules based upon the mandate that the legislation had.

Now, what does a mandate do? It says that a State-issued driver's license and comparable identification document provides that a Federal Agency may only accept as proof of identity a driver's license or identification document that conforms to specific requirements in accordance with regulations to be issued by the Secretary of Transportation.

Now if the Department of Transportation, under the act that was passed and offered by the majority, can never issue the rulemaking to give the standard, then the person who is a permanent legal resident of the United States does not have a vehicle by which, in fact, to show identification and, therefore, be able to give themselves the opportunity to access whatever it is governmentally that they wish, whether it be a program or otherwise.

So I would like to ask, if I may, the sponsor of the amendment, the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR), if he would be willing to respond to a question. My question is, is not the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration just doing the rulemaking that the legislation which I believe you and the gentleman from Texas (Chairman SMITH) supported?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MENENDEZ. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, that is the question. I would say to the gentleman from New Jersey, it appears that the rule that they are proposing goes beyond the intent.

Mr. Chairman, I just talked with the distinguished gentleman from Virginia (Chairman WOLF), and based on a colloquy that he and I are going to ask unanimous consent to engage in, we will be withdrawing the amendment at this time.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman will be withdrawing the amendment?

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Yes, based on a colloquy that I will have with the gentleman from Virginia.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, I accept that is what will happen. Would this amendment not, in essence, be legislating on an appropriations bill?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair cannot rule on that at this point, because the amendment is already pending.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, can the Chair advise if the amendment is appropriately drafted for the purposes of pursuing this appropriations bill?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair cannot respond to that as a parliamentary inquiry. The amendment is before us.

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, it basically would be legislative in intent, if it is not actually legislation on an appropriations bill. I ask the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) if he would withdraw his amendment. It is 12:20 at night. Nobody has seen it.

Mr. Chairman, what we have offered to do is set up a meeting next week with NHTSA. The minority staff will be there. The majority staff will be there. The gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BARR) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH) will be there. And we will sit down and see what we can do to work it out.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLF. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Chairman, based on the fact that there may be something problematic in the language in that we are dealing here with fiscal year 1998–1999 appropriated funds, the rule that the administration is proposing, as I understand it, would go into effect next month. That is August of 1998. And while it certainly would be implemented over a period of time, it would clearly bring it into fiscal year 1999.

Therefore, I think that the amendment is appropriate. It is not legislating. It would simply be to stop appropriated funds for fiscal year 1999 from being used to continue to implement this rule, which will go into fiscal year 1999 in its implementation.

However, in light of that and in light of the assurances of the gentleman from Virginia, whom I certainly respect, and in light of the fact that the chairman of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, the author of the original language, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SMITH), will work with us next week in setting up a meeting with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to see if we can work out an agreement with them and, if not, thereafter propose a legislative remedy for this, I will at this time withdraw the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the amendment is withdrawn.

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to the bill?

Mr. BALDACCI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of supporting the transportation appropriations bill and also to enter into a colloquy with the ranking minority member.

Mr. Chairman, the committee's recommendation for the Federal Highway Administration's research program includes $15.2 million for research into high performance materials and bridge systems which could be applied to improve our Nation's infrastructure. This amount is $1.8 million less than the $17 million included in the Senate transportation bill.

The Senate bill also includes $1 million for wood composite research and $1 million for the University of Maine's Advanced Engineered Wood Composite Center. This is an exciting program that has yielded many innovations with wood composites and their applications to our country's transportation needs, from better bridges to lighter trucks.

When the House conferees meet with the Senate conferees on this bill, I ask the conferees' support for the Senate's provisions providing $2 million for this important research which will go a long way in making bridges of all kinds more economical.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BALDACCI. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished gentleman from Maine for bringing this important issue before the House. I agree that we need to aggressively pursue new technologies that will make our transportation infrastructure safer, more economical and friendlier towards the environment.

As the House and Senate conferees meet, I assure the gentleman that as the ranking minority member of the subcommittee, I will certainly do all that I can to ensure that the funding for this important activity receives full consideration.

Mr. BALDACCI. I thank the gentleman for those comments and for his support.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments to the bill? The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999".

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Chairman, some have argued that the TEA–21 highway and transit firewalls somehow have caused the appropriators to underfund other discretionary spending. This is false. The truth is that TEA–21 provided more, not less, funds for remaining discretionary appropriations.

First, all the increased spending for the highway and transit firewalls was fully reflected in the firewalls and fully offset by other, saving provisions in TEA–21.

Second, the current, overall discretionary spending caps were only adjusted downward by the amount of highway and transit spending provided in 1998.

In other words, existing discretionary spending was not reduced by the amount of firewall spending, but rather by the amount that the appropriators had previously provided for FY 1998.

Third, there is no longer any pressure on the existing discretionary spending caps to fund increased highway trust fund spending.

Without a doubt, if these new highway and transit firewalls had not been created, there would have been inordinate pressure within the existing caps to increase trust fund spending above fiscal year 1998 levels.

Fourth, because of differences in CBO's and OMB's scoring of the discretionary cap adjustments an extra $900 million of outlays was added to the appropriations Committee's 302 allocation for fiscal year 1999.

Over the next five years, the effect of this adjustment is between $4 and $5 billion.

The fact is that TEA–21 made more funds available for remaining discretionary programs. If certain non-firewall transportation programs remain underfunded, the cause is not TEA–21, but rather decisions by the appropriators to spend the money elsewhere.

Finally, the argument that other transportation programs are underfunded because the appropriators cannot reduce firewalled spending to increase other, general fund programs has already been rejected by the Congress and the President.

The sole purpose of the firewalls—which I remind my colleagues was a compromise from the House position of taking the highway trust fund off-budget—was to guarantee that future gasoline taxes are spent for their intended purposes.

TEA–21 settled for once and for all that this Congress will no longer continue the charade of masking the size of general fund spending through raiding the highway trust fund.

In conclusion, I compliment the appropriations committee for fully funding and complying with the highway and transit firewalls in TEA–21. Let us not confuse this good work with faulty arguments about the effect of the firewalls on remaining discretionary spending.

Mr. POSHARD. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the FY99 Transportation Appropriations measure. This bill incorporates the funding levels agreed to in the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA–21) and will help ensure that our nation's roads and highways remain safe and that our transportation needs will be met into the next century. I am especially pleased with this legislation because it represents the fact that we will now be using our gas tax receipts for their intended purpose.

In addition, I applaud Chairman WOLF and Representative SABO for including $609 million in the bill for assistance to Amtrak. Amtrak is of vital importance to my constituents and to countless Americans who rely on its service to this country, and continued funding for Amtrak will help these dedicated men and women retain their jobs.

As a member of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, I am acutely aware of the constant need to fund maintenance and construction projects in order to provide the safe, efficient, and high quality transportation services on which Americans have come to depend. I believe this bill will help us do that, and I urge my colleagues to join me in support of H.R. 4328.

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Chairman, and I want to thank the distinguished Subcommittee Chairman from Virginia for all the work he has done on this bill.

Mr. Chairman, in April of this year, two jetliners nearly collided over LaGuardia Airport in New York. Thousands of my constituents fly to and from LaGuardia each and every year. A subsequent investigation led the FAA to order a two-hour "refresher" training for their air traffic controllers, but I am concerned that this incident may only be the tip of the iceberg and may reflect similar problems at other airports around the nation.

Over the last 4 years the FAA has delayed, reduced or eliminated planned air traffic controller proficiency and operational training at many airports, including New York, Miami, Washington DC, Atlanta and Kansas City. Although the Congress has in the past fully funded the FAA request for safety training, the agency has for various reasons not fulfilled their own training plans.

In Fiscal Year 1996, Congress included report language in the Transportation Appropriations conference report that recognized this problem and urged the FAA to address the issue. However, over the last several fiscal years, the FAA has still not fully funded their own training plans. This lack of funding has led to a high number of operational errors among air traffic controllers where that refresher training has not taken place.

I am concerned that perhaps the Administration is not asking the Congress for sufficient funding to adequately address this training. With a growing number of new controllers, the FAA has identified its needs but the Administration has failed to include enough funding in its budget request to make up for the previous year's funding shortfall.

Mr. Chairman, it is my strong position that the Other Body's report language on this topic should be accepted during the House-Senate conference on this legislation. In my view the Senate report language will help make our skies safer for the traveling public.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. Chairman, I would like to share with my colleagues a program that is very important to my district and to the State of Oregon. In the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, H.R. 4328, I requested $1.5 million be appropriated to the Oregon Department of Transportation for a joint effort with the Aviation Life Flight Network in Oregon. Although H.R. 4328 does not provide funds for this program, this is a very worthwhile program, and one that is worthy of congressional support.

Oregon's Aeronautics Section, in partnership with Life Flight Network, a consortium of Oregon Health Care Providers, proposes to establish global position systems (GPS) instrument and weather systems at rural airports throughout the State of Oregon. By using GPS navigation through mountain passes and rural areas, medical helicopters would be able to serve rural communities and remote areas during periods of inclement weather. My district, the Second District of Oregon, is very rural in nature and has weather extremes that sometimes make it difficult to evacuate people in medical emergencies. The $1.5 million I requested for this program would go a long way to alleviate these problems. In addition, local businesses would be able to use local facilities for corporate and business air passenger and air freight purposes.

I ask that the Conferees on the House/Senate Conference Report for H.R. 4328 fund the $1.5 million needed for this very important program.

Mr. DELAHUNT. Mr. Chairman, I rise tonight to express grave concern about what I believe to be devastating funding reductions for the U.S. Coast Guard in this bill.

In my view, the decision to cut $29 million from overall FY98 levels, and to shift assets away from some of its most essential missions, will jeopardize the Coast Guard's capacity to safeguard environmental resources and maritime safety. In this context, the additional $15 million reduction in the operating account would seriously impair the Coast Guard's marine conservation, fisheries law enforcement and search-and-rescue capabilities.

I am especially dismayed that these cuts were accompanied by an $33.8 million increase in funding for drug interdiction. While I strongly support efforts to intercept illegal narcotics, by land and sea, I was astonished to learn that this new commitment would come at the expense of long-established Coast Guard ice-breaking and fisheries management duties—through budget offsets totaling $20 million and $13.8 million, respectively.

The historical pattern is all too familiar. Between operational cutbacks and expanded responsibilities, coastal communities will—once again—start calculating the odds of Coast Guard personnel reductions, decreased hours at sea and station closings.

As I read this legislation, there are no provisions relieving the Coast Guard of responsibility for delivering fuel to the Air force in Antarctica, or for its patrols to protect endangered right whales. Nor do I see directives relating to the billions of dollars in damage prevented to private property—or to its most critical mission, search-and-rescue. In the last decade, the Coast Guard has responded to a half-million SOS calls, and saved nearly 45,000 lives in the process. These services are somehow supposed to continue, unimpeded by crippling cutbacks.

The Congress cannot expect to have it both ways. We must decide what level of service we desire, then determine how—not whether—to pay for it. The consequences are matters, quite literally, of life and death.

I appreciate the difficulties facing appropriators under current budget constraints, but the committee faced the same pressure while increasing overall Transportation Department funding by 11 percent. The FAA is slated for a four percent increase; the Federal Transit Administration will receive 11 percent more; Amtrak will increase by 12 percent, and National Highway Safety Administration will get an additional 38 percent.

I do not presume to question the merits of these activities, any more than I contest beefing up drug interdiction efforts. I do, however, object vigorously to do so by arbitrarily diverting resources from essential Coast Guard missions.

The Subcommittee Chairman, in remarks accompanying the Committee Report, makes an impassioned argument for strengthened interdiction on the seas. What he fails to discuss, however, is the full cost of these added burdens—in terms of foregone icebreaking, fisheries enforcement or rescues at sea.

This bill enriches Paul, without even considering the impact on Peter. In so doing, it unnecessarily and irresponsibly places at risk marine resources, private property and human life.

The CHAIRMAN. If there are no further amendments to the bill, under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) having assumed the chair, Mr. GILLMOR, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 4328) making appropriations for the Department of Transportation and related agencies for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 510, he reported the bill, as amended pursuant to that rule, back to the House with further sundry amendments adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

Is a separate vote demanded on any amendment? If not, the Chair will put them en gros.

The amendments were agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the passage of the bill.

Pursuant to clause 7 of rule XV, the yeas and nays are ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 391, nays 25, not voting 18, as follows:

Mr. JONES and Mr. KASICH changed their vote from "yea" to "nay."

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

BIOMATERIALS ACCESS ASSURANCE ACT OF 1997

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H.R. 872) to establish rules governing product liability actions against raw materials and bulk component suppliers to medical device manufacturers, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

Ms. LOFGREN. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, and I will not object, but I do want to say how pleased I am and so many of us on this side of the aisle are to have this wonderful success this evening. We worked hard, we gained consensus on a bipartisan basis, opponents have come together for the good of the country, and I think it is really the way the legislative process should work. I want to thank the gentleman for his efforts. It has been really a privilege to work on this, and I know that this will help many in our country who need the medicine and need the implantables, and they will now be able to get them.

So, as I say, I reserve the right to object, but I do not object.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman not just for yielding this time to me, but for the continuous effort that she has expended in promoting the final moments which we are enjoying of the passage of this bill.

As the gentlewoman knows, some 7 million fellow Americans are at this very moment living better lives because of the medical devices which have been developed over the years and which were in danger of being stopped dead in their tracks by the lack of the flow of materials, basic materials needed in their manufacture. So this bill will go a long way in guaranteeing to the people who look forward to these medical devices in the near and far future.

We also want to put on the record the fact that the administration has nodded its head and given advanced approval of the bill so the prospects for its being signed into law are excellent.

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. GEKAS) for this important piece of legislation. As my colleagues know, we asked the gentleman to take on this cause, and let me just say I would like to thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania and the gentlewoman from California for the cooperative effort for those who need the implants and the biomaterials here, that we are talking about here today. And let me just say I would like to sort of congratulate my colleagues in the name of Titus, the young man who depends on shunts to be able to stay alive every day and was basically concerned that because of liability and the problems of liability, the biomaterials that make those shunts to keep him alive could be restricted from his position so that he could continue the happy life and the very active life.

If my colleagues met Titus, they would know what I mean. He is one of my constituents, is a young man that I look forward to watching him grow up and become prosperous, and with this kind of legislation, Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my colleagues in the name of Titus and for all the children and all the citizens in America that will be served by those biomaterials that might have been denied to people who desperately need them for life and limb.

Ms. LOFGREN. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that this bill is a very fair accommodation that will provide the relief necessary to keep materials in the marketplace, yet provides an opportunity should judicial relief be required to be made available.

So it strikes the exact right balance, I am proud to be associated with it, and as we have all noted at the Committee on the Judiciary, we believe that this measure should not be expanded in any way. We have got it where it needs to be, we all agree, and I am glad that we stand firm in that across the aisle.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield further?

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I am glad that the gentleman from California (Mr. BILBRAY) brought up the name of little Titus. He actually came with me at one point and sat on my knee as we both testified jointly before the relevant committee in the subcommittee of the Committee on Commerce, and I must say that he carried the day with the poignancy of the need of the special device which carries his life forward, and so he with young Tara Ransom it was, Tara Ransom also a child who needs this continuation of the medical device syndrome to survive, also testified, and thus we have a nationwide effort, shall we say, that has brought us to this moment.

Mr. BURR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, would the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. LOFGREN. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. BURR of North Carolina. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to rise in support of H.R. 872, the Biomaterials Access Assurance Act.

Biomaterials are the raw materials or component parts used by manufacturing companies to make implantable medical devices. Almost 8 million Americans have had their lives saved or improved by biomedicals, including anyone using a pacemaker, a heart valve, a hip joint, a knee joint or who have received sutures during surgery.

Last year the Committee on Commerce found that only 25 percent of the biomaterials companies are currently willing to supply implant manufacturers with necessary raw materials for production of medical devices. The other 75 percent have banned sales of their raw materials to medical implant markets in the United States. This means that in the United States my colleagues and their families may no longer be able to get the pacemaker or heart valve or knee joint, once stockpiles run out.

Why are these companies no longer willing to provide these lifesaving products? One hundred percent of the companies surveyed stated that a key factor driving them out of the American market was our out-of-control legal system that is bankrupting their operations.

☐ 0050

Tens of millions of dollars are being wasted on litigation cost for biomaterials suppliers to protect themselves from liability. Tens of millions of dollars that could be spent on research or making health care more affordable for the American people.

Any American who has been sued knows how the system works. Even if they are innocent, they risk going broke just to pay their legal fees to prove themselves in the case against them.

This bill does not protect the manufacturer of medical devices. They will still be liable to the injured victim for defective products. Nor does this bill protect the seller of medical devices. Consumers will still have every opportunity to get their full recoveries from the responsible parties.

This bill merely says that the entities who provide the raw materials used in medical devices, but do not manufacture or sell the device, and, therefore, are never found liable by the courts should not have to prove themselves out of the same types of litigation year after year after year.

H.R. 872 was reported unanimously out of the Committee on Commerce and has been negotiated on a bipartisan, bicameral basis with the participation and assistance of the administration.

Eight million Americans are relying on us to protect the continued supply of raw materials used for medical devices.

I urge everyone in this House to support this unanimous consent request.

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Biomaterial Access Assurance Act.

When companies decide to stop producing certain life-saving products because of the threat of costly litigation, we have reached the point in our society where our urge to protect smothers our ability to heal.

Medical implants such as heart valves, joint implants, and brain shunts save or improve the lives of more than 7.5 million people every year. The worldwide market for medical devices exceeds $100 billion, with about half of that supplied by American firms.

Biomaterials are the raw materials, such as silicone, polyester, urethane, and polypropylene, used to make medical devices. The already small number of U.S. firms that produce these materials is shrinking, as businesses face the threat of scatter-shot lawsuits. Under U.S. product liability laws, any party involved in the creation of a product—even remote contributors—may be included in product liability litigation.

It is a troubling paradox that now, when the opportunity for technical innovation in the use of medical implants has never been greater, Americans are being robbed of the benefits of these products.

Dupont decided in 1994 to halt the supply of three materials used in medical implants because the sale of small amounts of these marginally profitable materials exposed Dupont to very expensive product liability lawsuits, even if Dupont won.

The growing fear of litigation has led 14 suppliers to cut the supply of biomaterials to the medical implant market, with many certain to follow. The uncertainty surrounding the supply of biomaterials has already caused a technological slowdown. Companies are reluctant to push forward with new product ideas they're not sure they can ever afford to insure, manufacture and market.

Suppliers of raw biomaterials (mostly small companies) who do not make or design medical devices should not be held responsible when a manufactured product allegedly malfunctions. This protection from litigation is included in the Biomaterial Access Assurance Act.

This biomaterials reform legislation will not hold the manufacturers of faulty biomaterial products harmless. The ability to sue a supplier is maintained in the legislation if the biomaterial is defective, fails to meet contractual agreements, or where the supplier is also the manufacturer.

Putting small high-tech firms that make implantable medical devices out of business is an unfortunate economic consequence of our society's litigious nature. These firms should be nurtured and supported, not run out of business because they can't afford the cost of lawsuits, the vast majority of which they win, but which nevertheless soak up valuable financial and human resources.

Opponents of product liability reform often speak of their concern for the victims of defective products. But unless we enact this legislation, we could soon have more than 7.5 million more victims—those individuals who depend on medical devices made with biomateials.

I must admit to a certain personal interest in this subject. There is a medical implant, a small brain shunt, in my daughter Dorothy's head that serves as a relief valve so that the pressure from any fluid buildup from cancer growth can be relieved. I don't even know the name of the company that supplied the materials for the brain shunt. Yet I'm told by her doctors that our current short-sighted product liability laws may force the company that helped save my daughter's life to forego supplying any more such low-cost shunts.

In 1994, when Dorothy was diagnosed with brain cancer, her doctors gave her 50/50 odds of reaching her fifth birthday. Dorothy turned six last month, and will attend first grade in September. Her ongoing recovery is attributable to many factors, the shunt in her hand being only one. And yet the supplier of the material that forms that shunt might pull its product off the domestic medical device market, if it hasn't already, because of the looming danger of financial ruin posed by potential product liability lawsuits.

We can protect biomaterials suppliers, and provide a better quality life for the recipients of medical devices, by passing this bill.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 872, the "Biomaterials Access Assurance Act."

Modern medical science has produced true miracles, and we want to encourage continued innovation in this area. We all want to assure that those who suffer from injury or illness can get access to the treatments and technologies needed to treat or cure them. At the same time, however, we must recognize that consumers deserve protection from defective or unsafe medical devices or drugs. Since that the FDA cannot always be safely relied upon to prevent dangerous or unsafe drugs or medical devices from reaching the market, consumers currently depend on our system of tort law to compensate them for the harm caused by such products and to create incentives for product and materials manufacturers and suppliers to undertake rigorous product testing, issue appropriate warnings, and obtain sufficient insurance or indemnification to guard against litigation risks.

While I am generally skeptical about the notion of carving an entire class of persons out of tort liability, I agree that we should assure that patients can obtain access to critically needed medical devices. The House today is presented with a more narrow and limited biomaterials bill, which represents a significant improvement over previous incarnations and minimizes the prospect that injured consumers would be unable to obtain appropriate redress and compensation. Specifically, the bill before us today addresses the three concerns I had raised about legislating in this area in the Subcommittee's oversight hearing last year. First, it is a free-standing biomaterials bill, and not part of a broader product liability reform effort. Second, the so-called "English Rule" of the original bill has been dropped, which would have forced losing litigants to pay litigation costs. Third, and most importantly, an effort has been made in the impleading provisions of the bill to address the concerns I raised in the hearing regarding the need to assure that fraudulent suppliers could be held liable for their actions.

These are all positive changes, and in light of their adoption I intend to support this legislation today. I do wish to note, for the record, however, that I continue to have some concerns about the extension of the bill to cover manufacturers of component parts in addition to raw material suppliers. While I understand the arguments made in support of this legislation as it relates to the supply of raw materials, this bill also protects the manufacturers of "component parts" of implantable devices. Raw materials, such as silicone or polyethylene, are vastly different subject matter from components, which can be as technically diverse as batteries, tubes, wiring and pacemaker leads. Yet there is little, if any, substantiation in the legislative record for broadening H.R. 872's protections to the manufacturers of such components. While I, the gentleman from California (Mr. WAXMAN) and others on this side of the aisle support the bill moving forward, we believe liability protection for manufacturers of component parts should be very carefully reviewed before this bill achieves final passage. If the provision remains in the bill, it should be construed as narrowly as possible to avoid unintended consequences of limiting liability of the makers of the manufactured pieces of such devices. I hope that we can work in conference to address these concerns.

In addition, I am concerned about reports that an effort may be underway to use this biomaterials bill as a vehicle to get into conference on a broader product liability legislation, or to broaden the scope of the bill to cover other medical devices. I want to caution strongly against either course of action. My support is contingent on one very specific understanding: that this legislation not be expanded beyond the form reported by the Commerce Committee.

I would, for example, be strongly opposed to changes in which FDA-regulated products are included within the class of biomaterials that receive special protections in this bill. On June 23, 1998, we received a letter from Jim Benson, executive vice president of the Health Industry Manufacturers Association (HIMA), assuring us that it is the intention of that organization to oppose any efforts to change the bill as reported or encumber it with other legislative items. I commend HIMA for taking this stance.

This possibility is not mere speculation. On July 9, 1998, the New York Times reported that Senate Majority Leader Lott had handwritten an amendment into the Senate version of H.R. 872 on behalf of a major medical device manufacturer, Baxter International. Baxter recently lost a $18 million lawsuit to the family of Andrina Hansen, who suffered severe brain damage because of a faulty Baxter Intravenous, or IV, connector.

In 1991, Mrs. Hansen underwent surgery for a bleeding ulcer. After successful surgery, the disconnection of a postoperative IV forced air into her brain, causing a stroke. Mrs. Hansen spent four years in a nursing home as a quadriplegic before she died. When her family took legal action, all defendants settled except Baxter Healthcare, a subsidiary of Baxter International and the manufacturer of the faculty IV connector.

According to the court record, Baxter's internal memoranda documented the company's awareness that its IV connector design allowed IV tubing to slip. This defect was also the subject of almost 70 lawsuits over 20 years. Baxter also manufactured a newer, improved connector which prevented fatal incidents like Mrs. Hansen's. But Baxter never warned patients or health providers of these problems.

The proposed Senate amendment would insulate Baxter and similar underserving manufacturers of component parts of "containers and their related products to be used to collect fluids or tissue from the body or to infuse or to otherwise introduce fluids or tissue into the body" from liability for defective and dangerous products. This would be true even if it was the component, such as Baxter's defective IV connector, and not the entire device which was the cause of injuries or deaths.

In a July 10 letter to Senate Majority Leader Lott, Alan Magazine, president, and Ronald Dollens, chairman-elect of HIMA wrote of their organization's "very serious concerns about expanding [H.R. 872] to medical devices not considered during the four-year long debate on this legislation."

I take HIMA at their word in this commitment, and commend them for making it. I also accept the assurances of our colleagues on the Commerce Committee that passage of this bill without amendment is their intention. But if that is not the case—if this bill is amended adversely or becomes a vehicle for unwarranted Senate changes—then I will not support it and in fact will do all I can to see that it does not become law.

In its present form, however, this is a limited bill that I think the Members can and should support. Thank you, Mr. Speaker, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the Biomaterials Access Assurance Act. I want to thank my colleague, Mr. GEKAS, and the Committee Chairmen, Mr. HYDE and Mr. BLILEY, for bringing this important legislation forward.

This legislation seeks to alleviate a critical shortage of biomaterials available to our nation's medical device manufacturers. Biomaterials are the raw materials and component parts that go into life-saving and life-enhancing medical implants and devices. These devices include heart valves, prosthetics, brain shunts, and many other devices that provide an unmeasurable benefit to the lives of millions of Americans. Our citizens can only continue to enjoy these benefits if the biomaterials that go into such devices remain available.

This legislation will ensure that patients have access to the biomaterials and medical devices that they need. Over the last several years, I have met with researchers and doctors who manufacture medical devices. Each time we meet they stress the importance of this legislation and show another area of critical shortage in biomaterials which could prevent them from making the medical devices which save lives.

I have also met with parents and children who suffer from diseases which require these important medical devices. One of these young men is Titus Simonini, 5, who suffers from Hydrocephalus, a condition in which spinal fluid is blocked and builds up in the brain, often causing brain damage, paralysis and death. Titus' condition is treated through the implantation of silastic shunts, a silicon-coated device that regulates the fluid and prevents the buildup in the brain. These shunts are manufactured by only two small suppliers in the entire country. Without this legislation we are approaching the day when children like Titus won't have these products that make their lives possible.

The Biomaterials Access Assurance Act protects biomaterials suppliers from the litigation that swarms to them whenever they sell to the medical device market, even though they take no part in the design, testing, or sales of medical devices. The Biomaterials Access Assurance Act gives biomaterials suppliers a quick exit from lawsuits in which they would not be found liable anyway.

With regards to this important issue, it is equally important to stress what this bill does not do. The bill does not protect anyone who is involved in the design, testing, manufacture, or sale of medical implants. The bill also does not allow biomaterials suppliers to be negligent or fraudulent in their sale of materials to the medical market. As everyone knows, medical implants are intricately designed and rigorously tested in the FDA approval process. The specifications and tolerances of the materials that go into these devices are very precise and very narrow. If a biomaterials supplier fails to meet contractual specifications or specifications given to the Food and Drug Administration in the premarket approval process, the protections of this bill evaporate.

Now, these are narrow, technical points that should not detract from the main focus of this legislation. The threat to biomaterials access is a problem on which Congress must take action. With the protections of this legislation material suppliers will continue to provide important components for medical devices that help Americans live healthier and more productive lives. I encourage all of my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 872, the Biomaterial Acccess Assurance Act.

I believe a persuasive case has been made that many medical device manufacturers face a shortage of raw materials and component parts as a result of their suppliers' exposure to tort claims. It troubles me that consumers could be denied access to life-saving and life-enhancing products, and it is for this reason that I have long engaged in efforts to seek a legislative solution to the problem.

The manufacturers who have made the most compelling case to me are people I have known for years in my own state of California. Many of them are small companies who depend for critical supplies on corporate giants. Because of their deep pockets, these suppliers are almost invariably brought in as co-defendants in lawsuits brought against device manufacturers. Because the device manufacturers are often an inconsequential segment of the market for their raw materials and components, the suppliers have increasingly refused to sell to them.

This is the problem we need to solve. But as strongly as I feel about our responsibility to act, I did not embrace this bill as originally introduced. I felt that it was wrong to completely shield the supplier who may have a degree of culpability for a faulty device.

That is why I was heartened that further efforts were made to improve the bill in committee, by spelling out means by which the supplier, though initially dismissed, can be brought back into the lawsuit.

I believe the appropriate balance has now been struck between consumer protection from faulty devices and consumer access to life-saving and life-enhancing devices. For that reason, I enthusiastically support the bill we have before us today.

I am compelled to make one further statement. I emphatically believe the case has been made for H.R. 872 in the form in which it is presented to us today. I do not believe the case has been made for an expansion of the bill beyond its present countours.

To be more precise, I am well aware that efforts have been made to expand the scope of the bill to include devices that do not fit the term "implant" as defined in the bill, thereby sweeping in devices and materials used outside of the body.

I want to be very clear that I will withdraw my support for this bill if along the way it is expanded beyond its present terms either by broadening its scope or enrolling it into a broader product liability bill. Today's floor consideration has long been sought by myself and other supporters of this bill. But it would be snatching defeat from the jaws of victory than for anyone to alter the careful balance achieved by this bill.

I profoundly hope that we can pass this bill today and have it quickly taken up by the other body, so that the millions of Americans who depend on life-saving and life-enhancing medical devices can be assured that they can continue to rely on the products of America's peerless medical technology industry.

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 872

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Biomaterials Access Assurance Act of 1997".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) each year millions of citizens of the United States depend on the availability of lifesaving or life enhancing medical devices, many of which are permanently implantable within the human body;

(2) a continued supply of raw materials and component parts is necessary for the invention, development, improvement, and maintenance of the supply of the devices;

(3) most of the medical devices are made with raw materials and component parts that—

(A) are not designed or manufactured specifically for use in medical devices; and

(B) come in contact with internal human tissue;

(4) the raw materials and component parts also are used in a variety of nonmedical products;

(5) because small quantities of the raw materials and component parts are used for medical devices, sales of raw materials and component parts for medical devices constitute an extremely small portion of the overall market for the raw materials and medical devices;

(6) under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.), manufacturers of medical devices are required to demonstrate that the medical devices are safe and effective, including demonstrating that the products are properly designed and have adequate warnings or instructions;

(7) notwithstanding the fact that raw materials and component parts suppliers do not design, produce, or test a final medical device, the suppliers have been the subject of actions alleging inadequate—

(A) design and testing of medical devices manufactured with materials or parts supplied by the suppliers; or

(B) warnings related to the use of such medical devices;

(8) even though suppliers of raw materials and component parts have very rarely been held liable in such actions, such suppliers have ceased supplying certain raw materials and component parts for use in medical devices because the costs associated with litigation in order to ensure a favorable judgment for the suppliers far exceeds the total potential sales revenues from sales by such suppliers to the medical device industry;

(9) unless alternate sources of supply can be found, the unavailability of raw materials and component parts for medical devices will lead to unavailability of lifesaving and life-enhancing medical devices;

(10) because other suppliers of the raw materials and component parts in foreign nations are refusing to sell raw materials or component parts for use in manufacturing certain medical devices in the United States, the prospects for development of new sources of supply for the full range of threatened raw materials and component parts for medical devices are remote;

(11) it is unlikely that the small market for such raw materials and component parts in the United States could support the large investment needed to develop new suppliers of such raw materials and component parts;

(12) attempts to develop such new suppliers would raise the cost of medical devices;

(13) courts that have considered the duties of the suppliers of the raw materials and component parts have generally found that the suppliers do not have a duty—

(A) to evaluate the safety and efficacy of the use of a raw material or component part in a medical device; and

(B) to warn consumers concerning the safety and effectiveness of a medical device;

(14) attempts to impose the duties referred to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (13) on suppliers of the raw materials and component parts would cause more harm than good by driving the suppliers to cease supplying manufacturers of medical devices; and

(15) in order to safeguard the availability of a wide variety of lifesaving and life-enhancing medical devices, immediate action is needed—

(A) to clarify the permissible bases of liability for suppliers of raw materials and component parts for medical devices; and

(B) to provide expeditious procedures to dispose of unwarranted suits against the suppliers in such manner as to minimize litigation costs.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this Act:

(1) Biomaterials supplier.—

(A) In general.—The term "biomaterials supplier" means an entity that directly or indirectly supplies a component part or raw material for use in the manufacture of an implant.

(B) Persons included.—Such term includes any person who—

(i) has submitted master files to the Secretary for purposes of premarket approval of a medical device; or

(ii) licenses a biomaterials supplier to produce component parts or raw materials.

(2) Claimant.—

(A) In general.—The term "claimant" means any person who brings a civil action, or on whose behalf a civil action is brought, arising from harm allegedly caused directly or indirectly by an implant, including a person other than the individual into whose body, or in contact with whose blood or tissue, the implant is placed, who claims to have suffered harm as a result of the implant.

(B) Action brought on behalf of an estate.—With respect to an action brought on behalf of or through the estate of an individual into whose body, or in contact with whose blood or tissue the implant is placed, such term includes the decedent that is the subject of the action.

(C) Action brought on behalf of a minor or incompetent.—With respect to an action brought on behalf of or through a minor or incompetent, such term includes the parent or guardian of the minor or incompetent.

(D) Exclusions.—Such term does not include—

(i) a provider of professional health care services, in any case in which—

(I) the sale or use of an implant is incidental to the transaction; and

(II) the essence of the transaction is the furnishing of judgment, skill, or services;

(ii) a person acting in the capacity of a manufacturer, seller, or biomaterials supplier; or

(iii) a person alleging harm caused by either the silicone gel or the silicone envelope utilized in a breast implant containing silicone gel, except that—

(I) neither the exclusion provided by this clause nor any other provision of this Act may be construed as a finding that silicone gel (or any other form of silicone) may or may not cause harm; and

(II) the existence of the exclusion under this clause may not be disclosed to a jury in any civil action or other proceeding and, except as necessary to establish the applicability of this Act, otherwise be presented in any civil action or other proceeding.

(B) Exclusions.—The term does not include—

(i) a seller or lessor of real property;

(ii) a provider of professional services, in any case in which the sale or use of an implant is incidental to the transaction and the essence of the transaction is the furnishing of judgment, skill, or services; or

(iii) any person who acts in only a financial capacity with respect to the sale of an implant.

SEC. 4. GENERAL REQUIREMENTS; APPLICABILITY; PREEMPTION.

(a) General Requirements.—

(1) In general.—In any civil action covered by this Act, a biomaterials supplier may raise any defense set forth in section 5.

(2) Procedures.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Federal or State court in which a civil action covered by this Act is pending shall, in connection with a motion for dismissal or judgment based on a defense described in paragraph (1), use the procedures set forth in section 6.

(b) APPLICABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), notwithstanding any other provision of law, this Act applies to any civil action brought by a claimant, whether in a Federal or State court, against a manufacturer, seller, or biomaterials supplier, on the basis of any legal theory, for harm allegedly caused by an implant.

(2) EXCLUSION.—A civil action brought by a purchaser of a medical device for use in providing professional services against a manufacturer, seller, or biomaterials supplier for loss or damage to an implant or for commercial loss to the purchaser—

(B) shall be governed by applicable commercial or contract law.

(c) SCOPE OF PREEMPTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act supersedes any State law regarding recovery for harm caused by an implant and any rule of procedure applicable to a civil action to recover damages for such harm only to the extent that this Act establishes a rule of law applicable to the recovery of such damages.

(2) APPLICABILITY OF OTHER LAWS.—Any issue that arises under this Act and that is not governed by a rule of law applicable to the recovery of damages described in paragraph (1) shall be governed by applicable Federal or State law.

(d) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this Act may be construed—

(1) to affect any defense available to a defendant under any other provisions of Federal or State law in an action alleging harm caused by an implant; or

(2) to create a cause of action or Federal court jurisdiction pursuant to section 1331 or 1337 of title 28, United States Code, that otherwise would not exist under applicable Federal or State law.

SEC. 5. LIABILITY OF BIOMATERIALS SUPPLIERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) EXCLUSION FROM LIABILITY.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), a biomaterials supplier shall not be liable for harm to a claimant caused by an implant.

(2) LIABILITY.—A biomaterials supplier that—

(A) is a manufacturer may be liable for harm to a claimant described in subsection (b);

(B) is a seller may be liable for harm to a claimant described in subsection (c); and

(C) furnishes raw materials or component parts that fail to meet applicable contractual requirements or specifications may be liable for a harm to a claimant described in subsection (d).

(b) LIABILITY AS MANUFACTURER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required and permitted by any other applicable law, be liable for harm to a claimant caused by an implant if the biomaterials supplier is the manufacturer of the implant.

(2) GROUNDS FOR LIABILITY.—The biomaterials supplier may be considered the manufacturer of the implant that allegedly caused harm to a claimant only if the biomaterials supplier—

(A)(i) has registered with the Secretary pursuant to section 510 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360) and the regulations issued under such section; and

(ii) included the implant on a list of devices filed with the Secretary pursuant to section 510(j) of such Act (21 U.S.C. 360(j)) and the regulations issued under such section;

(B) is the subject of a declaration issued by the Secretary pursuant to paragraph (3) that states that the supplier, with respect to the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant, was required to—

(i) register with the Secretary under section 510 of such Act (21 U.S.C. 360), and the regulations issued under such section, but failed to do so; or

(ii) include the implant on a list of devices filed with the Secretary pursuant to section 510(j) of such Act (21 U.S.C. 360(j)) and the regulations issued under such section, but failed to do so; or

(C) is related by common ownership or control to a person meeting all the requirements described in subparagraph (A) or (B), if the court deciding a motion to dismiss in accordance with section 6(c)(3)(B)(i) finds, on the basis of affidavits submitted in accordance with section 6, that it is necessary to impose liability on the biomaterials supplier as a manufacturer because the related manufacturer meeting the requirements of subparagraph (A) or (B) lacks sufficient financial resources to satisfy any judgment that the court feels it is likely to enter should the claimant prevail.

(3) ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may issue a declaration described in paragraph (2)(B) on the motion of the Secretary or on petition by any person, after providing—

(i) notice to the affected persons; and

(ii) an opportunity for an informal hearing.

(C) APPLICABILITY OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.—Any applicable statute of limitations shall toll during the period during which a claimant has filed a petition with the Secretary under this paragraph.

(c) LIABILITY AS SELLER.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required and permitted by any other applicable law, be liable as a seller for harm to a claimant caused by an implant if—

(1) the biomaterials supplier—

(A) held title to the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant as a result of purchasing the implant after—

(i) the manufacture of the implant; and

(ii) the entrance of the implant in the stream of commerce; and

(B) subsequently resold the implant; or

(2) the biomaterials supplier is related by common ownership or control to a person meeting all the requirements described in paragraph (1), if a court deciding a motion to dismiss in accordance with section 6(c)(3)(B)(ii) finds, on the basis of affidavits submitted in accordance with section 6, that it is necessary to impose liability on the biomaterials supplier as a seller because the related seller meeting the requirements of paragraph (1) lacks sufficient financial resources to satisfy any judgment that the court feels it is likely to enter should the claimant prevail.

(d) LIABILITY FOR VIOLATING CONTRACTUAL REQUIREMENTS OR SPECIFICATIONS.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required and permitted by any other applicable law, be liable for harm to a claimant caused by an implant, if the claimant in an action shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that—

(1) the raw materials or component parts delivered by the biomaterials supplier either—

(A) did not constitute the product described in the contract between the biomaterials supplier and the person who contracted for delivery of the product; or

(B) failed to meet any specifications that were—

(i) provided to the biomaterials supplier and not expressly repudiated by the biomaterials supplier prior to acceptance of delivery of the raw materials or component parts;

(ii)(I) published by the biomaterials supplier;

(II) provided to the manufacturer by the biomaterials supplier; or

(III) contained in a master file that was submitted by the biomaterials supplier to the Secretary and that is currently maintained by the biomaterials supplier for purposes of premarket approval of medical devices; or

(iii) included in the submissions for purposes of premarket approval or review by the Secretary under section 510, 513, 515, or 520 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360, 360c, 360e, or 360j), and received clearance from the Secretary if such specifications were provided by the manufacturer to the biomaterials supplier and were not expressly repudiated by the biomaterials supplier prior to the acceptance by the manufacturer of delivery of the raw materials or component parts; and

(2) such conduct was an actual and proximate cause of the harm to the claimant.

SEC. 6. PROCEDURES FOR DISMISSAL OF CIVIL ACTIONS AGAINST BIOMATERIALS SUPPLIERS.

(a) MOTION TO DISMISS.—In any action that is subject to this Act, a biomaterials supplier who is a defendant in such action may, at any time during which a motion to dismiss may be filed under an applicable law, move to dismiss the action against it on the grounds that—

(1) the defendant is a biomaterials supplier; and

(2)(A) the defendant should not, for the purposes of—

(i) section 5(b), be considered to be a manufacturer of the implant that is subject to such section; or

(ii) section 5(c), be considered to be a seller of the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant; or

(B)(i) the claimant has failed to establish, pursuant to section 5(d), that the supplier furnished raw materials or component parts in violation of contractual requirements or specifications; or

(ii) the claimant has failed to comply with the procedural requirements of subsection (b).

(b) MANUFACTURER OF IMPLANT SHALL BE NAMED A PARTY.—The claimant shall be required to name the manufacturer of the implant as a party to the action, unless—

(1) the manufacturer is subject to service of process solely in a jurisdiction in which the biomaterials supplier is not domiciled or subject to a service of process; or

(2) an action against the manufacturer is barred by applicable law.

(c) PROCEEDING ON MOTION TO DISMISS.—The following rules shall apply to any proceeding on a motion to dismiss filed under this section:

(1) AFFIDAVITS RELATING TO LISTING AND DECLARATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The defendant in the action may submit an affidavit demonstrating that defendant has not included the implant on a list, if any, filed with the Secretary pursuant to section 510(j) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360(j)).

(B) Response to motion to dismiss.—In response to the motion to dismiss, the claimant may submit an affidavit demonstrating that—

(i) the Secretary has, with respect to the defendant and the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant, issued a declaration pursuant to section 5(b)(2)(B); or

(ii) the defendant who filed the motion to dismiss is a seller of the implant who is liable under section 5(c).

(2) Effect of motion to dismiss on discovery.—

(A) In general.—If a defendant files a motion to dismiss under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a), no discovery shall be permitted in connection to the action that is the subject of the motion, other than discovery necessary to determine a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, until such time as the court rules on the motion to dismiss in accordance with the affidavits submitted by the parties in accordance with this section.

(B) Discovery.—If a defendant files a motion to dismiss under subsection (a)(2)(B)(i) on the grounds that the biomaterials supplier did not furnish raw materials or component parts in violation of contractual requirements or specifications, the court may permit discovery, as ordered by the court. The discovery conducted pursuant to this subparagraph shall be limited to issues that are directly relevant to—

(i) the pending motion to dismiss; or

(ii) the jurisdiction of the court.

(3) Affidavits relating status of defendant.—

(A) In general.—Except as provided in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (B), the court shall consider a defendant to be a biomaterials supplier who is not subject to an action for harm to a claimant caused by an implant, other than an action relating to liability for a violation of contractual requirements or specifications described in subsection (d).

(B) Responses to motion to dismiss.—The court shall grant a motion to dismiss any action that asserts liability of the defendant under subsection (b) or (c) of section 5 on the grounds that the defendant is not a manufacturer subject to such section 5(b) or seller subject to section 5(c), unless the claimant submits a valid affidavit that demonstrates that—

(i) with respect to a motion to dismiss contending the defendant is not a manufacturer, the defendant meets the applicable requirements for liability as a manufacturer under section 5(b); or

(ii) with respect to a motion to dismiss contending that the defendant is not a seller, the defendant meets the applicable requirements for liability as a seller under section 5(c).

(4) Basis of ruling on motion to dismiss.—

(A) In general.—The court shall rule on a motion to dismiss filed under subsection (a) solely on the basis of the pleadings of the parties made pursuant to this section and any affidavits submitted by the parties pursuant to this section.

(B) Motion for summary judgment.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if the court determines that the pleadings and affidavits made by parties pursuant to this section raise genuine issues as concerning material facts with respect to a motion concerning contractual requirements and specifications, the court may deem the motion to dismiss to be a motion for summary judgment made pursuant to subsection (d).

(d) Summary Judgment.—

(1) In general.—

(A) Basis for entry of judgment.—A biomaterials supplier shall be entitled to entry of judgment without trial if the court finds there is no genuine issue as concerning any material fact for each applicable element set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 5(d).

(B) Issues of material fact.—With respect to a finding made under subparagraph (A), the court shall consider a genuine issue of material fact to exist only if the evidence submitted by claimant would be sufficient to allow a reasonable jury to reach a verdict for the claimant if the jury found the evidence to be credible.

(2) Discovery made prior to a ruling on a motion for summary judgment.—If, under applicable rules, the court permits discovery prior to a ruling on a motion for summary judgment made pursuant to this subsection, such discovery shall be limited solely to establishing whether a genuine issue of material fact exists as to the applicable elements set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 5(d).

(3) Discovery with respect to a biomaterials supplier.—A biomaterials supplier shall be subject to discovery in connection with a motion seeking dismissal or summary judgment on the basis of the inapplicability of section 5(d) or the failure to establish the applicable elements of section 5(d) solely to the extent permitted by the applicable Federal or State rules for discovery against nonparties.

(e) Stay Pending Petition for Declaration.—If a claimant has filed a petition for a declaration pursuant to section 5(b)(3)(A) with respect to a defendant, and the Secretary has not issued a final decision on the petition, the court shall stay all proceedings with respect to that defendant until such time as the Secretary has issued a final decision on the petition.

(f) Manufacturer Conduct of Proceeding.—The manufacturer of an implant that is the subject of an action covered under this Act shall be permitted to file and conduct a proceeding on any motion for summary judgment or dismissal filed by a biomaterials supplier who is a defendant under this section if the manufacturer and any other defendant in such action enter into a valid and applicable contractual agreement under which the manufacturer agrees to bear the cost of such proceeding or to conduct such proceeding.

(g) Attorney Fees.—The court shall require the claimant to compensate the biomaterials supplier (or a manufacturer appearing in lieu of a supplier pursuant to subsection (f)) for attorney fees and costs, if—

(1) the claimant named or joined the biomaterials supplier; and

(2) the court found the claim against the biomaterials supplier to be without merit and frivolous.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. GEKAS

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. Gekas:

Strike out all after the enacting clause, and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE

This Act may be cited as the "Biomaterials Access Assurance Act of 1998".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) each year millions of citizens of the United States depend on the availability of lifesaving or life-enhancing medical devices, many of which are permanently implantable within the human body;

(2) a continued supply of raw materials and component parts is necessary for the invention, development, improvement, and maintenance of the supply of the devices;

(3) most of the medical devices are made with raw materials and component parts that—

(A) move in interstate commerce;

(B) are not designed or manufactured specifically for use in medical devices; and

(C) come in contact with internal human tissue;

(4) the raw materials and component parts also are used in a variety of nonmedical products;

(5) because small quantities of the raw materials and component parts are used for medical devices, sales of raw materials and component parts for medical devices constitute an extremely small portion of the overall market for the raw materials and component parts;

(6) under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.) manufacturers of medical devices are required to demonstrate that the medical devices are safe and effective, including demonstrating that the products are properly designed and have adequate warnings or instructions;

(7) notwithstanding the fact that raw materials and component parts suppliers do not design, produce, or test a final medical device, the suppliers have been the subject of actions alleging inadequate—

(A) design and testing of medical devices manufactured with materials or parts supplied by the suppliers; or

(B) warnings related to the use of such medical devices;

(8) even though suppliers of raw materials and component parts have very rarely been held liable in such actions, such suppliers have ceased supplying certain raw materials and component parts for use in medical devices for a number of reasons, including concerns about the costs of such litigation;

(9) unless alternate sources of supply can be found, the unavailability of raw materials and component parts for medical devices will lead to unavailability of lifesaving and life-enhancing medical devices;

(10) because other suppliers of the raw materials and component parts in foreign nations are refusing to sell raw materials or component parts for use in manufacturing certain medical devices in the United States, the prospects for development of new sources of supply for the full range of threatened raw materials and component parts for medical devices are remote;

(11) it is unlikely that the small market for such raw materials and component parts in the United States could support the large investment needed to develop new suppliers of such raw materials and component parts;

(12) attempts to develop such new suppliers would raise the cost of medical devices;

(13) courts that have considered the duties of the suppliers of the raw materials and component parts have generally found that the suppliers do not have a duty—

(A) to evaluate the safety and efficacy of the use of a raw material or component part in a medical device; or

(B) to warn consumers concerning the safety and effectiveness of a medical device;

(14) because medical devices and the raw materials and component parts used in their manufacture move in interstate commerce, a shortage of such raw materials and component parts affects interstate commerce;

(15) in order to safeguard the availability of a wide variety of lifesaving and life-enhancing medical devices, immediate action is needed—

(A) to clarify the permissible bases of liability for suppliers of raw materials and component parts for medical devices; and

(B) to provide expeditious procedures to dispose of unwarranted suits against the suppliers in such manner as to minimize litigation costs;

(16) the several States and their courts are the primary architects and regulators of our tort system; Congress, however, must, in certain circumstances involving the national interest, address tort issues, and a threatened shortage of raw materials and component parts for life-saving medical devices is one such circumstance; and

(17) the protections set forth in this Act are needed to assure the continued supply of materials for life-saving medical devices, although such protections do not protect negligent suppliers.

(i) notice to the affected persons; and

(ii) an opportunity for an informal hearing.

(B) DOCKETING AND FINAL DECISION.—Immediately upon receipt of a petition filed pursuant to this paragraph, the Secretary shall docket the petition. Not later than 120 days after the petition is filed, the Secretary shall issue a final decision on the petition.

(C) APPLICABILITY OF STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.—Any applicable statute of limitations shall toll during the period from the time a claimant files a petition with the Secretary under this paragraph until such time as either (i) the Secretary issues a final decision on the petition, or (ii) the petition is withdrawn.

(D) STAY PENDING PETITION FOR DECLARATION.—If a claimant has filed a petition for a declaration with respect to a defendant, and the Secretary has not issued a final decision on the petition, the court shall stay all proceedings with respect to that defendant until such time as the Secretary has issued a final decision on the petition.

(c) LIABILITY AS SELLER.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required and permitted by any other applicable law, be liable as a seller for harm to a claimant caused by an implant only if—

(1) the biomaterials supplier—

(A) held title to the implant and then acted as a seller of the implant after its initial sale by the manufacturer; or

(B) acted under contract as a seller to arrange for the transfer of the implant directly to the claimant after the initial sale by the manufacturer of the implant; or

(2) the biomaterials supplier is related by common ownership or control to a person meeting all the requirements described in paragraph (1), if a court deciding a motion to dismiss in accordance with section 6(c)(3)(B)(ii) finds, on the basis of affidavits submitted in accordance with section 6, that it is necessary to impose liability on the biomaterials supplier as a seller because the related seller meeting the requirements of paragraph (1) lacks sufficient financial resources to satisfy any judgment that the court feels it is likely to enter should the claimant prevail.

(d) LIABILITY FOR FAILURE TO MEET APPLICABLE CONTRACTUAL REQUIREMENTS OR SPECIFICATIONS.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required and permitted by any other applicable law, be liable for harm to a claimant caused by an implant if the claimant in an action shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that—

(1) the biomaterials supplier supplied raw materials or component parts for use in the implant that either—

(A) did not constitute the product described in the contract between the biomaterials supplier and the person who contracted for the supplying of the product; or

(B) failed to meet any specifications that were—

(i) accepted, pursuant to applicable law, by the biomaterials supplier;

(ii) published by the biomaterials supplier;

(iii) provided by the biomaterials supplier to the person who contracted for such product;

(iv) contained in a master file that was submitted by the biomaterials supplier to the Secretary and that is currently maintained by the biomaterials supplier for purposes of premarket approval of medical devices; or

(v) included in the submissions for purposes of premarket approval or review by the Secretary under section 510, 513, 515, or 520 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360, 360c, 360e, or 360j), and received clearance from the Secretary if such specifications were accepted, pursuant to applicable law, by the biomaterials supplier; and

(2) such failure to meet applicable contractual requirements or specifications was an actual and proximate cause of the harm to the claimant.

SEC. 6. PROCEDURES FOR DISMISSAL OF CIVIL ACTIONS AGAINST BIOMATERIALS SUPPLIERS.

(a) MOTION TO DISMISS.—A defendant may, at any time during which a motion to dismiss may be filed under applicable law, move to dismiss an action against it on the grounds that the defendant is a biomaterials supplier and one or more of the following:

(1) The defendant is not liable as a manufacturer, as provided in section 5(b).

(2) The defendant is not liable as a seller, as provided in section 5(c).

(3) The defendant is not liable for furnishing raw materials or component parts for the implant that failed to meet applicable contractual requirements or specifications, as provided in section 5(d).

(4) The claimant did not name the manufacturer as a party to the action, as provided in subsection (b).

(b) MANUFACTURER OF IMPLANT SHALL BE NAMED A PARTY.—In any civil action covered by this Act, the claimant shall be required to name the manufacturer of the implant as a party to the action, unless—

(1) the manufacturer is subject to service of process solely in a jurisdiction in which the biomaterials supplier is not domiciled or subject to a service of process; or

(2) a claim against the manufacturer is barred by applicable law or rule of practice.

(c) PROCEEDING ON MOTION TO DISMISS.—The following rules shall apply to any proceeding on a motion to dismiss filed by a defendant under this section:

(1) EFFECT OF MOTION TO DISMISS ON DISCOVERY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), if a defendant files a motion to dismiss under subsection (a), no discovery shall be permitted in connection with the action that is the subject of the motion, other than discovery necessary to determine a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, until such time as the court rules on the motion to dismiss.

(B) DISCOVERY.—If a defendant files a motion to dismiss under subsection (a)(3) on the grounds that it did not furnish raw materials or component parts for the implant that failed to meet applicable contractual requirements or specifications, the court may permit discovery limited to issues that are directly relevant to—

(i) the pending motion to dismiss; or

(ii) the jurisdiction of the court.

(2) AFFIDAVITS.—

(A) DEFENDANT.—A defendant may submit affidavits supporting the grounds for dismissal contained in its motion to dismiss under subsection (a). If the motion is made under subsection (a)(1), the defendant may submit an affidavit demonstrating that the defendant has not included the implant on a list, if any, filed with the Secretary pursuant to section 510(j) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360(j)).

(B) CLAIMANT.—In response to a motion to dismiss, the claimant may submit affidavits demonstrating that—

(i) the Secretary has, with respect to the defendant and the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant, issued a declaration pursuant to section 5(b)(2)(B); or

(ii) the defendant is a seller of the implant who is liable under section 5(c).

(3) BASIS OF RULING ON MOTION TO DISMISS.—The court shall rule on a motion to dismiss filed under subsection (a) solely on the basis of the pleadings and affidavits of the parties made pursuant to this subsection. The court shall grant a motion to dismiss filed under subsection (a)—

(A) unless the claimant submits a valid affidavit that demonstrates that the defendant is not a biomaterials supplier;

(B) unless the court determines, to the extent raised in the pleadings and affidavits, that one or more of the following apply:

(i) the defendant may be liable as a manufacturer, as provided in section 5(b);

(ii) the defendant may be liable as a seller, as provided in section 5(c); or

(iii) the defendant may be liable for furnishing raw materials or component parts for the implant that failed to meet applicable contractual requirements or specifications, as provided in section 5(d); or

(C) if the claimant did not name the manufacturer as a party to the action, as provided in subsection (b).

(4) TREATMENT OF MOTION AS MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT.—The court may treat a motion to dismiss as a motion for summary judgment subject to subsection (d) in order to determine whether the pleadings and affidavits, in connection with such action, raise genuine issues of material fact concerning whether the defendant furnished raw materials or component parts of the implant that failed to meet applicable contractual requirements or specifications as provided in section 5(d).

(d) SUMMARY JUDGMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) BASIS FOR ENTRY OF JUDGMENT.—If a motion to dismiss of a biomaterials supplier is to be treated as a motion for summary judgment under subsection (c)(4) or if a biomaterials supplier moves for summary judgment, the biomaterials supplier shall be entitled to entry of judgment without trial if the court finds there is no genuine issue of material fact for each applicable element set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 5(d).

(B) ISSUES OF MATERIAL FACT.—With respect to a finding made under subparagraph (A), the court shall consider a genuine issue of material fact to exist only if the evidence submitted by the claimant would be sufficient to allow a reasonable jury to reach a verdict for the claimant if the jury found the evidence to be credible.

(2) DISCOVERY MADE PRIOR TO A RULING ON A MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT.—If, under applicable rules, the court permits discovery prior to a ruling on a motion for summary judgment governed by section 5(d), such discovery shall be limited solely to establishing whether a genuine issue of material fact exists as to the applicable elements set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 5(d).

(3) DISCOVERY WITH RESPECT TO A BIOMATERIALS SUPPLIER.—A biomaterials supplier shall be subject to discovery in connection with a motion seeking dismissal or summary judgment on the basis of the inapplicability of section 5(d) or the failure to establish the applicable elements of section 5(d) solely to the extent permitted by the applicable Federal or State rules for discovery against nonparties.

(e) DISMISSAL WITH PREJUDICE.—An order granting a motion to dismiss or for summary judgment pursuant to this section shall be entered with prejudice, except insofar as the moving defendant may be rejoined to the action as provided in section 7.

(f) MANUFACTURER CONDUCT OF LITIGATION.—The manufacturer of an implant that is the subject of an action covered under this Act shall be permitted to conduct litigation on any motion for summary judgment or dismissal filed by a biomaterials supplier who is a defendant under this section on behalf of such supplier if the manufacturer and any other defendant in such action enter into a valid and applicable contractual agreement under which the manufacturer agrees to bear the cost of such litigation or to conduct such litigation.

SEC. 7. SUBSEQUENT IMPLEADER OF DISMISSED BIOMATERIALS SUPPLIER.

(a) IMPLEADING OF DISMISSED DEFENDANT.—A court, upon motion by a manufacturer or a claimant within 90 days after entry of a final judgment in an action by the claimant against a manufacturer, and notwithstanding any otherwise applicable statute of limitations, may implead a biomaterials supplier who has been dismissed from the action pursuant to this Act if—

(1) the manufacturer has made an assertion, either in a motion or other pleading filed with the court or in an opening or closing statement at trial, or as part of a claim for contribution or indemnification, and the court finds based on the court's independent review of the evidence contained in the record of the action, that under applicable law—

(A) the negligence or intentionally tortious conduct of the dismissed supplier was an actual and proximate cause of the harm to the claimant; and

(B) the manufacturer's liability for damages should be reduced in whole or in part because of such negligence or intentionally tortious conduct; or

(2) the claimant has moved to implead the supplier and the court finds, based on the court's independent review of the evidence contained in the record of the action, that under applicable law—

(A) the negligence or intentionally tortious conduct of the dismissed supplier was an actual and proximate cause of the harm to the claimant; and

(B) the claimant is unlikely to be able to recover the full amount of its damages from the remaining defendants.

(b) STANDARD OF LIABILITY.—Notwithstanding any preliminary finding under subsection (a), a biomaterials supplier who has been impleaded into an action covered by this Act, as provided for in this section—

(1) may, prior to entry of judgment on the claim against it, supplement the record of the proceeding that was developed prior to the grant of the motion for impleader under subsection (a), and

(2) may be found liable to a manufacturer or a claimant only to the extent required and permitted by any applicable State or Federal law other than this Act.

(c) DISCOVERY.—Nothing in this section shall give a claimant or any other party the right to obtain discovery from a biomaterials supplier at any time prior to grant of a motion for impleader beyond that allowed under section 6.

SEC. 8. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This Act shall apply to all civil actions covered under this Act that are commenced on or after the date of enactment of this Act, including any such action with respect to which the harm asserted in the action or the conduct that caused the harm occurred before the date of enactment of this Act.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 872, the bill just passed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

TERRY SANFORD COMMEMORATION ACT OF 1998

Mr. KIM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (H.R. 3982) to designate the Federal building located at 310 New Bern Avenue in Raleigh, North Carolina, as the "Terry Sanford Federal Building."

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would ask the gentleman from California (Mr. KIM) to explain this bill.

Mr. KIM. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TRAFICANT. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. KIM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 3982 designates the Federal building located in Raleigh, North Carolina as the "Terry Sanford Federal Building."

Senator Sanford was successful in many pursuits. He was the founder of three law firms and held positions on the boards of numerous universities and colleges and corporations in the technology industry. Senator Sanford was also president of Duke University from 1969 to 1984 and continued as president emeritus from 1995 until his passing in 1998.

However, in addition to his pursuits in private sector, Senator Sanford also was a dedicated public servant. From 1950 to 1953, he served on the North Carolina State Ports Authority. In 1953, he was elected to the North Carolina State Senate and served until 1955.

In 1961, he was elected Governor of North Carolina for a term, returning to private practice in 1965. After several years out of public office, Senator Sanford returned in 1986 with a successful bid to the United States Senate where he served North Carolina until 1993.

This is a fitting tribute to a dedicated public servant. I support the bill as amended and urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, further reserving my right to object, I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. ETHERIDGE).

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to have this opportunity to honor the life and memory of a truly great American, Terry Sanford. I want to thank the gentlemen from California and from Ohio for his support in legislation which is so important to the Sanford family and really to all the people whose lives that he touched.

I want to thank the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the House majority leader, and the minority leader in their efforts in getting this legislation scheduled for consideration.

Terry Sanford learned growing up that hard work reaps rewards, that boldness is a requirement of leadership, and that possibilities exist that are only bound by the size of one's imagination.

He also learned that there is character in service, and serve he did, as you have already heard, as an FBI agent, keeping our streets safe from crime; as a paratrooper in World War II where he was decorated for his acts of valor; as a member of the North Carolina Senate, representing the values we hold dear in public service, and perhaps more importantly as governor of the State of North Carolina, for which he received the appropriate title of the education governor.

It is fitting that Harvard University named him as one of this country's 10 most effective governors during this whole century. His leadership continued after he left the governor's mansion, as we have already heard this evening, serving as president of Duke University and later as a United States Senator.

Through his life, he fought to improve education, promote racial healing, eradicate poverty, promote economic development and help his fellow man. Terry Sanford was more than a great and admired politician. He was one of the most accomplished Americans of our time. His North Carolina values and visionary leadership brought us through some of the most difficult challenges that our State faced. This gesture is the least we should do for a man who allowed us to view the world from his broad shoulders.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Further reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, Terry Sanford's leadership and diligence led Harvard University to name him as one of the most effective governors of the 20th Century. His service in the United States Senate is distinguished by hard work and loyalty to the interests of his constituents.

Duke University has benefited from his tenure as president. With wisdom and vision, he guided the university into becoming a leader in the field of medicine and law. I am proud to join in passing this bill to name this Federal building in his honor.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

PASS MAMMOGRAPHY QUALITY STANDARDS ACT

(Ms. NORTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks and include therein extraneous material.)

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, great strides have been made in concurring breast cancer. Much of this progress is due to the work of the Congress in general and the bipartisan Congressional Women's Caucus in particular. Tamoxifen, a new drug now promises to prevent and cure breast cancer.

One of the seven must-pass bills of the bipartisan Congressional Women's Caucus this year is the reauthorization of the Mammography Quality Standards Act to assure correct and safe mammograms. This bill has passed unanimously in the Senate. We cannot go home without doing the same here. American women and families deserve no less.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the testimony from the Women's Caucus hearing on tamoxifen.

INTRODUCTION OF PANELISTS

Witness 1: Surgeon General David Satcher.

Witness 2: Rici Rutkoss—Tamoxifen study participant.

NEW STUDY ON EDUCATION IN AMERICA SHOWS NO IMPROVEMENT FOR OUR CHILDREN

(Mr. GUTKNECHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to talk about education here in the United States.

For the past year, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA), who is the chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations of the Committee on Education and the Workforce, has been conducting hearings all across the United States. They have been to 22 different cities. They have been to large cities, they have been to small towns, and they have been to rural communities. They visited 26 different educational institutions. They have had 200 expert witnesses, and they have talked about what is happening in education today.

They are going to be coming out very soon with a report, and I invite all of my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to get a copy of this report, because they have spent an awful lot of time and a certain amount of taxpayers' dollars to find out what is really happening in education in America today.

Their findings are somewhat troubling. They find, for example, that there has been no real improvement in education in America since the report entitled "A Nation At Risk." They found that Washington programs have done nothing to improve children's education; and, finally, they have determined that this is not acceptable to the Congress and certainly is not acceptable to the American people.

So what do we have to do? An important thing about this report also is it has recommendations. We must focus on children by strengthening the role of parents. Now, that should not surprise many parents. We must restore local control by getting Washington out of the way. We must get dollars into the classroom instead of losing them to the bureaucracy; and, finally, and most importantly, we must emphasize basic academics rather than social experimentation.

Mr. Speaker, I hope Members will get a copy of this report, and I hope they will all read it. I include for the RECORD a copy of same.

THE "EDUCATION AT A CROSSROADS" REPORT

Methods

22 Congressional hearings across America and in Washington, D.C.;

26 educational institutions visited;

200 expert witnesses.

Major findings

There has been no improvement in American education since A Nation at Risk.

Washington programs have done nothing to improve children's education.

This is not acceptable.

Recommendationse

We must focus on children by strengthening the role of parents.

We must restore local control by getting Washington out of the way.

We must get dollars into classrooms instead of losing them in bureaucracy.

We must emphasize basic academics rather than social experimentation.

EDUCATION AT A CROSSROADS: WHAT WORKS AND WHAT'S WASTED IN EDUCATION TODAY

INTRODUCTION

The Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, in accordance with Rule X of the U.S. House of Representatives,[1] undertook an intensive review of the federal role in education. This review, which included extensive visits to schools across the country, is the only known such review ever performed by the Committee or by Congress.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

America's educational system is at a crossroads. Down one path can be found the many successful schools and systems that have emerged from the crisis of the 1980s to become shining examples of educational excellence. Down the other path are schools that are mired in failure or that have implemented erroneous reforms, succeeding only in worsening their already dismal performances. At the intersection of these two paths are the vast majority of America's schools—stagnating in mediocrity—at the crossroads of excellence and failure.

The purpose of the Committee on Education and the Workforce's Crossroads project was to identify the steps that lead in the direction of either excellence or failure in order to develop a positive vision for change. At a time when the economy continues to grow and technological advancements of the information age are fundamentally changing how we live and work, our nation should not be willing to accept mediocrity in education. America needs to develop a world class education system that is second to none. In order to succeed, our education system must have flexibility and vision—a willingness to think and act "outside of the box"—for the sake of our children.

Since the seminal report A Nation at Risk was released in 1983 describing the "rising tide of mediocrity" in America's schools, there have been some improvements. More students than ever are going on to college. SAT scores have risen moderately and fourth grade students have performed well on international comparison tests. However, despite these few bright spots, current indicators paint a disappointing picture overall of the preparedness of today's students to continue our nation's economic strength well into the 21st century.

40 percent of fourth-graders do not read at even a basic level,[2]

Half of the students from urban school districts fail to graduate on time, if at all;[3]

Average 1996 NAEP scores among 17-year-olds are lower than they were in 1984, a year after A Nation at Risk was released;

U.S. 12th graders only outperformed two out of 21 nations in mathematics;[4]

American students fall farther behind students from other countries the longer they are in school;[5]

Public institutions of higher education annually spend $1 billion on remedial education.[6]

The factors behind stagnant scores and declining international performance must be addressed to ensure that U.S. students are competitive in a global marketplace when they graduate.

For more than 40 years, the federal government has been increasingly influential in local schooling. Since 1957, when the Soviet Union launched the Sputnik satellite, federal education spending and red tape has been expanding and becoming more involved in the classroom. Since 1980, nearly $400 billion has been spent by the federal government on education.

A Key decision at the crossroads: It is time for America to take a careful look at what billions of federal education dollars have purchased, and to make hard decisions about whether to continue expanding the federal role, or to return control to parents and teachers.

The Crossroads project began in 1995 as a project of the House Education and Workforce Committee's Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, under the leadership of Chairman Pete Hoekstra. Its mission was to answer the following questions about education:

1. What are the elements of a successful school?
2. To what extent do federal education programs contribute or detract from those factors?
3. What works and what is wasted?

After asking the General Accounting Office (GAO) to determine the elements of successful schools, the Subcommittee began a series of hearings around the country to look at what works and what is wasted at the local level.[7] The Subcommittee traveled to 15 states and heard from more than 225 witnesses. These hearings gave principals, teachers, parents, students and state officials from around the country a rare opportunity to share their experiences about what works and what is wasted. Rather than relying on a small, elite group of witnesses who could leave their work to come to Washington and testify, the Subcommittee visited educators, parents and students where learning takes place: the classroom. From small towns to major cities, real people discussed real successes and problems in education. Apart from these hearings, these voices may never have been heard.

Based on the findings of GAO and these hearings, the Subcommittee found that successful schools and school systems were not the product of federal funding and programs; but instead were characterized by: Parents involved in the education of their children; local control; emphasis on basic academics; and dollars spent on the classroom, not bureaucracy and ineffective programs.

The current Federal role

In addition to these findings, the Crossroads project research the nature of the current federal role in education. The Committee found a system fraught with failure and bureaucracy:

More than 760 federal education programs: For the first time in the history of federal education funding, the Committee assembled the most comprehensive list of federal education programs to date. At least 39 federal agencies oversee more than 760 education programs, at a cost of $100 billion a year to taxpayers. The Congressional Research Service has confirmed that these numbers are accurate, and even added additional programs to the 760 originally found by the committee.

The leviathan of federal education programs has actually led to a cottage industry in selling information on program descriptions, application deadlines and filing instructions for each of the myriad of federal education programs. The Education Funding Research Council identifies potential sources of funds for local school districts, and sells for nearly $400 the Guide to Federal Funding for Education. The company promises to steer its subscribers to "a wide range of Federal programs," and offers these subscribers timely updates on "500 education programs." More recently, the Aid for Education Report published by CD Publications advertised that "huge sums are available . . . in the federal government alone, there are nearly 800 different education programs that receive authorization totaling almost a hundred billion dollars."

Mountains of Paperwork: Even after accounting for recent reductions, the U.S. Department of Education still requires over 48.6 million hours worth of paperwork per year—or the equivalent of 25,000 employees working full-time.[8] The Subcommittee has attempted to quantify the number of pages required by recipients of federal funds in order to qualify for assistance. Without fully accounting for all the attachments and supplemental submissions required with each application, the Committee counted more than 20,000 pages of applications states must fill out to receive federal education funds each year.

A "Shadow" Department of Education: The Department of Education touts that it is one of the smallest federal agencies with 4,637 employees, and that it has a relatively small administrative budget. What many people do not realize, however, is that there are nearly three times as many federally funded employees of state education agencies administering federal education programs, as there are U.S. Department of Education employees. According to GAO, there are about 13,400 FTEs (full-time equivalents) funded with federal dollars to administer these programs for state education agencies.

As little as 65–70 cents reaches the classroom: A recent study found that for every tax dollar sent to Washington for elementary and secondary education, 85 cents is returned to local school districts. The remaining 15 cents is spend on bureaucracy and national and research programs of unknown effectiveness.[9] The Department of Education has since released a study, which also found that about 85 cents of federal dollars reaches school districts for use in the classroom.[10] Although these studies provided information not previously available on federal education spending, they only examined what was returned to school districts, still several layers of bureaucracy away from the classroom.

To date, no studies exist to enable us to determine what portion of federal education dollars actually reach the classroom, or what schools and state education agencies must spend to apply for education dollars and comply with their requirements. However, audits of school district spending indicate just how little in general reaches the classroom. A recent audit of the New York City School District found that only 43 percent of the district's total funds were spent on direct classroom expenditures.[11] Given the 48.6 million paperwork hours required to receive federal education dollars and the school district bureaucracies funds must pass through to reach the classroom, it is not unreasonable to assume that another 15–20 cents spent outside the classroom. This would mean a net return of 65–70 cents to the classroom.

The 487 Step Labyrinth: In 1993, Vice-President Gore's National Performance Review discovered that the Department of Education's discretionary grant process lasted 26 weeks and took 487 steps from start to finish. It was not until 1996 that the Department finally took steps to begin "streamlining" their long and protracted grant review process, a process that has yet to be completed and fully implemented. After the streamlining is complete it will only take an average of 20 weeks and 216 steps to complete a review.[12]

Federal Dollars for Baywatch and Jerry Springer. The Department of Education's Office of Special Education and Rehabilitative Services Media and Captioning Services funds closed captioning for "educational" programs such as Baywatch, Ricki Lake, The Montel Williams Show, and Jerry Springer. By funding captioning for these programs—funding which could easily be provided by the television industry or other commercial enterprises—the federal government is demonstrating to the American people just how far away it is from supporting what works and identifying federal education priorities.

Programs for every problem

The massive array of federal education programs was not created overnight, but developed slowly, as an attempt to address specific problems. Each program received minimal funding at the outset, and most have received additional funds from one year to the next. The current arrangement of federal education funding is as follows: local tax dollars go to Washington, where they are allocated to a variety of purposes, usually to address what someone in the federal government sees as a problem. The money is then returned to the states and school districts in the form of categorical programs. This process puts smaller school districts at a disadvantage: States and local school districts are highly dependent on administrators and skilled grant writers to obtain these federal dollars and comply with their requirements, which places a greater burden on poorer and smaller school systems.

The effectiveness of these programs is seldom measured, even as the problems continue to mount. Evaluations of federal programs almost always measure process, not whether or not they help children learn. For example, the largest education program for disadvantaged children has spent more than $100 billion over 30 years while producing hardly any evidence of positive, lasting results. Congress must ensure that such wasteful use of tax dollars is stopped.

It is time for the burden of proof to shift to the federal government. If it cannot be demonstrated that a particular federal program is more effectively spending funds than state and local communities would otherwise spend them, Congress should return the money to the states and the people, without any burdensome strings attached. This Subcommittee has found little evidence proving the effectiveness of federal programs, or that federal programs are more effective than local efforts.

Now is the time to act on what we've learned. The central theme of what we learned is that the federal government cannot consistently and effectively replicate success stories throughout the nation in the form of federal programs. Instead, federal education dollars should support effective state and local initiatives, ensuring that it neither impedes local innovation and control, nor diverts dollars from the classroom through burdensome regulations and overhead.

Empower parents

Reduce the family federal tax burden;

Encourage parental choice in education at all levels of government;

Create opportunity scholarships for poor children in Washington, D.C., and other federal empowerment zones;

Allow states to send Title I (Aid to Disadvantaged Students) funds to impoverished parents as grants in order to enable their children to receive additional academic assistance.

Return control to the local level

Return federal elementary and secondary education funds to states and local school districts through flexible grants;

Expand opportunities for waivers from burdensome regulations;

Give states and school districts greater freedom to consolidate program funds to more effectively address pressing needs;

Provide no-strings-attached funds for charter school start-up costs.

Encourage what works in the classroom

Federally funded education programs should only use proven methods backed by reliable, replicable research;

Research and evaluation should concentrate on measuring outcomes and less on process—such as how many children are served by a particular program.

Send dollars to the classroom

Streamline and consolidate federal education programs;

Reform or eliminate ineffective and inefficient programs;

Reduce paperwork burden.

Fifteen years ago our nation was diagnosed as being at risk—at risk of entering the 21st Century lagging behind other industrialized nations economically and educationally. Since then here has been little evidence of the federal government effectively addressing this problem through its hundreds of duplicative and uncoordinated education programs.

In order to address the continued crisis, education policy in this country needs to be re-oriented around ensuring that children receive a quality education, not preserving programs and bureaucracies. Significant progress needs to be made by all levels of government: Solving problems at the federal level is only one component.

Congress has already begun to take action. The findings of the Crossroads Project have underscored an education agenda that has encouraged "flex" grants, parental choice in education, education savings accounts, scholarships for low income children, charter schools, and getting dollars to the classroom.

The federal government should only play a limited role in education; It should serve education at the state and local level as a research and statistics gathering agency, disseminating findings and enabling states to share best practices with each other. Local educators must be empowered to teach children with effective methods and adequate resources, without federal interference. Parents must once again be in charge of the education of their children. Schools should be havens for learning, safe from drugs and violence.

Much work remains. It is time for the federal bureaucracy to move out of the way—to put children first—by supporting what works. The Crossroads Report points the way.

"(C)(i) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, a failure to meet a condition of paragraph (1)(B), (1)(E), or (1)(F), a substantial failure to meet a condition of paragraph (1)(C), (1)(D), or (1)(G)(i)(I), or a misrepresentation of material fact in an application—

"(I) the Secretary shall notify the Attorney General of such finding and may, in addition, impose such other administrative remedies (including civil monetary penalties in an amount not to exceed $1,000 per violation) as the Secretary determines to be appropriate; and

"(II) the Attorney General shall not approve petitions filed with respect to that employer under section 204 or 214(c) during a period of at least 1 year for aliens to be employed by the employer.

"(ii) If the Secretary finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, a willful failure to meet a condition of paragraph (1), a willful misrepresentation of material fact in an application, or a violation of clause (iv)—

"(I) the Secretary shall notify the Attorney General of such finding and may, in addition, impose such other administrative remedies (including civil monetary penalties in an amount not to exceed $25,000 per violation) as the Secretary determines to be appropriate; and

"(II) the Attorney General shall not approve petitions filed with respect to that employer under section 204 or 214(c) during a period of at least 2 years for aliens to be employed by the employer.

"(iv) It is a violation of this clause for an employer who has filed an application under this subsection to intimidate, threaten, restrain, coerce, blacklist, discharge, or in any other manner discriminate against an employee (which term, for purposes of this clause, includes a former employee and an applicant for employment) because the employee has disclosed information to the employer, or to any other person, that the employee reasonably believes evidences a violation of this subsection, or any rule or regulation pertaining to this subsection, or because the employee cooperates or seeks to cooperate in an investigation or other proceeding concerning the employer's compliance with the requirements of this subsection or any rule or regulation pertaining to this subsection.

"(v) The Secretary of Labor and the Attorney General shall devise a process under which an H–1B nonimmigrant who files a complaint regarding a violation of clause (iv) and is otherwise eligible to remain and work in the United States may be allowed to seek other appropriate employment in the United States for a period (not to exceed the duration of the alien's authorized admission as such an nonimmigrant).".

The procedure and rules of such Service shall be applicable to the selection of such arbitrator and to such arbitration proceedings. The Commissioner shall pay the fee and expenses of the arbitrator.

"(D)(i) The arbitrator shall make findings respecting whether a failure or misrepresentation described in subparagraph (B) occurred. If the arbitrator concludes that failure or misrepresentation was willful, the arbitrator shall make a finding to that effect. The arbitrator may not find such a failure or misrepresentation (or that such a failure or misrepresentation was willful) unless the complainant demonstrates such a failure or misrepresentation (or its willful character) by clear and convincing evidence. The arbitrator shall transmit the findings in the form of a written opinion to the parties to the arbitration and the Commissioner. Such findings shall be final and conclusive, and, except as provided in this subparagraph, no official or court of the United States shall have power or jurisdiction to review any such findings.

"(iii) With respect to the findings of an arbitrator, a court may review only the actions of the Commissioner under clause (ii) and may set aside such actions only on the grounds described in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of section 706(a)(2) of title 5, United States Code. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, such judicial review may only be brought in an appropriate United States Court of Appeals.

"(i) the Commissioner may impose administrative remedies (including civil monetary penalties in an amount not to exceed $1,000 per violation or $5,000 per violation in the case of a willful failure or misrepresentation) as the Commissioner determines to be appropriate; and

SEC. 904. CIVIL REMEDIES.

(a) In General.—The district courts of the United States shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, by issuing appropriate orders.

(b) Proceedings.—

(1) Institution by federal government.—The United States may institute proceedings under this section. Upon application of the United States, the district court may enter a temporary restraining order or an injunction against any person to prevent a violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, if the court determines, after notice and an opportunity for a hearing, that there is a substantial probability that such violation has occurred or will occur.

(2) Institution by state attorney general.—

(A) In general.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the attorney general of a State (or other appropriate State official) in which a violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, is alleged to have occurred, or may occur, after providing written notice to the United States, may institute proceedings under this section. Upon application of the attorney general (or other appropriate State official) of the affected State, the district court may enter a temporary restraining order or an injunction against any person to prevent a violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, if the court determines, after notice and an opportunity for a hearing, that there is a substantial probability that such violation has occurred or will occur.

(B) Indian lands.—With respect to a violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, that is alleged to have occurred, or may occur, on Indian lands (as defined in section 4 of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (25 U.S.C. 2703)), the enforcement authority under subparagraph (A) shall be limited to the remedies under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (25 U.S.C. 2701 et seq.), including any applicable Tribal-State compact negotiated under section 11 of that Act (25 U.S.C. 2710).

(3) Orders and injunctions against internet service providers.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1) or (2), the following rules shall apply in any proceeding instituted under this subsection in which application is made for a temporary restraining order or an injunction against an interactive computer service:

(A) Scope of relief.—

(i) If the violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, originates with a customer of the interactive computer service's system or network, the court may require the service to terminate the specified account or accounts of the customer, or of any readily identifiable successor in interest, who is using such service to place, receive or otherwise make a bet or wager, engage in a gambling business, or to initiate a transmission that violates such section 1085.

(ii) Any other relief ordered by the court shall be technically feasible for the system or network in question under current conditions, reasonably effective in preventing a violation of section 1085, of title 18, United States Code, and shall not unreasonably interfere with access to lawful material at other online locations.

(iii) No relief shall be issued under subparagraph (A)(ii) if the interactive computer service demonstrates, after an opportunity to appear at a hearing, that such relief is not economically reasonable for the system or network in question under current conditions.

(B) Considerations.—In the case of an application for relief under subparagraph (A)(ii), the court shall consider, in addition to all other factors that the court shall consider in the exercise of its equitable discretion, whether—

(i) such relief either singularly or in combination with such other injunctions issued against the same service under this subsection, would seriously burden the operation of the service's system network compared with other comparably effective means of preventing violations of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code;

(ii) in the case of an application for a temporary restraining order or an injunction to prevent a violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, by a gambling business (as is defined in such section 1085) located outside the United States, the relief is more burdensome to the service than taking comparably effective steps to block access to specific, identified sites used by the gambling business located outside the United States; and

(iii) in the case of an application for a temporary order or an injunction to prevent a violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, relating to material or activity located within the United States, whether less burdensome, but comparably effective means are available to block access by a customer of the service's system or network to information or activity that violates such section 1085.

(C) Findings.—In any order issued by the court under this subsection, the court shall set forth the reasons for its issuance, shall be specific in its terms, and shall describe in reasonable detail, and not be reference to the complaint or other document, the act or acts sought to be restrained and the general steps to be taken to comply with the order.

(4) Expiration.—Any temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction entered pursuant to this subsection shall expire if, and as soon as, the United States, or the attorney general (or other appropriate State official) of the State, as applicable, notifies the court that issued the injunction that the United States or the State, as applicable, will not seek a permanent injunction.

(c) Expedited Proceedings.—

(1) In general.—In addition to proceedings under subsection (b), a district court may enter a temporary restraining order against a person alleged to be in violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, upon application of the United States under subsection (b)(1), or the attorney general (or other appropriate State official) of an affected State under subsection (b)(2), without notice and the opportunity for a hearing, if the United States or the State, as applicable, demonstrates that there is probable cause to believe that the transmission at issue violates section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903.

(2) Expiration.—A temporary restraining order entered under this subsection shall expire on the earlier of—

(A) the expiration of the 30-day period beginning on the date on which the order is entered; or

(B) the date on which a preliminary injunction is granted or denied.

(3) Hearings.—A hearing requested concerning an order entered under this subsection shall be held at the earliest practicable time.

(d) Rule of Construction.—In the absence of fraud or bad faith, no interactive computer service (as defined in section 1085(a) of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903) shall be liable for any damages, penalty, or forfeiture, civil or criminal, for any reasonable course of action taken to comply with a court order issued under subsection (b) or (c) of this section.

(e) Protection of Privacy.—Nothing in this title or the amendments made by this title shall be construed to authorize an affirmative obligation on an interactive computer service—

(1) to monitor use of its service; or

(2) except as required by an order of a court, to access, remove or disable access to material where such material reveals conduct prohibited by this section and the amendments made by this section.

(f) No Effect on Other Remedies.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect any remedy under section 1084 or 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as amended by this title, or under any other Federal or State law. The availability of relief under this section shall not depend on, or be affected by, the initiation or resolution of any action under section 1084 or 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as amended by this title, or under any other Federal or State law.

(g) CONTINUOUS JURISDICTION.—The court shall have continuous jurisdiction under this section to enforce section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903.

SEC. 905. REPORT ON ENFORCEMENT.

Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General shall submit a report to Congress that includes—

(1) an analysis of the problems, if any, associated with enforcing section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903;

(2) recommendations for the best use of the resources of the Department of Justice to enforce that section; and

(3) an estimate of the amount of activity and money being used to gamble on the Internet.

SEC. 906. REPORT ON COSTS.

Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Commerce shall submit a report to Congress that includes—

(1) an analysis of existing and potential methods or technologies for filtering or screening transmissions in violation of section 1085 of title 18, United States Code, as added by section 903, that originate outside of the territorial boundaries of any State or the United States;

(2) a review of the effect, if any, on interactive computer services of any court ordered temporary restraining orders or injunctions imposed on those services under this section;

(3) a calculation of the cost to the economy of illegal gambling on the Internet, and other societal costs of such gambling; and

(4) an estimate of the effect, if any, on the Internet caused by any court ordered temporary restraining orders or injunctions imposed under this title.

SEC. 907. SEVERABILITY.

If any provision of this title, an amendment made by this title, or the application of such provision or amendment to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this title, the amendments made by this title, and the application of the provisions of such to any person or circumstance shall not be affected thereby.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

THE PURPLE HEART VETERAN JUSTIFICATION ACT, H.R. 3970

HON. HOWARD P. "BUCK" McKEON

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 1998

Mr. McKEON. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to address a troubling situation that Congress can address before our wounded Veteran's hard earned medals are diminished in importance.

As you may recall last year, Congress passed S. 923 denying burial benefits to veterans convicted of Federal Capital Offenses. The primary reason for the need of this legislation was to prevent individuals such as Tim McVeigh, the convicted murderer and terrorist, from being buried in our national cemeteries. We passed this legislation by voice vote with many members speaking out in favor of its passage.

I would like to relate the story of a woman by the name of Leah Schendel. On December 18, 1980, Mrs. Schendel was brutally raped and murdered by Manuel Babbit. Mrs. Schendel was a loving mother and at the time of her death was 78 years old, less than 5 feet tall, and weighed under 100 pounds. In 1981, Mr. Babbit was convicted of the horrible murder and was sentenced to death. Mr. Babbit's final appeal was scheduled for just this past month.

How might this problem relate to the problem of the Purple Heart Medal? Well, Mr. Babbit, a convicted murderer and death penalty recipient, recently received the Purple Heart Medal for wounds that he received in Vietnam over 25 years ago. While I do not argue that Mr. Babbit is eligible for the award, I have serious problems with the circumstances surrounding Mr. Babbit's application for the Purple Heart Medal. With no other choice, the military approved the award, which was required by Mr. Babbit's attorney, Charles Patterson.

I find the timing of Mr. Babbit's reception of this award troubling. Assuming the worst case scenario, Mr. Babbit is attempting to use the honor that comes along with reception of this medal to curry favor with an appellate judge to reduce his sentence or grant him a new trial. I find it appalling that someone would attempt to bring dishonor to an award granted to individuals who bravely fought for the greatness of the nation by using it to assist a murderer's appeal process.

H.R. 3970 would help put an end to problems like this. It would also go a long way to preserving the honor and dignity of the Purple Heart Medal. This legislation would prohibit the awarding of the Purple Heart Medal to individuals convicted of Federal Capital Offenses. The measure does not address eligibility for the award, but rather denies reception of the award for convicted Capital Offenders. The legislation is not retro-active and would not strip individuals of the Purple Heart Medal who had received the award prior to their conviction. Finally, the legislation is narrow in focus and would only apply to a very select group of individuals that have committed the most heinous crimes in our society.

Mr. Speaker, it is not often that we can act before a problem occurs, but that is exactly what this Congress can do on this matter. This legislation has been endorsed by the Military Order of the Purple Heart and was introduced with the support of the House Veterans Affairs Committee Chairman Bob Stump. I would urge my colleagues to help preserve the dignity of the Purple Heart by co-sponsoring this important legislation.

IN HONOR OF RALPH A. VASEY

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 1998

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the achievements of Ralph Vasey on the occasion of his 80th birthday.

Ralph Vasey, a boxer in his teens, joined the Marine Corps and served diligently in the second world war, where he was wounded three times. He returned home to the honorable trade of Roofer, Waterproofer and Allied Worker. He held offices, including that of the president, for Local 44 through three decades; and was among the founders of the Pension Fund and Health and Welfare Fund for Local 44. Ralph Vasey has been a hard and industrious worker in all his pursuits and exemplifies the American Spirit. He worked with his hands and built a life he can be proud of. He has not only helped himself, but also persevered to help those in his community.

Ralph Vasey is also a devoted family man. He is the proud father of Michael. And his two granddaughters, Jenelle and Carrie, have made him a great grandfather of Jonathan, Brandon, Michael, Nicholas, Mikayla and soon to arrive Justin. In all his pursuits, Ralph Vasey has not lost sight of what is truly important: His family.

My fellow colleagues, please join me in recognizing the life accomplishments of a father, grandfather and great-grandfather, and a veteran of our country, Ralph Vasey, on his 80th birthday.

146TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE TRAGEDY AT EL PUEBLO, CO

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 1998

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, Whereas, in 1842, El Pueblo was built a few miles above the junction of the Napeste River, present day Arkansas River, and Fountaine-qui-bouille, present day Fountain Creek, just north of the Mexican Border, and

Whereas, the Native American inhabitants of the area, had been displaced from their homes without regard to their survival and had suffered immensely, and

Whereas, at Christmas 1854 a party of Utes, and some Jicarilla Apaches, led by Chief Tierra Blanca fought with the occupants of El Pueblo resulting in the deaths of at least twelve Spanish surnamed individuals, and the capture of the two boys, and the deaths of an unknown number of Native Americans, and

Whereas, the settlers killed at El Pueblo were early residents of Pueblo, braving new frontiers and looking for a better way of life, and became victims at a time when cultures were in conflict, and

Whereas, it has been one-hundred forty-four years since the tragedy at El Pueblo.

Now, therefore, I Scott McInnis, a United States Congressman from the State of Colorado, on behalf of the Fray Angelico Chazes Hispanic Genealogical Society of Southern Colorado, proclaim this a significant event in Pueblo and Colorado's history and what led to this tragedy could have been prevented by the promotion of greater understanding between peoples and cultures and should never be allowed to happen again.

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay a respectful tribute to Dr. Gerald From, who has provided invaluable services to the South Bronx Mental Health Council since 1969 and made a tremendous contribution to the Gouverneur Hospital Community Advisory Board.

A long-time resident of New York, Dr. From received his B.A. from Yeshiva University, his Masters in Counseling Psychology from Columbia Teachers College and his Ph.D. in Rehabilitation Counseling from New York University in 1987.

A man of many talents, Dr. From is a licensed substitute teacher for the New York City school system, as well as a rehabilitation counselor and a psychologist. He has worked at the Rockland County Center for the physically handicapped, the Pesach Tikvah Guidance Center, and he also ran his own part-time private practice.

Dr. From has made significant contributions to the Bronx Mental Health Clinics. In a variety of capacities during his 28 years of service there, he acted as both a senior and a supervising vocational rehabilitation counselor.

Dr. From impact on the New York community has also been profound. He was a remedial mathematics teacher at an antipoverty program called Project Talent, and he served as an audiometric tester for the Jewish Educational Committee, testing thousands of youngsters for hearing defects. He has served on many boards, including the board of directors for the 219 Henry Street Corporation and the Department Center for Education and Health Services.

Dr. From has also received numerous honors, ranging from being named among the "Outstanding Young Men in America" in 1974, to being included in the 1997–98 Whos's Who in Medicine and Health Care.

Tonight, however, Dr. From will be honored for his outstanding contribution to the Gouverneur Hospital Community Advisory Board. Dr. From was first elected to the board in 1974 by over 3,000 diverse members of the New York City community. He served as treasurer until 1977, and then proceeded to serve as chairman of the board for 21 years. The community and Gouverneur Hospital have benefitted immensely from his wisdom and guidance.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join me in thanking and congratulating Dr. From for his many years of outstanding service to this board and to the community. It is a privilege to have such an outstanding leader in my district.

TRIBUTE TO OFFICER CLAIRE CONNELLY

HON. KEN CALVERT

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 1998

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a fallen police officer from Riverside, California. Officer Claire Connelly, who was an 18-month veteran of the force, is the first female Riverside police officer ever to be killed in the line of duty. She contributed generously of her time and talents to help others and to make her community a better place in which to live and work.

She was a bright, caring, and compassionate individual who made an everlasting impression in her short life. Claire Connelly went out every day to make a difference and she did—some days in small ways, some days in big ways, and on July 12, 1998, at the cost of her life. One cannot ask more of peace officers. Officer Connelly deserves our deepest respect and gratitude.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that you and our colleagues join me today in remembering this fine officer. On behalf of the residents of the 43rd Congressional District, I extend my prayers and most heartfelt sympathy to her family and loved ones.

TRIBUTE TO THE BRONX PUERTO RICAN DAY PARADE

HON. JOSÉ E. SERRANO

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, July 29, 1998

Mr. SERRANO. Mr. Speaker, once again it is with pride that I rise to pay tribute to the Bronx Puerto Rican Day Parade, on its tenth year of celebrating the culture and contributions of the Puerto Rican community to our nation.

The Bronx Puerto Rican Day Parade will be held on Sunday in my South Bronx Congressional District. The event is the culmination of a series of activities surrounding Puerto Rican Week in the Bronx.

Under the leadership of its founder, Mr. Angel L. Rosario, and its president, Mr. Francisco Gonzalez, the Parade has grown into one of the most colorful and important festivals of Puerto Rican culture in the five Boroughs of New York City and beyond.

The Parade brings together people from all ethnic backgrounds, including Puerto Ricans from the island and all across the nation.

It is an honor for me to join once again the hundreds of thousands of people who will march with pride from Mount Eden to 161st Street and the Grand Concourse in celebration of our Puerto Rican heritage. The Puerto Rican flag and other ornaments in the flag's red, white, and blue will decorate the festival.

As one who has participated in the parade in the past, I can attest that the excitement it generates brings the entire City together. It is a celebration and an affirmation of life. It feels wonderful that so many people can have this experience, which will change the lives of many of them. There's no better way to see our Bronx community.

The event will feature a wide variety of entertainment for all age groups. The Parade ends at 161st and the Grand Concourse, where live music, Puerto Rican food, crafts, and other entertainments await partakers. It is expected that this year's Parade will surpass last year's half-million visitors.

In addition to the Parade, President Gonzalez and the many organizers will provide the community with nearly a week of activities to commemorate the contributions of the Puerto Rican community, its culture and history.

Mr. Speaker, it is with enthusiasm that I ask my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to this wonderful celebration of Puerto Rican culture, which has brought much pride to the Bronx community.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, it is a pleasure for me to pay tribute today to a truly exceptional Marine, and American, Colonel John Kelly, who serves as the Marine Corps Liaison Officer to the U.S. House of Representatives. Today, John pins on the rank of "full-bird" colonel. I cannot think of an officer more deserving of this promotion.

Military promotion boards make their selections based on sustained and superior performance, as well as on an officer's ability to lead. John has demonstrated throughout his career that he is an outstanding leader of Marines. And that is the essence being a Marine!

A native of Brighton, Massachusetts, John began his military career by enlisting in the Marine Corps on September 10, 1970. From the beginning, John demonstrated his leadership potential. Only nineteen months after enlisting, John was meritoriously promoted to sergeant—a feat that is nearly unheard of! Shortly thereafter, John was selected for the coveted Marine Enlisted Commissioning Education Program, where he obtained his bachelor's degree in just over three years.

Upon graduation, John was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Marine Corps on November 1, 1975. Throughout his twenty-eight-year career, John Kelly has commanded every echelon of infantry unit from fire team to battalion. His non-Fleet Marine Force assignments included serving as executive officer of the Marine detachments aboard the aircraft carriers U.S.S. Forrestal and U.S.S. Independence. During his ship-board duty, John acquired his "sea-legs" by qualifying as "Officer of the Deck Underway," a qualification that is difficult to achieve and allowed him to conn the ship during flight operations. Among his other assignments, John was stationed at the Marine Corps' Combat Development Command where he served as instructor at "The Basic School," manpower monitor, and director of the Infantry Officers Course. John also has earned post-graduate degrees from Georgetown University and the National Defense University.

On June 11, 1995, Colonel Kelly reported for duty at the Marine Corps' House Liaison Office and immediately assumed responsibility for the direction of the liaison office's activities, which include responding to Congressional and constituent inquiries as well as planning, coordinating and escorting Members and Congressional Staff on domestic and overseas travel. I benefited personally from John's professionalism, thoroughness and attention to detail, having had the opportunity to travel with him to military installations around the world. I know that I speak for all of my colleagues in thanking John for his integrity, his dedication to duty and, above all, for his friendship. John is a natural leader in the finest tradition of the nation and the Marine Corps.

I would also like to take a moment to recognize John's family. The national asks a lot of our service members. And when we ask a lot of the men and women in uniform, we also ask a lot of the spouses and families that are left behind. During John's career, he and his family have made many sacrifices for his nation. Therefore, I would also like to thank John's family—his lovely wife, Karen, and their three children, John, Robert and Kathleen—for their support to John and for their contributions to the Marine Corps.

Mr. Speaker, I know first hand that Colonel John Kelly is ready to meet the challenges and opportunities ahead. John epitomizes what it means to devote oneself to serving the nation. I look forward to the day when I will call him "General." Semper Fidelis!

PATIENT PROTECTION ACT OF 1998

SPEECH OF

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Friday, July 24, 1998

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak about a specific provision in the Patient Protection Act.

According to the Washington Post, and I quote: "The Republican-crafted Patient Protection Act of 1998 would allow anyone who collects health information . . . to provide that data to any health care provider or health plan". In other words, no one's personal health care information will be private. From your broken leg, to your HIV status, to your genetic makeup, to your psychiatric records—all of it can be bought and sold between hospitals, health maintenance organizations, doctors, pharmacies and insurers. Anyone in the health care business will be able to find out the most intimate details of your life under the Patient Protection Act.

As Mr. DINGELL said, "This is one of the worst outrages that I've seen." It is an outrage. It is also unconstitutional. The Fourth Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures."

The taking of personal health information under the false pretense that this information is private, and selling or giving that information away violates the right of the people to be "secure in their persons". Rifling through a persons' health care files for the purpose of selling that information is an unlawful search. And accepting this information without the patient's consent is an unlawful seizure.

It is no accident that the bill actually does protect patients is the Patient Bill of Rights. The Dingell-Ganske Patient Bill of Rights reforms the HMO industry without invading the constitutionally protected right to privacy. I urge my colleagues to vote for the Dingell-Ganske Patient Bill of Rights.

IN TRIBUTE

SPEECH OF

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, July 28, 1998

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, it's difficult to add to what my fellow Members of Congress have said here today about the dedication and commitment of the Capitol Police Force.

Officers Jacob Chestnut and John Gibson gave their lives so that some of my colleagues might live.

I did not know officers Gibson or Chestnut. But they laid down their lives for my fellow Members and in so doing, they were my friends.

I want to simply thank the Capitol Police Force for their acts of bravery. And I deeply admire their courage—not only in the face of danger but also in the face of tremendous grief these past few days.

Officers Jacob Chestnut and John Gibson are leaving behind wives and children. I extend my condolences to them, and I also extend my condolences to my fellow Members of the House because we all clearly have lost two friends—two people who were committed to service—who were committed to us. Committed to this country and committed to democracy.

They have continued to stand proudly and helpfully on the streets and corners of Capitol Hill carrying on through these difficult days.

We remember these two brave officers today—and will memorialize them in the Capitol building.
